Court upholds Strong rezoning; appeal debated

by LYNN ASINOF

Residents in the W. Strong Street area are expected to decide this week if they will appeal Friday's court ruling which upheld last year's rezoning of 47 lots in the area for six-flat apartment buildings.

Attorney John M. Burke, representing the W. Strong Street residents, said he would recommend that his clients appeal the decision. "I think the judge is wrong on a couple of points, a couple of things he overlooked in the evidence," Burke said. "An appeal would be the next step, but that's up to the homeowners."

In ruling to uphold the rezoning, Judge Robert J. Downing said the residents had failed to prove that the apartment zoning would reduce property values of the single-family homes in the area.

The suit, filed last May, challenged the zoning because it ignored the single-family homes already in the area. The residents charged this zoning would destroy their neighborhood, and was therefore not in the best interest of the community.

Judge Downing noted that in all zoning cases, the court must assume that the zoning is correct unless testimony shows otherwise. He said the residents failed to prove that the village's zoning decision was not valid.

"BASED ON ALL the evidence on the record, the court finds the highest and best use of the land is an R-4 (apartment) zoning classification," he said.

The judge said a major consideration in his ruling was testimony that developer Victor Smigel would install water and sewer lines in the area, which presently is not serviced by these utilities.

"Smigel would install sewer and water to serve not only the 47 lots," he said.

"The evidence further establishes beyond a doubt the installation of water and sewer lines will greatly improve the public health, safety and welfare of the area."

Burke said testimony during the trial had never indicated that all of the residents in the area would benefit from these water and sewer lines. "That was never brought out in evidence," he said. "We never said that."

The attorney said he felt testimony had further established that the apartments would have an adverse effect on the homes in the area. "I thought it was fully well established that it would," he said.

BURKE ALSO claimed the judge had not properly estimated the true property values of the homes in the area. Downing had said the value of the homes ranged from $10,000 to $33,000. Burke said at least two homes are estimated at $35,000.

Last year, the village rezoned only 47 scattered lots in the area for apartments, leaving the rest of the area zoned for residential uses. Residents said this amounted to spot-zoning because it ignored the single-family homes in the area.

In the middle of the trial, the village took action to rezone the rest of the W. Strong Street property for apartments. Residents charged that this action was a deliberate attempt to undermine the spot-zoning charge.

Judge Downing made no mention of the spot-zoning charge in issuing his ruling.

MAUREEN PITT, 294 W. Strong St., said both she and the other homeowners expected to lose the suit. "I was prepared for it," she said. "I expected it."

Attorney Jack Siegel, representing the Village of Wheeling, said he had anticipated the judge's ruling. "I thought that the zoning ordinance was valid at all times," he said. "I think this was the right result. I'm just sorry that it took so long."

Village board meeting canceled

Thw Wheeling Village Board has canceled a special board meeting scheduled tonight to discuss changing the license fees for restaurant operation.

The meeting will be rescheduled at a later date, and the revision of the license fees will be discussed before the newly elected village board.

JUMP IN! During a discussion about flooding before the village board, trustee Jerry Driscoll, whose home is plagued by flooding, aptly commented, "as long as we're talking about water, can I just jump in for a second?"

DEVELOPER VICTOR SMIGEL will be able to continue construction of his six-flat apartment in the W. Strong Street area now that the court has upheld last year's rezoning of the area. Work on the buildings began last year, but was halted when residents in the area obtained an injunction against further construction. Several building foundations have remained untouched since that time, often filling with water during heavy rains.

Insight out

OUCH! Wheeling Village Pres. Ted Scanlon showed village residents the strength of his gavel at Monday night's board meeting. When the meeting began to get noisy, he banged his gavel so hard that he knocked a painting out of its frame on the council chamber's wall.

WTA? Wheeling government seems to be falling prey to the abbreviation syndrome. Trustee Michael Valenza caused some confusion during employee negotiations by continually referring to the WTA. When asked what the WTA was, Valenza said, "That's the Wheeling Transit Authority."

Wheeling operates one village bus and maintains its own vehicles through the public works department.

JOHN Q. SPEAKS. Retired Buffalo Grove village trustee Edward Fabish, stuck around after his successor was sworn in Monday night to watch the rest of the board meeting. Following a discussion by the board, Fabish raised his hand and was recognized by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong. "As an interested citizen, I would like to make this comment," Fabish said.

THE EXPERT Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg, considered by many to be Buffalo Grove's authority on everything of a technical nature, surprised everyone Monday night. Following a question by a trustee concerning the operation of a generator, Seaberg paused for a second and replied, "Don't ask me, all I can do is wire a wall socket."

Summer school for handicapped set

by JILL BETTNER

Handicapped children in School Dist. 21 who attend Kirk Center in Palatine or Dwyer School in Arlington Heights have the opportunity this year to participate in new special education summer school classes at the schools.

Each of the 10 member school districts in the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) has the option of paying the tuition for children in their area to take the classes, which are offered for the first time this summer. The program was developed by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO).

The Dist. 21 school board has agreed to pay the tuition fees for the 45 children in the district who are eligible for the NSSEO summer program, plus their transportation costs. Lois King, spokeswoman for NEC, said the other nine NEC members also will participate in the program.

"There are some kids who need stimulation and educational effort for prolonged periods," said Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 research coordinator. "When summer break comes, there is often a regression. The purpose of this program is to maintain the skills that have been developed during the year using different approaches in the summer."

THE PROGRAM at Kirk is designed for mentally-retarded and multiple-handicapped children. Daily sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. are scheduled from June 18 through July 16 for elementary children and June 18 to July 30 for older children.

The cost per pupil to Dist. 21 for the Kirk program is estimated by NEC officials at $66 per pupil for elementary children and $158 for older children.

The program at Dwyer School, which provides for emotionally disturbed children, is planned for June 18 to July 6 at a cost of $142 per pupil. A second session also will be conducted from July 9 to July 27, but it will not be financed by the school districts. Parents of children who attend the second session will bear the cost.

Wynn said currently some special education students in Dist. 21 are able to attend regular summer school classes of-

Park districts' bond sales still delayed

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling park officials still are scheduling bond sales for this summer, although a delay in receiving Cook County assessed valuation figures is hindering their plans.

In both park districts, residents have authorized the sale of more bonds than the current assessed valuations can cover.

By state law, a park district can issue bonds only for an amount equal to 2½ per cent of the assessed valuation of all property in the district.

Both Stan Crosland, director of Buffalo Grove parks and Wheeling Park Supt. Dave Phillips expected the 1972 assessed valuation figures to be released last week. Friday, however, they still had not heard from the Cook County Clerk's office.

"WE'RE STILL holding our breath," Phillips said. "It's really frustrating because we were told we'd know by now."

Wheeling residents approved the sale of $700,000 in bonds in last December's referendum. However, so far the park district has been able to sell only $600,000 worth of the bonds because the assessed valuation has not been high enough to cover the entire sale.

Phillips said as soon as the new assessed valuation figures become official, the Wheeling park board will sell the remaining $100,000 in bonds.

A 1971 referendum gave the Buffalo Grove Park District the authority to issue $1,250,000 in bonds. However, again because the assessed valuation of the district was too low to cover all the bonds, park officials have been forced to wait to sell the remaining $250,000 worth.

Crosland said he was told by officials in the county clerk's office that they plan to begin releasing figures on Cook County assessed valuations this week, beginning with information on townships in the southwest corner of the county. He said he was told it could be another two or three weeks before Wheeling Twp. numbers are known.

CROSBLAND HAS said that it is crucial for the Buffalo Grove park district to sell its remaining bonds before the general obligation bond interest rate drops from 7 per cent to 5 per cent June 30. He feels it would be difficult for the district to sell the bonds at the lower interest rate.

Besides delaying their bond sales, the lack of information on assessed valuations is also holding up the completion of both park district budgets.

"Actually, this delay is holding up work on all our projects because we can't finish the budget," Phillips said. "There are several major purchases we need to make this summer and we're anxious to get going on them," he added.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Huron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake . . . the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

LaPlaca also conspirator, Barnes guilty of murder

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Millionaire Elgin horseman Silas Jayne was found guilty late Saturday of conspiring with two other men to commit the Oct. 26, 1970 rifle slaying of his brother George Jayne as the victim played cards in the basement of his Inverness home.

The two other defendants in the four-week murder trial also were found guilty.

Joseph LaPlaca, 50, an employee and constant companion of Silas Jayne, was found guilty of conspiracy to commit murder by the nine-woman, three-man Criminal Courts jury.

Julius Barnes, 39, a southside Chicago laborer, was found guilty of murder. In announcing its verdict on Barnes, the jury upheld the prosecution's contention that Barnes pulled the trigger on the high-powered .30 caliber rifle, shooting Jayne in the chest.

Criminal Courts Judge Richard Fitzgerald set May 25 for sentencing and post-trial motions. A murder conviction is punishable by not less than 14 years while conspiracy to commit murder carries a prison sentence of three to 10 years. Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey has said he will appeal the verdict.

THE VERDICT in the case came after more than 10 hours of deliberation by the jury shortly before 4:30 p.m., Saturday and two years and six months from the date of the murder.

The case went to the jury at 6:20 p.m., Friday following a full day of heated closing arguments by attorneys for both sides.

The guilt or innocence of the three men was hinged on the testimony of the estate's star witness, Melvin Adams, 39, of south suburban Posen, an admitted co-conspirator in the slaying.

Adams, who was granted immunity from prosecution for turning state's evidence testified for several days that he was hired by Silas Jayne, through LaPlaca, to kill the younger Jayne to settle a long-standing and bitter feud between the brothers. Adams said he later subcontracted the job to Barnes, a co-work-

The defense team of Bailey, his partner Gerald Alch and Chicago attorney George Howard contended that Adams actually committed the murder but was hired by someone else.

In attempting to provide the jury with other persons who may have wanted to see George Jayne dead, the defense hinted that George Jayne was involved in an international narcotics ring and was killed by someone with syndicate connections. They also implied the murder could have been linked to George Jayne's determined effort to block creation of the Ridgeway Farm in Inverness, a proposed facility for emotionally disturbed youths.

HOWARD SAID during the trial that George Jayne put up $10,000 for legal fees to stymie the project, which, Howard said, "cost someone a lot of money."

In his closing argument late Friday, Bailey characterized Adams as a "festering boil on the rump of society who deserves to be lanced and done away with."

In the courtroom, jammed far beyond seating capacity for Bailey's finale, the flamboyant defense attorney asked the jury to consider why the chief prosecutor, Asst. State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway, has had a picture of Silas Jayne pinned to a bulletin board in his office. "The state's jowls are dripping for the blood of Silas Jayne," he said. "If this is not a vicious vendetta then what is this man's (Silas') picture doing on that man's (Motherway's) wall?"

But Motherway, who made his last presentation for the state prior to his pending resignation to enter private practice, continued to challenge Bailey on an equal footing. Several times in the trial Motherway snapped back at Bailey, telling the Boston attorney, "I won't take any lessons in law from you."

In closing Friday, Motherway described Silas Jayne as a "bloodsucker" and a "Daddy Warbucks" who nursed a "venomous, diseased hatred for his brother." He said if the case was to be decided on the basis of elocution and oratory, "then maybe the prosecution is in trouble," referring to Bailey's dramatic style.

SPEAKING OF his chief witness, Motherway said, "Adams is a despicable human being who, by his own admission, is a killer, and it is unfortunate the people of the state have to deal with him." But, he added, "He was an associate of these men," referring to the defendants, "and his testimony has been corroborated in every material respect."

After the verdict was announced Judge Fitzgerald polled the jury, at Bailey's request, to ask each if they agreed with the verdict. Each juror answered, "Yes."

In the crowded audience, Corinne Akerson, Barnes' common-law wife, wept uncontrollably as the verdict was read. In a row of seats reserved for them behind the defense table, several members of the Jayne family who have supported Silas, including brother Frank Jayne, were visibly upset.

On the prosecution side however, Marion Jayne, widow of the slain man, embraced her daughters Linda and Patty and son, George Jayne Jr. She refused to talk with reporters at first, but later said she was grateful of the work of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, the state's attorney's office and the county sheriff's police for "an excellent job." She added, "I just hope to begin the job of getting back to a normal life. It has been two and a half years of worrying. It is constantly on your mind."

At one point in the trial Motherway told reporters the actions of Mrs. Jayne were a major factor in solving the case. She was said to have "broken" the case by convincing Adams and his wife, Patricia, to turn state's evidence by "tricking" them with a briefcase containing $25,000.

Three new characters today join the
on page 6, section 2.

Amanda Panda is the central character in an educational strip designed particularly for pre-schoolers—teaching letters, shapes, objects and something about animals, birds and insects. The strip, distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Association, was created by former teacher
Marcia Course of Cleveland.

Two classic comic characters—Freddie and Brother Juniper—also join the page.
Freddie is about the joys and troubles of being a little boy, the way little boys really live it. Brother Juniper is a gentle soul in monk's clothing whose humor is pointed and strictly non-denominational.
Both are distributed by Publisher-Hall Syndicate.

It's Postal Week

Free stamp envelopes are available to patrons who visit the Wheeling Post Office today.

Employees of U.S. postal facilities all over the country this week are celebrating "Postal Week" and the free envelopes are being given away as part of the observance.

Ceremonies are also planned this week to issue 10 eight-cent stamps honoring postal employees. The stamps may be purchased at the Wheeling Post Office.

Tours will be conducted today for both groups and individuals. Large groups should make arrangements for tours in advance by calling 537-0708.

Policeman elected VP

Peter G. Lippert, of the Buffalo Grove Police Department, was recently named vice president of his class that graduated from a six-week basic law enforcement course conducted by the University of Illinois.

Playground supervisors needed

Applications for summer employment as assistant playground supervisors are being accepted by the Wheeling Park District.

Persons interested in the job must be at least juniors in high school. Contact Wheeling Park Supt. Dave Phillips at 537-2222 for more information.

High school paper wins press honors

The "Spokesman," Wheeling High School student newspaper has won a Golden Eagle award for overall excellence from the Northern Illinois Scholastic Press Association.

Staff members winning blue ribbon awards were Brian Crehan for a cartoon and Nancy McCarty for a feature story.

Annual Lions Days Carnival slated

The first annual Wheeling Lions Days Carnival is scheduled for Thursday, May 10 through Sunday, May 13 in the parking lot of Wickes Furniture, on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Proceeds from the three days of activities will be used to finance Lion's Club projects for the blind.

Lots of prizes, food, rides and games will be available at the carnival, according to D. J. Boyd, first vice president of the Wheeling Lions' Club.

'It's important to have a warm feeling'

by BETTY LEE

The good feeling is contagious around the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, and Margaret Dorre, formerly of Norwood Park, caught it years ago when she came to live at the home.

"I was pretty sour when I first came here," she said while sitting with a friend in the Home's card shop. "But I'm not that way anymore."

"When a new person comes here to live, he must first make a few adjustments," said Rev. G. F. Barthel, chaplain, known as "Father B" to the residents.

"He has to give up a certain amount of his independence. He may have owned a car to come and go as he pleased. He might have moved from a six-room house to one room here. Another problem is what possessions does he take with him to the home. And when he comes here, among strangers."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have a warm feeling toward new residents," said Paul A. Hauer, executive secretary. "This is a socially oriented facility and we have a wide, active range of programs to fit most of their needs."

For the residents at the Lutheran Home, the place is just that . . . home. It's a place where they make friendships and laugh and talk with each other. The residents become a "family" and their individual rooms become "home."

"They choose to come here," said Hauer. "They move in with the idea they'll spend the rest of their lives here."

Residents each have their own rooms, which they have decorated to their own tastes, but more than likely, you won't find them there. They're much too busy.

Rather, you'll see a lot of them milling throughout the building, visiting friends, taking walks on the grounds, tending their gardens, or taking part in one of the many planned activities.

"We rather have them doing something they like instead of them sitting in their rooms watching television all day," said Barthel.

Many like to go to the arts and crafts

'Happiness Sparks' top park slogan

"Happiness Sparks in Wheeling Parks" is the winning entry in this year's Wheeling Park District slogan contest.

The phrase, which will be used on all park district mailings about summer activities, was submitted by Richard G. Larson, 1049 Valley Stream Dr.

Larson will receive $35 worth of participation in park district programs, activities or classes between June 1 and Dec. 31.

Five honorable mention awards of $10 in free park district activities also were given to the following persons:

• Kenneth A. Steinhoff, 385 S. Wolf Rd., for his slogan, "Don't Hesitate — Participate!"

• William L. Rice, 423 E. Mors Ave. for the phrase, "Park Play the Wheeling Way."

• Bruce Beck, 244 Edgewood Dr., for "Good Parks Build Good People."

• Lorraine Abbot, 367 Ann St., for "Family Fun for Everyone." This slogan was submitted more than once, but Lorraine Abbot's entry was received first.

• Frank T. Kenny, 288 Third St. for "Park Fun for Everyone."

Local park district residents submitted 75 entries in the contest. They were judged by the Wheeling Park District Slogan Advisory Committee.

Tax talk topic of PHIA town meeting May 17

Representatives of all taxing districts in Prospect Heights will speak May 17 when the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) holds its annual town meeting.

Plans currently are being made for the meeting which will begin at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria at John Hersey High School, 1800 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. All Prospect Heights residents are invited to the meeting to find out what's been happening in the unincorporated area for the last year and what is planned for the future, according to Bob Polzer, past PHIA president.

Representatives of School Dist. 23, the Prospect Heights Park District, the Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD), the Prospect Heights Fire Protection and Library districts have agreed to attend, Polzer said. Also on the agenda are progress reports on the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights and the legal battle for elimination of the Cook County Wheel tax.

Polzer said residents also will be informed on how to apply for federal flood insurance now being offered through Cook County. He added a report would be made on state legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

THE NEW AMBULANCE recently purchased by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department broke a department tradition. It is the first vehicle in the department that has not been painted red. The federal government, who paid 50 per cent of the cost, required it to be painted orange and white so it can be seen more easily. In case that is not enough, the vehicle has 20 flashing lights and "ambulance" written backwards on the front of the hood so drivers can read it through their rear-view

Carbona trial enters fourth day

Testimony in the fourth day of the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Carbona is expected to focus on crime laboratory findings that fingerprints on the gun which killed Cook County Sheriff Lt. Joseph Carbona are not suitable to clearly say whether Mrs. Carbona ever held the gun.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1206 Euclid, Mount Prospect, is on trial for allegedly killing her husband by shooting him in the back with his police revolver during a family dispute in 1971.

Today will be the fourth day of testimony in the trial before Criminal Courts Judge Arthur L. Dunne and a jury of seven women and five men.

Testimony today is expected to reveal that while there were fingerprints found on the revolver that killed Lt. Carbona, the prints were not suitable for crime technicians to be able to match them with fingerprints of either Lt. Carbona or Mrs. Carbona.

In court Friday Sheriff's Police Sgt. Ernest Marinelli testified Mrs. Carbona told him her husband tripped and fell on the stairs of their home as she reached to try to stop him from leaving. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said the loaded revolver the lieutenant was carrying fired when he fell, accidentally shooting Carbona.

He testified Mrs. Carbona told him she and her husband had argued earlier in the evening and that her husband tried to run her over with his car and succeeded in hitting her on the leg with the car. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said her husband argued and fought with her inside the house for awhile, awakening her children, then left the house around 3 a.m. He then returned at 6 a.m., took his clothing and said he had decided to leave her, Marinelli quoted Mrs. Carbona as saying.

He said the policeman's wife told him her husband hit her with his revolver and said, "Don't try to stop me or I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Carbona said she then reached and grabbed for Carbona as he turned to go down the stairs with the revolver in his hand, he tripped or fell, and the gun went off, Marinelli testified.

He said Mrs. Carbona said she ran down the stairs after her husband fell, then ran upstairs to call police. He said the defendant told him she was not sure whether she had touched the revolver or whether it was she or her husband who had actually fired the gun.

Judge Dunne ruled outside the presence of the jury that Marinelli could not testify about other statements Mrs. Carbona had made to him earlier the day of the shooting because she had not been informed of her rights by police before she talked to Marinelli.

Marinelli also testified he removed both the revolver and another gun, a .38 caliber snub-nosed pistol found in the pocket of the coat Carbona was wearing.

Marinelli said he saw a bruise on the side of Mrs. Carbona's face the morning of the lieutenant's death. He admitted under cross examination, however, that at a preliminary hearing he had testified there was no mark on her face. He said none of the police at the scene called a doctor because they believed Carbona was dead.

Other testimony of Friday came from Gary E. Nelson, one of the ambulance drivers who removed the body from the home and transported it to the hospital and from Sheriff's Police Sgt. Singer.

fery by the district, but others have special needs the regular courses cannot meet.

Language development, practice in physical coordination, self-help activities and just learning skills needed for life are all part of the NSSEO program," Wynn said. "Students in the program also will have access to specialists including language therapists, psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and the kinds of other special resources that are so important."

AT DWYER, Wynn said emotionally disturbed students will participate in many activities designed to help them learn how to get along better with others. "There will be a great deal of opportunity for students to interact and develop social skills," he said. "The goal here is to help these kids operate more efficiently in social relationships."

Both programs will focus on developing what Wynn called "the most central skills in terms of cognitive growth." Instruction in math, language arts and reading will be included.

In addition to formal academic instruction, several field trips for students are planned as part of the NSSEO program.

"The field trips will have a dual purpose of promoting educational development and serving as educational experiences in themselves," Wynn said.

Wynn said he did not know yet how many of the 45 children in Dist. 21 who could attend the NSSEO classes will take advantage of the program.

NEC officials estimate that a total of 144 students from all the school districts will participate in the Kirk Center elementary program. Thirty-six will take part in the program for older Kirk students, and 50 will be in the Dwyer program.

Second class postage paid.

And there'll be another in late May against fish, poultry

Women gird for new meat boycott tomorrow

Another meat boycott is in the works for this week, May 1-7, according to Mrs. Ethel Rosen, of the Women's War on Prices.

Mrs. Rosen said the same groups who carried out the April meat boycott are planning this one — with the exception of a few dissenters. The women are dissatisfied with the price ceiling President Nixon clamped on meat after the last boycott and are continuing to demand a price rollback.

The boycott again will apply to red meats, but, Mrs. Rosen said, it will be followed by a boycott of poultry and fish later in May.

She also announced that a National Consumers Conference will be held May 12 at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago to research prices and determine the level to which they should be rolled back.

"In other words," Mrs. Rosen explained, "if in November of 1972 the farmers were getting a decent price and consumers were paying a reasonable price, then we would push prices back to that level."

EXPERTS, HOWEVER, have pointed out that general inflation has had a great deal to do with rising food prices, and that rising farmers' costs have necessitated higher market prices. A rollback in food prices, without an accompanying cut in the costs to farmers and food producers, would be unfair to the agricultural sector of the economy, many experts have said.

Mrs. Rosen responds to this argument with the observation that "it is unfortunate the administration has bungled our economy, but food is absolutely necessary."

Asked if she believes that food prices can be brought under control independently of other economic factors, she replied, "Yes, because it's a necessity." She added, "We want all this exporting of food stopped until we straighten ourselves out."

WHILE MANY people on both sides of this issue cringe at the prospect of more government controls on prices and production, Mrs. Rosen foresees "a three-year plan" in which "farmers would know exactly how much to grow and how many cattle to raise, and wholesalers would know how much they're going to buy and how much is going to be sold."

As to such unpredictable elements as the weather, Mrs. Rosen also provided solutions.

"I don't see why they didn't airlift those cattle out of the West when those storms hit. And they should have built reservoirs in the Midwest to prevent all this farmland from being flooded."

The past winter, with its severe snows in the west, has been "unbelievable — the worst ever" according to James House of the National Cattlemen's Association. The NCA estimates that close to 200,000 head of cattle valued at $100 million, were lost.

That amounts to 250 million pounds of beef, or about 1 per cent of total beef production.

"That's 250 million pounds of beef that won't be in the supermarkets," House said in response to the question of how the losses will affect consumers.

And if the commodity is a little more scarce than it had been before, its price will naturally go up. House predicted it will take "three to four years to make up the loss," due to the gestation period required in cattle. He explained new herds must be bred from surviving cattle, thus decreasing even further the number of cattle sent to market.

LIVESTOCK FARMERS have been adamantly opposed to consumer boycotts of meat and price rollback proposals. House, asked if the cattlemen's response to renewed boycotts continues to be the same, replied, "You're damn right!"

House said his organization has been informed of a "National Day of Protest," reportedly being sponsored May 5 by the National Consumers Congress.

Agricultural Extension economists in Urbana have predicted that any forced reduction in beef prices will result in less beef being used for hamburger and more of it sold as higher-priced steaks and roasts. They also foresee meat rationing if prices are rolled back below the free-market level.

Young urges pollution bill amendment

U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, offered an amendment in congressional committee hearings to relieve small chemical corporations of the cost of pollution tests on effluents, but a spokesman for Young discounted the report of syndicated columnist Jack Anderson last Friday that Young attempted to "emasculate" the environmental bill.

Anderson charged that Young "made four separate attacks on a bill to control toxic substances" during hearings before the House Commerce and Finance Committee.

The Washington columnist then cited contributions to Young's election campaign of $10,000 by Daniel J. Terra, president of Lauter Chemical Industries of Northbrook, and $4,200 by Foster McGaw, past president of American Hospital Supply Corp. of Evanston.

In a recent financial statement made public by Young, he listed among his assets common stock in American Hospital Supply. The value was not disclosed, but it was listed in a category requiring disclosure of ownership "in my business entity doing a substantial business with the federal government or subject to federal regulatory agencies in which the ownership is in excess of $5,000 fair market value... or which earned over $1,000.

YOUNG, WHO has been touring Israel, was unavailable for comment on Anderson's charge that he has become "an errand boy" for the chemical industry.

A spokesman, however, said Young's amendment was designed to put the cost of testing of chemical companies' effluent on the government rather than on the firms involved. He described these tests as "quite expensive." He also declared that the amendment Young offered was drawn with the cooperation of the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Bill Kling, Young's press representative, who was visiting the congressman's district over the weekend, deferred further comment until Young arrives home. But he said he had contacted Young's Washington office and that an examination of the transcript of the committee hearings showed no other effort to amend the toxic-substances bill on Young's part.

Efforts to reach Terra for comment have been unsuccessful.

STATE REP. Richard A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, Saturday launched a campaign to enlist constituents in his 2nd Legislative District in helping him decide his vote on key legislative issues.

At a breakfast meeting at the Holiday Inn in Elgin, Mugalian told approximately 50 residents of his district that the massive amount of legislation offered in the General Assembly makes it impossible for individual legislators to make sound judgments on the majority of bills.

"If any legislator tells you he votes with knowledge on as much as 10 percent of the legislation presented, he is exaggerating," Mugalian declared.

The inability to study various bills and to keep abreast of amendments which may completely alter those bills makes it vital for legislators to have the advice of those who can research key issues, Mugalian said.

THE FRESHMAN legislator related some of the methods by which "bad legislation" is run through the legislature — such as composing a bill, the synopsis of which states a purpose attractive to many legislators. Such bills, however, may be completely altered by amendments, but when voted on by the full House or Senate, the synopsis is not changed. Unless legislators have full knowledge of the amendments, they may wind up voting for bills to which they are directly opposed.

To aid him in enlisting volunteers for research and advice on legislation, Mugalian has named coordinators from various parts of his widespread district. They will be asked to study individual legislative proposals, discuss legislation with community leaders, and conduct polls of voters to supply guidance to Mugalian.

As Betty McKee, Mugalian's administrative assistant, put it, people often exclaim, "There ought to be a law..." Mugalian wants to give people the chance to get the laws they want, she said.

Association of Retired opens in area

A regional office of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association, representing more than 825,000 older citizens in a five-state area of the Midwest, will open Tuesday in Suite 108, O'Hare Office Center North, Des Plaines.

The Area 5 NRTA-AARP office, previously located in Toledo, Ohio, will provide professional staff assistance for AARP chapters, RTA units, and individual members of the two organizations in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Regional Representative for Area 5 is Eugene H. Molensaur.

Also located at the O'Hare office facility is the new Midwest regional office of Action for Independent Maturity (AIM), AARP's special division for preretirees. AIM's Midwest regional coordinator is John McBride.

With a combined membership of more than 5.2 million, NRTA-AARP is the nation's largest organization committed to helping older Americans achieve retirement lives of purpose, dignity and independence.

Open to persons 55 years of age or older, the two associations offer many income-stretching services for members and publish magazines and other materials of special interest to older Americans. Included among association services are recommended health, life and automobile insurance programs, a travel service geared to the needs of mature travelers, a pharmacy service with five locations through which members can obtain prescription medicines and other health needs by mail, a temporary employment service, preretirement programs and a continuing education program. Membership dues are $2 per year.

For further information about the associations, write NRTA-AARP, 1223 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

In the tests he took for admission to the University of Washington Law School, Marco DeFunis, 22, scored higher than 30 fellow applicants who were subsequently admitted.

Yet he was rejected. For the 30 were all members of darker-skinned minority groups. DeFunis also belongs to a minority group. He is Jewish. But he is also white.

This outrage — which begs the question as to why University of Washington officials bothered to test brains rather than simply to check skin pigment — has been upheld by the Washington Supreme Court, which reversed a lower court. DeFunis is planning to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, which in its 1954 desegregation of the public schools (the case of Brown vs. Board of Education) held that "The law in the States shall be the same for the black as for the white."

In the light of this statement as well as Justice Harlan's ruling that "A State must not discriminate against a person because of his race," the High Court should carefully ponder, as indication of a clear and present danger to this principle of equal justice under law, the statement made to this column by the University of Washington Law School's Associate Dean Robert Hunt:

"DeFUNIS' APPEAL hasn't got a chance. Every law school in the country has an affirmative program," (that is, a program providing preferential treatment for minorities.)

Tolerance of this widespread and vicious policy of reverse racism by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare has been strongly protested by six of the nation's leading Jewish organizations, including the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The ADL told this writer of "the widespread policy in which some of the nation's leading medical schools used to allow only two or three Jews in every entering class."

JUST HOW MANY people have since died, or been deprived of the best possible medical treatment because of this stereotypical substitution of anti-Semitism for ability in criterion of admission to medical schools, is an immeasurable tragedy.

But now that this is dying down in medical schools, it is being used to deny the public the best possible legal assistance.

In the prodigious cost of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, Marco DeFunis should be able to count on the support of not only Jewish organizations, but those funds which have been set up by Christian denominations to help legitimate minorities, and which have often found their way into the hands of racial racketeers.

For many Christian denominations have resolved that discrimination against a person simply because of his skin pigment is sinful.

Yet the Episcopalians, who have frequently so resolved, are proposing that their General Convention authorize the expenditure of $150,000 for the (racially segregated) Union of Black Episcopalians.

THE NATIONAL Council of Churches has responded to dwindling income by terminating white staffers and boasting of its increasing percentage of minority staffers, like Communications head Maynard Catchings — whose media experience is nil. This sort of thing gives rise to the speculation that within a decade, or sooner, the National Council of Churches will have an all-black staff.

The Consultation of Church Union (CCU) originally proposed that when its nine member denominations merge, the first ranking bishop must be black. This has since been modified so that the bishop must instead be selected on a basis of rotating skin pigment.

This transparent racism is similar to the astounding campaign slogan of Black Panther Bobby Seale:

"Elect Bobby Seale Mayor of Oakland. Everyone has a right to a job whether he has skills or not."

As one humorist asked: "Is this a platform or an apology?"

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

There's no single cause for enlargement of the heart

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would like to know what the doctor meant when he said I had an enlarged left ventricle in my heart. When I walk fast or hurry in other things I do, I get a tight feeling in the center of my chest and my heart beats too fast. Can this bring on a heart attack? There is no pain or hurting with this feeling, just a fast heart beat, tight feeling and hard beating. I am 66 years old, very active, and feel fine otherwise. Please explain what can happen.

Dear Reader—An enlarged heart can mean many things. A healthy young distance runner will have an enlarged heart as evidence of his high level of physical fitness. In this instance it is a good sign. It indicates that the volume of the heart is increased so that it can pump more blood when needed. Individuals in poor physical condition often have tiny hearts with limited capacity, unable to increase the amount of circulation for large amounts of physical activity.

Whenever the heart has damaged valves which affect its mechanical pumping action, then the heart can enlarge to compensate for this mechanical problem. The heart can also enlarge because it has failed, meaning that it hasn't got the strength to pump as forcefully as it once did. This causes extra fluid to accumulate in the body producing old-fashioned dropsy with swelling in the abdomen and feet or fluid in the lungs which can cause breathlessness.

The left ventricle is the main heart chamber which pumps blood to all of the body except the lungs. When blood pressure is measured one is really measuring the pressure created by the pumping of the left ventricle.

A person who has high blood pressure often develops enlargement of the left ventricle because the left ventricle is working harder than the rest of the heart. The left ventricle can also enlarge if the person has disease of the coronary arteries to the heart muscle, such as fatty blockage, the disease which leads to heart attacks and chest pain.

SINCE I DON'T know whether you have a valve defect or whether you have high blood pressure or a problem of the arteries to your heart, it would be difficult for me to say exactly what your problem is. The sensation of tightness you described sounds like angina pectoris. It can occur in individuals who have high blood pressure or valve defects or disease of their coronary arteries.

This is nature's signal that you are overdoing it. Stop and rest whenever this occurs. You should also limit your physical activities to just below the level that produces this, or perhaps your doctor will give you some nitroglycerin tablets which you can take just before increasing your physical activity.

I would also strongly suggest that if you have any excess body fat at all that you do your best to eliminate it by proper dietary means, specifically cutting down on your calories enough to start inducing a small but steady weight loss.

Whether or not your condition is likely to produce a heart attack depends a lot on what the underlying problem is, specifically whether you have valvular defects, high blood pressure or disease in the coronary arteries. All of these will benefit by losing weight if you are carrying any excess pounds around.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Defense is the hardest part of bridge. You have to try to cooperate with a partner against a declarer who is able to play both his hands."

Jian: "Of course, good defense looks so simple. Thus, when I watched this hand played in the Spring National it looked as if East and West had no problems at all. West opened the ace of clubs. East played the deuce. West led the four of hearts. East took his ace and returned the 10 of clubs. West ruffed and shifted to the three of diamonds. East took his ace and led back his lowest remaining club. West ruffed that; cashed his king of diamonds and led a heart. South was down two before he could gain the lead."

Oswald: "It certainly looks easy, yet when we showed the hand to some very good players they all led a diamond at trick two. The heart lead practically insured that East would give his partner an immediate club ruff."

Jian: "West wound up proceedings for the defense by one more good play. He led a heart, not a diamond. This made no difference, but if East had started with king and one trump and South with seven to the ace-queen-jack it would have insured a trump trick for East since East

Herald editorials

Suburbs must face housing

The latest skirmish in the protracted efforts to get low and moderate income housing built in the suburbs of Chicago will occur in Springfield.

Two members of the Illinois House, Rep. Harold Washington (D-Chicago) and Rep. Lewis Calwell (D-Chicago), are sponsoring an amendment to a bill which would have the state dictate the percentage and location of low and moderate income housing units in the suburbs, regardless of the wishes of the suburbs involved.

Under the terms of the proposed Workers Residential Rights Act, communities such as those of the Northwest suburbs would have to accommodate housing units equal to 15 per cent of the number of new jobs created in the community since 1967.

Proponents of the plan say the proposal would help to make a worker's right to live near his place of employment a reality for city dwellers who cannot afford to live in the suburbs without subsidized housing.

We reject the notion of the proposal and we hope the legislature gives this ill-conceived idea a defeat when it appears on the floor of the House.

Our opposition to the Washington-Caldwell plan is not based on any opposition to low and moderate income housing per se. Indeed, the Herald has for some years advocated the inclusion of subsidized housing in proper planning for the Northwest suburbs.

But our advocacy is based on the premise that suburbanites through their elected officials should have firm control over housing plans and that the impetus — and responsibility — for such housing must come from the suburbs themselves.

Our main concern with the Washington-Caldwell proposal is that we do not believe it will work in the best interests of the suburbs or the people of the city who would come to live here. Plans which emanate from without the suburbs, particularly this one which is aimed at superseding any local zoning laws and in effect steamrolling subsidized housing across suburban metropolitan Chicago, are bound to meet so much resistance that their failure is preordained.

Instead, the Herald continues to advocate solid, realistic planning for low and moderate income housing based on the combined efforts of many suburban towns. A Housing Authority for the Northwest suburbs which would encompass a wide area and include both incorporated and unincorporated Cook County land is one solution.

Seasoned political observers do not give the Washington-Caldwell proposal much chance to emerge successfully through the legislative processes of the General Assembly.

Nevertheless, we see it as yet another example of the type of harsh legislation which is waiting for the suburbs if suburban officials do not recognize the issues of low moderate income housing and begin to act on them.

There will continue to be legislation proposed in Springfield, in Washington, and tests applied to the courts which will attempt to crack suburban zoning barriers to subsidized housing.

Suburban elected officials who do not recognize that simple fact of life or who slothfully delay dealing with the matter are leading their own suburbs into a trap.

Proponents of the Washington-Caldwell proposal will no doubt claim that if the suburbs fight this proposal the fight will again illustrate the insularity and institutional bigotry of the suburbs. That is not the case with our opposition to this proposal and we do not believe suburban opposition should be so construed.

But after very many more of these proposals and subsequent attacks on them from the suburbs, the bluff that the suburbs are now playing will begin to wear thin.

The answer to the threat — or hope — of low and moderate income housing is the same answer which beckoned to us several years ago when the issue first arose: plan now for housing on a regional level; act on behalf of the suburbs before some outside force acts for us.

New myths sought

In case you were wondering why so many young people are messing around with drugs, according to one observer it's because civilization is confronting a "crisis of consciousness — a breakdown of the general consensus about what is real and what is not."

Says Dr. Jean Houston, director of the Foundation for Mind Research in New York, the young are exploring their own minds, voyaging "inward to the green land inside to remythologize the reality that has become demythologized outside."

Now there's a load of fertilizer for the "greening of America."

Here's real inflation

According to the 1972-73 edition of Jane's All the World's Aircraft, the 115 million pounds which British Overseas Airways is paying for its small fleet of Concorde supersonic airliners would have bought all the Spitfires and Hurricanes with which the RAF entered the Battle of Britain in 1940 — some 37 times over.

Cost of the famed fighter planes was a mere 3.1 million pounds. This, of course, was before postwar inflation and currency devaluation, when the pound was worth five U.S. dollars and the dollar was worth a dollar.

Offers just what I need and want

Tom Wellman's column

Diane Arbus' haunting 'faces'

One of the subtle images we in the suburbs are led to accept is that we are beautiful people with beautiful, or at least reasonable, faces.

Oh, there are those among us who have obvious deformities — those physical marks that draw second glances in a crowd. There's a tiny percentage of us that could be regarded as "handsome" or "ugly," and the rest of us are in the middle — probably towards the top of the middle.

If this premise is accepted, it may be an exercise in masochism to suggest a visit to the Diane Arbus photo exhibit at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago.

Ms. Arbus, before she committed suicide two years ago, was a New York City photographer who specialized in photographing those persons, who by our contemporary standards, are ugly.

The subjects of her journalism included transvestites, nudists, the insane, dwarf, giants, go-go dancers, circus freaks and the painfully aged — all subjects which we in the green suburban world are taught to banish from thought.

These persons are the "deformed," and Ms. Arbus did not compromise in photographing them. She faced them squarely and recorded their faces on film, in the manner of snapping a picture of your children.

Why, then, has Diane Arbus' exhibition drawn the crowds and the critical applause? Isn't her work little more than a Coney Island freak show, an avant-garde gimmick to draw the curious?

There is a sensational touch about the show that's probably contributed to the crowd. But the show has really nothing to do with freaks; it has more to do with us.

We are repulsed (secretly or openly) with the pictures of nudism; at the least, such pictures are jarring. But Ms. Arbus' photos show the nudists at home. Similarly, a contorted giant is photographed at home with his normal-sized parents. There is much in the relationship among the three of them that's no different from a normal family relationship.

Visit the show (237 E. Ontario Street, until May 13) and gaze at these relationships. The humanity comes through. The lives in those pictures, distorted as it may be with physical or psychological aberrations, are not altogether dissimilar from ours.

There are portraits, too, of those we've come to regard as normal; the suburban couple lying motionless and emotionless on chaise longue chairs, and middle aged couples at a masked ball.

The men and women at the masked ball, however, are grotesquely made up — and they bear a relationship to the last pictures Ms. Arbus shot.

These are untitled, apparently taken at a mental institution. The backgrounds are softer, vaguer; the subjects wear

Fence post letters to the editor

She defends her 'Zoom' support

In my letter printed on April 3 in the Herald, I praised the Herald's editorial concerning the fact that the CPB's children's program "Zoom" had been saved from the federal government's budget cutbacks through the efforts of the children's letters to the station.

Also in my letter I urged people to follow the children's example in writing letters to legislators, etc., to make their views known. Mrs. Louise Daley, in her letter which appeared in the April 23

Herald, took my advice to express her opposing views on "Zoom." Writing a letter to one's legislators and/or newspaper takes a bit of time and effort, and I'm glad to know that Mrs. Daley is a concerned enough person to make both the time and effort.

However, Mrs. Daley, I will also take the time and effort to reply on one account. As I said, I'm glad for your efforts in behalf of your views. But your quote, "Mrs. Rankin seems to think the President is taking special privileges; however, I happen to think that educators and the small minority like herself are taking too many privileges which they have no right to when they feel free to use unsuspecting children as they have," infringes on my reputation as a responsible person and my rights as a free citizen.

I in no way feel free to use unsuspecting children. I do not "use" my own children let alone anyone else's. When I write, I write my own views, as you do. I have no knowledge of what letters were written in what schools by whose children. I am not an educator, and I do not have children in school.

You're right, though, that I am a minority. When I see something I dislike I'm intolerant enough to do something about it, and I write letters, many, many letters expressing MY OWN view. I do not "use" people. That charge I cannot tolerate!

'Exodus to suburbs growing'

Thank you for publishing my Fence Post letter on the mass movement of Chicagoans to the suburbs. It makes good reading and it has evoked favorable comment.

In Sunday's Chicago Tribune, just three days after you published my letter, there appeared one about the evacuation of Jews from the Albany Park neighborhood. They called it the "suburban exodus"; and truly that is what it really is, very much like the flight of the Israelites from Egypt. Its extent is really frightening. It tells of the closing of once thriving Jewish institutions and businesses. Of a dozen synagogues all but two are now boarded up, as is the Max Straus Jewish Community Center. This is a replay of the story in my letter.

Now giving the names of the deteriorating and some now defunct neighborhoods, it is no secret that they are Woodlawn-Englewood (now a shambles), Wilson Avenue-Broadway (where it would take considerable search to find any elite), Lawndale (now having the reputation of being the most crime-ridden locality in Chicago), Austin (getting worse every day), and Logan Square (where some of Chicago's most prominent and distinguished citizens once made their residence). There is really not much more of the city, is there?

There are a lot of people leaving Chicago and many of them know the best place to go — the Northwest suburbs, the territory of the Herald, the up-and-coming community newspaper for which I predict phenomenal growth.

She scolds a newspaper agency

Since the Herald, itself, is not responsible for my frustration, perhaps the publishers will see merit in printing this letter of complaint.

The Hoffman News Agency delivers the Herald and Tribune in this area, but "delivery" is a sometimes thing. Within the past six days, I've not received three of my papers — a 50 per cent rate of dependability. This is not an isolated case; it's really more of a situation here in Sheffield Towne whereas we feel elated when the paper is there.

In the paper is listed a number to call when your paper isn't delivered. In two years of periodically dialing that number over and over, I've found it busy except one time. That time I asked that my missing Sunday paper be delivered. It never came. It is most distressing to expect a paper in the morning, to look forward to reading it, especially on Sundays, and to search the yard and find none. Then, adding insult to injury, spending an hour or two dialing the agency's number until 10:00 a.m. and suddenly after that, no busy signal but no answer either!

In light of a recent notice of price increase, I find this whole situation ludicrous.

I have my doubts that the Hoffman News Agency is as efficient an organization as it should be to have the responsibility of getting the newspapers to its subscribers who, incidentally, pay for its services two months in advance.

With my luck, you'll print this letter and I'll miss it!

Palatine citizens praised

Three weeks ago we lost three fine men who tried to save a local businessman's livelihood. They gave their life in doing so. So what can we do now?

We of the American Legion started a program to raise a fund for their families. The citizens of Palatine have generously donated $30,000 toward the education of their children. However, in the event the widows are in need, they would be eligible to draw from the fund.

The members of the Post are very grateful that the Palatine citizens have opened up their hearts in sympathy by contributing to these unfortunate families. I'm sure we all realize, "There, but for the Grace of God, go I."

NEW YORK — When a businessman dreams of Bermuda, the Bahamas or the New Hebrides, chances are he's more excited about tax savings than visions of tropical paradise.

Over the years, corporations and individuals have flocked to tax havens dotting the globe. Some go to warm climates, others to Switzerland or the Netherlands. A few just barely land on the outskirts of legality.

Commenting on the watchdog role the federal government often assumes in keeping taxable U.S. funds from being improperly diverted into the welcoming arms of the tax haven, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service said, "We have the situation well under control."

THERE ARE plenty of corporate opportunities to "play it straight" and still dodge taxation all together. Disembarking at Port Vila, New Hebrides, for instance, the executive would find the ultimate haven. Not only can interest, dividends, trading profits and capital gains be had at considerable savings, but this island group in the South Pacific grants many companies a sacrosanct status virtually free of public scrutiny.

A combination of advantages, including the rapidly expanding business and natural resource opportunities cropping up in the South Pacific Basin, and the political stability of joint British-French rule has prompted U.S. firms to set up offices and branches in the New Hebrides.

Crocker National Bank, Bank of America and the Irving Trust Co. are in these islands.

Governments in havens such as Bermuda, the Cayman Islands, the Bahamas, Papua, New Guinea, Switzerland, the Netherlands and Liechtenstein promote their role as corporate tax havens. Tax incentives they offer help stimulate underdeveloped areas in their economy, employ idle labor, improve their foreign currency position, strengthen their industrial base, decrease imports and correspondingly increase their exports.

SOME HAVENS, particularly the tropical variety, are called "ultimate," because they offer not only freedom from personal or corporate taxes, but also rebates and exemptions from excise and customs duties where such levies exist.

With every tax haven there may be a bit of discomfort. As Dan Bawly, a tax expert noted, a corporate head in search of a taxation Shangri-La often discovers "that behind the glamor of a tax haven there sometimes lurks a bumbling, in effective, often unsympathetic bureaucracy, and a difficult, unresponsive labor force."

At present, though, the temptation to cut taxes, get behind tariff walls, save on labor, and bypass competition has been too enticing for many corporations to resist.

Computer class simulates a year of business

CHICO, Calif. (UPI) — Using a computer, a course simulating several years of business operations compressed into a few weeks of classes is being offered at Chico State University.

Students assume top management roles in hypothetical firms which compete for profits, offer market shares and engage in other business operations. Grades are based on the student's evaluation of his firm's performance and his contribution to the company's progress.

Look to exports, small businessmen advised

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Small to medium businesses should look to the export market to develop new products and gain new customers, says a manufacturing firm official.

"Any manufacturer — and I don't care how small his operation is — who thinks he can't compete in the export market will soon find his domestic market invaded by imports," says Warren Gast, vice president of Gast Manufacturing Corp., Benton Harbor.

Zion reactor will aid production

Atomic power may be energy answer

Nuclear power was cited by Commonwealth Edison Co. top officials Thursday as the best means of relieving pressure on other sources of energy now in short supply.

Presiding for the first time over the annual meeting of stockholders since becoming Edison's chief executive officer, Thomas G. Ayers, stressed the importance of the recently completed 1.1 million kilowatt nuclear unit at Zion station to the company's 1973 operations.

"As to 1973 earnings," he said, "we expect earnings per common share will be a few cents higher than 1972's $3.13 figure — if all goes well, particularly with respect to the timely licensing and operation of Zion station."

Gordon R. Corey, newly elected vice chairman, also addressed Edison stockholders in the Prudential Building assembly hall and cited the need to maintain earnings growth and improve interest coverage in order to finance future construction expenditures at reasonable cost. He indicated the company plans to seek a modest amount of tax-exempt financing of pollution-control facilities later this year, in addition to proceeding with lease and similar arrangements for financing nuclear fuel.

"LATE IN 1972," Corey said, "we raised $25 million through the sale and leaseback of one reactor load of nuclear fuel. We are currently negotiating for about $125 million more of this or similar financing of nuclear fuel. And by the end of 1977, such financing may well exceed a quarter-billion dollars."

The stockholders voted to reserve an additional one million shares of common stock for employee purchases and approved an amendment to the company's deferred compensation plan providing for minimum and maximum limitations on payments after retirement. They also elected as a new Edison director William Wood Prince, president of F. H. Prince & Co., Inc.

"We badly need power from Zion 1 to meet this summer's loads," Ayers said. "Without it our reserve margin is too small to assure reliable service to the 8 million people of northern Illinois. . . . Should there be delays beyond mid-June in authorizing us to use the plant to carry substantial loads, our reserve will be tight this summer." He said while hearings on an operating license are in progress, the Atomic Energy Commission has given permission to fuel the unit and test it up to 50 per cent of capacity. In addition to Zion 1, another 1.1 million kilowatt unit at the station is scheduled for operation before year-end.

EDISON this year expects its nuclear reactors to supply about a third of electrical output — up about 40 per cent from 1972. And he added: "Unlike the petroleum fuels, nuclear power can be used only in the production of electricity. As a single-application fuel it preserves our precious hydro-carbons and releases our diminishing reserves of oil and natural gas for other purposes."

Discussing Edison's $4 billion construction program for 1973 through 1977, Corey indicated that environmental costs now comprise roughly 10 per cent of the five-year budget. It costs over twice as much to build a generating station today than it did just a few years ago, he noted.

"During the next few years," he also said, "our ability to continue the recently renewed earnings growth will, of course, depend upon rate levels being adequate to reflect today's higher construction costs — also upon the course of future inflation being moderated somewhat."

Three management seminars slated

With the complexity of jobs increasing at all levels, middle and first level managers are encountering the same dilemma — "How can I improve my performance when I am working at the peak of my energy level and as efficiently as I know how?"

The dilemma can be solved through "Team Building," according to Herbert A. Cohen, management expert, who will lead a seminar May 3 on the subject at Harper College. Fee for the session is $40.

Other seminars in the Harper Management Development series scheduled for May will deal with "Improving Employee Performance Through Coaching" for supervisors on May 10, and "Teaching Sales Representative" on May 24 for sales managers.

Seminar hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Registration may be made through the Harper College Community Services Office at 359-4200, ext. 248.

FROM A MINOR deduction 20 or so years ago, the Social Security payroll tax has risen rapidly and more steeply — in recent years. Originally designed as a supplementary pension to prevent poverty among the elderly, Social Security is increasingly viewed as a retired person's major support. The deduction is scheduled to rise $702 in 1974 for employees (matched by an equal amount paid by employers), representing a 5.85 per cent tax on a wage base of $12,000.

Cash really OK with Hertz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Hertz Corp. has set the record straight. You don't need a credit card to rent one of their cars. Cash is acceptable.

In fact, the nation's No. 1 auto rental company has apologized for a young clerk who refused to rent a car to David K. E. Bruce, U.S. ambassador to China, because all he had was cash — no credit card.

Hertz sent Bruce a letter, in China after learning of the incident from columnist Tom Braden who was standing in line behind Bruce when it happened a year ago.

According to Braden, Bruce went to the Hertz counter at Washington's National Airport upon returning from the Paris peace talks and the clerk asked for his credit card.

"I'm sorry, I don't carry credit cards," he said.

The clerk said sorry but she couldn't rent him a car.

He produced $400 in cash and asked if that was enough for a deposit. Again she refused. Bruce then produced a document signed by Secretary of State William Rogers.

Again, no.

When a bystander suggested the woman call her boss, she refused, and Bruce walked away, without a car.

A spokesman for Hertz described the incident as "an unfortunate administrative error."

"It was then and still is Hertz policy not to require a credit card," he said.

Wall Street chatter

NEW YORK — "A slower growth rate in GNP, increasing unemployment, tighter credit and an immediate significant further price decline by the stock market averages" are in the offing, according to Wright Investors' Service. The letter says the Federal Reserve's current tight money attack on inflation is "at best erratic and delayed," and adds "what is needed is an immediate and temporary reduction in the current explosive expansion of consumer spending."

"The market trend can only be regarded now as being pointed downward," with the major area of vulnerability in the high P-E glamors, E. F. Hutton says. While the questions of interest rates and inflation have been weighing heavily on the list lately, word that the administration might be considering some tax solutions for the nation's economic ills threw the market for a loss. "It is now going to take either time or some positive external news development to neutralize some of the technical damage that has occurred," the company says.

"Based on earnings alone, stocks as a whole are quoted at the lowest level in 20 years," according to the Walston & Co. market letter. Although hundreds of first quarter earnings reports chalked up big gains, the upsurge still was not strong enough to offset major declines in profits, the letter said.

Institutional investors haven't convinced themselves they can make money in cyclical, according to financial analyst Robert Johnson. As of now, the "big boys" are looking to the high multiple glamors, leaving parts of the list, such as steels, at bargain levels. As a rule, though, investors are on the sidelines waiting for some affirmative response to inflation by the administration. "We have frankly expected a Phase IV that resembles Phase II," he said.

Mid-Suburban League baseball report

Prospect entertains Forest View; Six teams still in North scramble

It's still early, but seven games have helped set up Forest View's visit to Prospect this afternoon as a confrontation of vital significance to the South Division standings of Mid-Suburban League baseball.

While the North Division resembles an expressway traffic jam at the rush hour, the South chase has developed into a two-team dogfight (it's still early enough for another school to get hot) between the Falcons (6-1) and Knights (5-2). They'll meet at 4:30.

Every game is a showdown in the North with just one game separating the six clubs. The two leaders, Hersey and Fremd, both face interesting engagements today with the Huskies traveling to Rolling Meadows and the Vikings entertaining Wheeling.

Other action set for this afternoon finds Schaumburg at Elk Grove, Conant at Glenbard North, and Palatine at Arlington.

In the North Division the chase looks like this: Hersey and Fremd both 4-2; Arlington, Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling 4-3; and Palatine 3-3.

South leader Forest View is 6-1 for a one-game advantage over runnerup Prospect. Conant stands third at 3-4, Elk Grove fourth at 2-4, and Schaumburg and Glenbard North tied for fifth at 0-6.

This is the way the action unfolded last Friday and Saturday:

Gary Wennerstrom

Buddy Hughes

The Knights were averaging nearly eight runs in their last games before Hersey came to town. While winning four straight during that span, Prospect was still plagued with leaving valuable runners stranded on base and in scoring position.

It haunted the Knights Friday, too, as it left eight aboard — including three in their most serious threat of the afternoon in the sixth.

With one out, Mark Blasco and Seiber coaxed back-to-back walks off Good where a wild pitch moved them into scoring position after a harmless fly ball to left. Ken Kalberg drew the third pass of the frame, but the trio was wasted when a strikeout brought the curtain down.

Good is currently working on a string of 17 and one-third scoreless innings dating back to the first game of the season.

WILDCATS TIP GROVE

A sixth-inning infield tapper broke up Gary Wennerstrom's hot-hit bid but the junior fireballer still kept Elk Grove in check while pitching his Wheeling club to a 2-0 victory on the Grenadier diamond Friday.

The triumph vultured the Wildcats back up above the .500 mark at 4-3 and kept them right in the thick of the torrid Mid-Suburban League North Division race. It was Elk Grove's fourth setback in six outings this spring.

Wennerstrom hooked up in a scoreless mound duel with Jim Emslie through the first four frames. In the fifth, the guests broke the deadlock without benefit of a hit and the tally proved to be decisive.

John Theriault opened the rally by reaching second on a miscued flyball to the outfield. Rob Henricks sacrificed him to third and George Kaage was then issued a free pass, putting runners on first and third.

When Kaage attempted to steal second, the throw went to third instead, aimed at picking off Theriault. The peg was wide of the mark however and Theriault trotted home for a 1-0 lead.

Wheeling gained insurance in the sixth through more legitimate means. Howie Brauer, Mark Madonia and Theriault all poked out singles with Theriault's shot to right center bringing in Brauer for the 2-0 edge.

Loren Crites ruined Wennerstrom's flawless performance by beating out an infield roller in the bottom of the sixth. Earlier the Green second baseman had lined one down to third and reached first safely but that one had been ruled an error.

Elk Grove saw another more solid hit wiped out when a runner on first at the time slipped on the basepaths and was forced at second.

Wennerstrom fanned five and walked four in upping his league mark to 2-1. For Emslie, who whiffed four and passed three, it was setback number two in three decisions.

PIRATES BLANK SAXONS

It's tough to be enjoying a three-game winning streak and still find your team in last place.

That's where the Pirates of Palatine are after posting a 4-0 victory over hosting Schaumburg Friday.

Still, the Pirates are in much better shape than the Saxons, cellar dwellers of the Mid-Suburban League South Division at 0-6. Coach Al Berman's boys are 3-3, just one slim game away from front-running Hersey and Fremd, both 4-2 in the North.

Palatine, seeking its first MSL championship ever, got off to a bad start with just losses and ties on the record. After starting out with two losses last week, the Pirates jelled and stomped Rolling Meadows 11-2 and Glenbard North 6-2 before knocking off Schaumburg.

Buddy Hughes' pitching, four timely hits, plenty of base stealing and a solid defense proved too much for the Saxons. Hughes scattered three singles, walked four and struck out seven, most coming when Saxons were in scoring position.

Palatine, 3-4-1 overall, was held hitless until the fourth by losing pitcher Frank Hannon. After Buddy Hughes walked and stole second, Steve Kirk's grounder was misplaced to account for the first run. Kent Mutchmore drove home Kirk after he had stolen second and third.

The Pirates widened their lead to 4-0 in the fifth. Rich Hoff doubled down the left field line. Andy Knotek followed with an RBI double to left-center, the strong wind blowing in preventing his shot from being a home run.

Buddy walked and both runners stole bases. Kirk singled in Knotek, but Schaumburg left fielder Sam Aiello cut down Hughes with his throw to catcher Mike Georgan.

Schaumburg, presently six wins behind the pace of South leader Forest View, appeared ready to win its first league game in the opening inning. Art Abraham walked, stole second and moved to third on a ground out. Brother Keith was hit by a pitch and stole second. Hughes ended the threat by striking out the fourth and fifth batters.

After a single by Pete Kowalski was wasted in the second, Aiello's walk and a sacrifice by Randy Anderson put him in

HERSEY WINS WHITEWASH

Tom Good and Brian Nelson combined for a nifty three-hitter to boost Hersey into a share of the North Division lead with a 2-0 blitzing of Prospect.

The Knights were bumped out of the South's front-running spot as a result of the whitewash and rest just one-half game behind Forest View with a 5-2 mark. Hersey and Fremd share the North roost with 4-2 standards.

The triumph was the fourth in succession for the Huskies who have blanked their last three opponents on a total yield of just seven hits.

Good, who has yet to taste defeat on the mound, hiked his record to 3-0 with five and two-thirds innings of shutout ball. The hard-throwing southpaw tired in the sixth, though, when he walked the bases loaded, but Nelson came on and whiffed all four batters in his one and one-third inning stint.

Hersey supported its pitching tandem with a run in the first inning on Mike Broderick's leadoff walk. Al Weichers' sacrifice bunt and John Kanellis' single to left.

Prospect starter Ray Seiber took command after that, mowing down the Huskies on only one hit through the middle four innings. Hersey, however, doubled its advantage in the sixth when Broderick again drew a pass and Weichers was successful on another sacrifice bunt. A walk to Bob Marzec and an error at short scored Broderick with the second run.

Meet Mrs. Cosell Busy Howard is 'full-time job'

(Once, the question most asked of sportswriters was, "What is Joe Namath really like?")

Now, the question is, "What is Howard Cosell really like?"

Mrs. Howard Cosell answers.
(First of Two Parts.)

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — Emmy Cosell, in the den of their East Side Manhattan apartment, sat under a jowly, beagle-like framed caricature of her husband and told a visitor, "It's shocking how serious a lot of people take Howard and how serious they take sports."

"Give you an example," she said, tucking her sneaker-clad feet under her on the puffy yellow couch. "Before he went to Miami last season to televise a Monday night football game, he received a petition with about 2,000 signatures. It said that Howard better not come to Miami because he may not escape alive."

"We talked about whether we should go down there." (She says "we" because he insists that she make all trips with him.) "Just as we talked when he got letters threatening to shoot him when he left the apartment. We finally disregarded the threats. You just can't live in fear. You have to just live. We know there are absolute kooks around. But some things just can't be controlled."

Maybe that's the Pollyanna in me.

"Besides, with so many really important things happening in the world I refuse to believe that someone can get so wrought up over a sports event that he'd want to assassinate my husband."

Emmy Cosell shook her head and ran a hand through her blonde-gray hair which is combed straight back, softly. Her blue eyes drew added color from her blue knit pantsuit. Her profile, says a photographer, is perfect. She has a slim, almost aristocratic bearing. "Almost" meaning she is not arch but comfortable.

Nothing like what her stereotype would be if anyone in his wildest imagination even considered that the Howard Cosell you see on TV — brash, sesquipedalian, loquacious, hyperbolic Howard — was married. Did his wife survive by clamping earmuffs on when Howard came prattling home? Was she the electronic age's answer to sainthood?

"There are people who really believe Howard is the way he sometimes comes across on television," she said. "Take the article in a national magazine about him not long ago. It ended with Howard staring up at the ceiling and saying, 'I am utterly fantastic, aren't I?' If he was serious you'd have to be a fool to live with a man with an ego like that for 29 years."

And Emmy suffers no fools. There is one in San Diego who can confirm that.

This is what happened: Immediately after the Muhammad Ali-Ken Norton bout, Emmy Cosell was at ringside. Her husband was in the milling throng in the ring. A man whom Mrs. Cosell says was "probably in his cups" was hurling abuse at Howard. Mrs. Cosell suggested he quit it. He didn't. Mrs. Cosell thereupon unloaded a swift kick to his shin. "Yes, I kicked the chap," she said. "I guess my Welsh-Dutch temper got the best of me. It was a terrible thing to do but it was satisfying. And he did stop."

"It was something I would never have done 10 years ago. I would have worried that it wasn't very ladylike. Now I'm just going to do my own thing."

Her thing, she admits, is usually Howard's thing, too. "Howard is a full-time job," she said. "My life revolves around him, though he denies it. We travel constantly. I'm his best friend and his sounding board." Her role is important, she feels. She represents stability, being less emotional than Howard.

At home, they wake up at 6:30 every morning and Emmy squeezes fresh orange juice for Howard. "Let's face it," she says with a smile, "Howard was brought up like a Jewish prince." Emmy says she spends her days taking care of two households — the Manhattan apartment and their country home in Pound Ridge, N.Y. "And I read, read, read — nothing very selective. I go to our library, pull a book off the shelf and start. I rarely read sports books — I'm only moderately interested in sports — although one I really enjoyed was 'Instant Replay.' I also chat with my friends. I see our two daughters (ages 27 and 21) — we're good friends, I'm proud of that, that they like us — and I spend time with our two grandchildren."

"Now, aren't you going to ask me about women's lib? Well, I'm all for it, but not for myself. Women should be allowed equal opportunity for careers. We are second-class citizens. But I'm content with my lot. I've never had a desire to launch off on a smashing career. I don't mind at all going to the shoemaker to pick up Howard's shoes that have been resoled."

Of course there's more to it than that. "The limelight is fun," she said. "When Jack Benny came over in a restaurant and actually introduced himself to us and said to Howard, 'You are one of the most important things to happen to sports in years,' well, to use an apt Yiddish expression, Howard simply quelled. And athletes like Larry Brown and John Mackey and Alex Karras seek out Howard's advice."

"Howard goes to campuses to make speeches. There are standing ovations, and this in an age where there's supposed to be an impossible generation gap."

"Howard wants to be loved. He is upset every time someone says something unflattering about him in the papers. I tell him he's just not the sort of person everybody can love. Especially when he is so opinionated and shatters the stereotypes that so many fans and writers want to hang on to."

Must game faces St. Viator today in league action

Even though it was the third straight game without victory, there is no real cause for alarm.

St. Viator was using many second-stringers in its non-conference game at Barrington Friday, which largely explains six errors — something the Lion regulars don't often commit — and three unearned runs allowed. Barrington used an eight-hit attack along with the miscues to win 7-3.

This followed a 3-0 blanking by Marist Thursday and 5-5 eight-inning standoff with St. Francis de Sales, both league opponents. Another big game, perhaps a must, comes for St. Viator Monday at home when it meets Notre Dame, which handed the Lions their first loss. Coach Pat Mahoney's group stands 3-2-1 in the Suburban Catholic Conference and 6-3-1 overall.

Bob Wagner pitched the first four innings against Barrington, walking just one and allowing five hits. But only two of the five runs against him were earned.

Ralph Kell worked the last two frames, giving up three hits and no walks.

St. Viator got on the board in the first inning when Jim Bucaro tripled in Bob Foster who had singled. But Barrington came back with two runs on a walk, stolen base, error, wild pitch and another error.

The Broncos scored three times in the fourth for a 5-1 lead on three singles, an error and a sacrifice fly.

The Lions got two of those runs back in the sixth on a two-run triple by Kell after a walk to Steve Bobowski and single by Rick O'Donnell, but Barrington again retaliated with two more on a two-base error, two singles and a steal of both third base and home.

Most likely, Lion ace lefthander Mike Cook will be tapped to start today's big game against Notre Dame.

North race tightens; six teams in chase scoring position. A fly out short that left Art.

Art Abraham singled and stole second after two outs in the fifth, but Buddy registered still another clutch strikeout.

The sixth had to be most frustrating for Schaumburg. A walk and a base hit by Aletto started the frame. Following a strikeout, shortstop Kirk turned in two fine plays to kill off the threat. He went behind second to take away a hit from Anderson, both runners advancing on the throw. Then he handled a well hit grounder by Kowalski.

Two runners reached in the seventh, but Hughes finished strong by forcing a fly out and strikeout.

HAANING IMPRESSIVE

With the monkey off its back, Forest View was able to think about just one thing — playing winning baseball. And that's just what the Falcons did Friday with a 3-1 victory over Arlington in an important battle of Mid-Suburban League division leaders.

The win, fashioned by burly left-hander Rick Haaning, kept Forest View atop the South Division with a 5-1 record while dropping Arlington back into the middle of the confusing North dogfight at 4-3.

The "monkey" for the Falcons, in the first four-plus games, had been the pressure of not having given up any kind of run (in nearly 35 innings) as well as not having lost. But Elk Grove took care of both of those delicate strings with a 2-1 upset victory Wednesday.

It didn't bother coach Tom Seidel's group — favored all along to win the division as well as the league — as it bounced back for two sixth-inning runs to break up a deadlock between Haaning and Arlington's fine righty, Dan Cunningham.

Each ended up allowing five hits, but Haaning walked just one and struck out seven in a fine display of control while Cunningham walked four and struck out three.

Ed Katzman was the plate hero, smashing a solid double to break the tie in the sixth on a chilly day. That followed a single by Dale Schoenbeck and fielder's choice. Greg Pfaff then poked one that had eyes up the middle for the insurance tally.

Forest View had drawn first blood in the third inning when Keith Semar walked, moved up on Bill Miller's single and scored on an error. Arlington matched it right away in the fourth on a walk to George Vukovich, a double by John Dillon (his second hit) and a wild pitch.

Scheduled games today for the two teams are Forest View at Prospect and Palatine at Arlington.

MEADOWS WINS, 5-4

Running Rolling Meadows stole five bases and a 5-4 decision from Conant to join the logjam of six teams in the North Division standings of the Mid-Suburban League, just one-half game off the pace.

The Mustangs picked on a trio of Cougar hurlers for nine hits before being forced to hold off rallying Conant down the stretch.

The Cougars drew first blood in this interdivisional clash in the bottom of the first inning when Jeff Ironside blasted a solo homer over the rightfield fence.

Meadows earned the tying marker in the top of the second when Rick Sidor drew a two-out walk, pilfered second and trotted home on the power of Mike Saugling's double in the leftfield corner.

Conant crept back on top, 2-1, in the third on Ironside's leadoff single and a misplayed fly ball to center off the bat of starting pitcher Ken Hubbard. Paul Gebhardt singled sharply to left and Ironside had crossed the plate for the second time.

The opportunistic Mustangs were back knocking in the fourth when Pat Earley and Sidor sandwiched walks around a Jack Lloyd double for another deadlock and assumed a 3-2 command when Marc Klomp legged out an infield hit to tally Sidor.

The Meadows margin ballooned to 5-2 in the fifth when Len Link and Earley both opened with infield hits. A wild pitch advanced the runners where Link scored on Sidor's bobbled grounder. Saugling then beat out the third scratch hit of the frame to push Earley around.

Conant refused to bend, however, and clawed within one run in the sixth when Mike Athacatis drew a one-out pass, held second on Dave Miller's single and rumped home on John Miller's base hit and two-base error to right that also boosted Mills around.

But Mustang reliever Carl Pedersen knocked down the Cougars in order in the seventh to preserve starter Gordy Johnson's third victory in succession.

FREMD IN ROMP

Larry Coughlin pitched six innings of scoreless relief and had plenty of offensive support from his teammates in leading Fremd past hosting Glenbard North Friday, 10-1.

The triumph was the fourth in six loop tries for coach Terry Gellinger and company and allowed them to retain their share of the narrow half game lead in the North Division ratings.

Coughlin came on after Viking ace Tom Roggenbuck had pulled up lame in the first stanza. The Panthers tallied their lone run of the contest off Roggenbuck in the opening inning but were overtaken when Fremd rallied for four in the third.

A five-run fifth inning Vike spurt then buried GBN. It was the fifth setback sustained by them without benefit of a victory this spring. They also lost Saturday.

Both the tying and go-ahead runs were forced across the plate. Jeff Brisson and Mark Otteman walked to open the Fremd half of the third and Coughlin's infield single loaded the bases. Gordy Stark subsequently was issued a free pass, pushing across Brisson to knot up the game.

An out later Fred Smith also drew a walk, sending in Otteman, and the guests were ahead to stay.

Keven Phelan topped off that rally with a two-run single. In the fifth singles by Bob Burke and Jeff Hanisch and Otteman's double, coupled with two more walks, an error and a wild pitch allowed the Vikings to increase their lead to 9-1.

Phelan rounded out scoring in the sixth by singling, stealing second, advancing to third on Burke's one base rap, and coming in on a ground out.

The Panthers tallied their lone run in the first without a hit when Mike McHale was hit by a pitch, pilfered second, moved to third on an error and scored on a wild flier.

Glenbard only reached Coughlin for four hits during his stint on the mound. And in earning the decision, Coughlin did not walk a man while striking out seven.

FALCONS WIN AGAIN

It was apparent right off the bat that Saturday's makeup baseball clash between Forest View and Glenbard North would bear no resemblance to the first meeting between the two.

The Falcons pushed across two runs in that first frame, the first time they've done that all year, and breezed on to a 6-2 victory over the Panthers to lift their Mid-Suburban League record to a handsome 6-2 — easily tops in the South Division with nine games still to play.

The same squads had met a few days earlier and struggled to a 0-0 standoff which was called because of rain in the fifth inning. It had to be replayed from the start.

But the Falcons, whose lifeblood has been remarkable pitching while they have hardly terrorized anyone at the plate, began to show what has been expected — that their lineup of veteran hitters figures to step up its run production as the spring wears on.

Their eight hits and six runs were easily high club marks for the year thus far, with centerfielder Gregg Fink leading the way with two hits including a double and driving in two runs.

Coach Tom Seidel was able to use four different pitchers and Glenbard could not score until it managed a pair of consolation runs in the seventh. Larry Monroe started and worked three sharp innings with one hit and three walks allowed to go with six strikeouts. Ken Meek worked the next two frames and Don Stevens and Jeff Kurz one each.

Brian McHale was the losing pitcher, removed in the third after allowing three runs, two of which were unearned. It was the first decision for both him and Meek.

The Falcons got started with two gift runs in the first. Craig Stiles walked and stole a base, Rick Haaning walked, both advanced on a passed ball and both scored on a two-out error.

A third-inning run was the result of three consecutive singles by Haaning, Dale Schoenbeck and Fink.

Forest View put it away with three in the fifth when Haaning was hit by a pitch, Fink doubled, Joe DiMaggio singled with two outs for two runs and Semar singled in the final tally.

Glenbard got on the scoresheet in the seventh on an error, triple and infield out.

Host Cardinals take 4th in 16-team feature

Highland Park netmen surge to rule Arlington Invite

by PAUL LOGAN
Tennis Editor

"A break here and there and we could have had THE trophy," said a weary Tom Pitchford, reliving some of the moments of the dozen hours he spent running the Arlington Invitational Saturday.

No less than six teams were within racket's length of each other in the middle of the afternoon. The hosting Cardinals shared the lead at that point with Deerfield at 7½ points. Two other teams occupied fifth place at that time just 1½ markers behind.

Then Highland Park made its move. The Little Giants captured both doubles events to finish with 12½ points and the top trophy.

Deerfield and New Trier East shared

second with 10 and Arlington was right behind with 9½. This qualified the latter for a trophy, but Pitchford had his sights set on the biggest hunk of hardware.

Prospect, Palatine and Hersey — the only other area teams among the 16 entrants — finished 11th (4½), 14th (1½) and 15th (½) respectively.

John Paczkowski, Arlington's junior second singles player, nearly carried off the only first place trophy of the tourney. He reached the finals before losing to Galesburg's Mark Parker 7-5, 5-1.

Mark's brother Dave captured the first singles prize against Bill James of Sterling.

Paczowski reached the finals with a remarkable comeback victory over Scott Reed of Peoria Central. After the talented Cardinal had won the first set 6-1, Reed had him down 5-2 and was within a point of breaking Paczkowski's service and winning the second set.

"I ached him twice in a row and then took the net," recalled Paczkowski. He battled back for a 6-5 tie and then defeated Reed in a tiebreaker. Needless to say that this was the highlight of the tournament for Arlington.

Other wins for Paczkowski were 6-0, 6-0 over Hersey's Dean Muenzer and 6-1, 6-2 over Homewood-Flossmoor.

Jim Merkel, playing first singles, won his first two matches — 6-0, 6-0 over Homewood-Flossmoor and 6-2, 6-1 over Niles North — before being bumped from the title trail by Parker, the eventual winner, 6-3, 6-2. Merkel lost to Highland Park's Jon Powell in the third place battle 6-1, 5-3.

The first Arlington doubles team of Dan Redig and Rex Miller just got by Bloomington 7-5, 6-0 before being bumped by Deerfield 6-2, 7-5. This Card duo battled back for fifth place, however. Falling along the way were Blue Island 6-0, Evanston 3-4 and the Prospect team of Bob Zimmarnack and Mark Meves 3-4 in the finals.

The Prospect team of Jeff Risteen and Charles Clemens repaid the compliment in second doubles, defeating the Arlington team of Todd Reese and Craig Van Gorp 8-4.

Risteen and Clemens reached the fifth place in this manner — following a pair of 6-0 decisions against Palatine's Dick McNabney and Lew Seevey and a 6-2, 2-6, 6-1 loss to Deerfield, this Knight combo beat Sterling 8-4, Arlington 8-5 and Ottawa 8-4 in the finals.

Prospect's John Waters went the farthest in singles. Playing in the top group, Waters dropped a pair of 6-0 sets to Sterling. Then he received a pair of default wins over Ottawa and Evanston before bowing out to Dave Caff of Highland Park 8-6.

Steve Ristow, playing second singles for Prospect, lost 6-1, 6-1 to New Trier East and 8-4 to Ottawa.

Palatine, a last minute replacement for Oak Park, recorded a couple of victories. First singles place Matt Borman lost his opening round to Deerfield 6-3, 6-1. He next played Hersey's Dave Schunk and won 8-0. After losing to Niles North by an 8-0 count, he dropped an 8-4 score to Ottawa.

The second doubles team for Palatine — McNabney-Seevey — lost to Prospect in the first round. The two Pirates handled Blue Island in the loser's bracket 8-2 before dropping out by the same score to Niles North.

Fred Hoegler and Dave Bals, the Palatine first doubles team, and second singles player Steve Snyder failed to win in two attempts each.

The same thing was true for Hersey's Schunk and the doubles teams of John Walsworth and Bruce McAllister and John Hastings and Alan Myers.

Muenzer, playing second singles for the Huskies, won his first consolation match with Blue Island 6-4 before losing to Sterling 8-5.

Wildcats, Cards making advance on golf ladder

by JIM COOK
Golf Editor

Arlington and Wheeling took giant steps upward in the dash for supremacy in the Mid-Suburban League's varsity golf standings as both captured double-dual meet triumphs.

The Cards' 167 bested splitting Conant's 171 and Elk Grove's 174 in a tense shootout while Wheeling fired 168 to oust Rolling Meadows' 172 and Schaumburg's 183.

In non-conference action, Palatine kept its slate perfect with a 333-345 decision over Lake Park in an 18-hole match while Forest View collected its fifth overall victory with a 167-174 triumph over Niles East.

CARDS SHUFFLE FOES

Arlington reached the .500 league plateau at 3-3 with a consistent assortment of low-40 totals by its improving quintet. Steve Sluka and Jeff Palmer highlighted the Cards' effort with identical 41's over Indian Lakes' Iroquois layout.

Steve Ringle was a step behind with a 42 and Steve Loughman carded a 43 for Arlington's 167 total. Jeff Cleveland toured the grounds in 45 strokes.

By virtue of its 171 middle score, Conant earned a split for the afternoon — losing to Arlington, but beating Elk Grove. Kevin Eakins headed the Cougar contingent with a nifty 41, but Dave Domek's 42 and Dave Love's 43 were important support.

Jim Gannon's 45 capped Conant's top four, but Bob Whiting's 47 was ready if a tie-breaker was needed.

Despite finishing third in the three-team field, Elk Grove boasted the meet's medalist in Scott Walker who fired a sparkling 38 — two over par at the Grenadiers' home links.

Elk Grove also got help from Keith Moore's 43, Mark Okuma's 45, Todd Gander's 48 and a 50 by Mark Christensen.

Arlington gained a sweep for the afternoon by also emerging triumphant on the frosh-soph level. The little Cards combined for 178 to Conant's 185 and Elk Grove's 194.

WILDCATS SWEEP

Wheeling pulled the same stunt as Arlington on its home course at Chevy Chase. The Wildcats captured both ends of the varsity and frosh-soph competition and stand at a challenging 5-1 pace in the standings.

Mark Bull spearheaded the 'Cats' bulldozer with a three-over 39 and was crowned the meet's medalist by a two-stroke margin. Vince Allendorf contributed a 41 to Wheeling's cause while teammates Bob Bloomquist and Dave Schultz carded identical 44's. John McDougal clubbed a 47.

MEADOWS' split was derived from 42-stroke totals by both Tom Carlstrom and Todd Sander. Carl Schweikert's 43 and identical 45's by Tom Schramm and Steve Nicoloff. The Mustangs were without the services of regular John Stald.

Schaumburg, one of several MSL teams forced to open the season against conference competition because of the cold weather that axed its non-conference schedule, stuttered to 183.

The Saxons parlayed Vince Troyka's 44 with a 46 from Joe Castrogiovanni, 47's by Leo Hoffman and Scott Richards and the 50 by Dave Hill.

Wheeling's underlevel putters also reigned supreme in the three-team scrap with 186. Rolling Meadows duplicated its varsity place finish with 195 and Schaumburg was forced into the backseat again with a 206.

PIRATES GET SCARE

"We were down by a couple of strokes when our kids made the turn," Palatine coach Mark Denny confirmed after his team's 18-hole match with Lake Park.

Trailing after nine holes is something new for the unbeaten Pirates, but they got back on track over the final nine for a 12-stroke victory.

Palatine was unimpressive in the first half of the meet as Bob Sobczynski totaled 44, John Loneragan 45, Jim Arden 42, Bob Capoun 46, John Capoun 44, Steve Pircher 44 and Bob Lawrence 51.

But the back side proved to be decisive for the Pirates who did an aboutface behind Sobczynski's 38, 40's by Loneragan, Arden and Pircher, Bob Capoun's 41, John Capoun's 44 and Lawrence's 48.

Lake Park returned the favor on the frosh-soph level, outlasting Palatine, 359-392. The meet was staged on Indian Lakes' par 72 Iroquois course.

SOPH SPARKS FALCONS

Rick Keyser proved he'll be around a long time and a thorn in the side of Mid-Suburban League opposition for at least two more years as the young sophomore fired a brilliant 39 in Forest View's triumph over Niles East.

Rick was only three shots over Arlington Country Club's par 36 standard and was easily the meet's medalist. Todd McDonald was next in line for the Falcons with a 42 while both Gary Mayer and Gary Willert carded identical 43's.

Niles East showed some potential in the frosh-soph competition by topping the Falcons, 175-194.

Liggett fires 1-hitter but loses 1-0 decision

It's gotta hurt when you throw a one-hitter and lose.

Jay Liggett did it on Friday for Maine West, accepting his first hill loss in five decisions.

Quickly developing into one of the area's top hurlers, Liggett gave Niles North a run without a hit in the first inning. The Vikings made it stand up for a 1-0 victory.

Right from the start, this figured to be an outstanding pitching match between Liggett and John Barnfield, the latter a highly sought prepster who throws seeds.

Liggett faced the minimum 17 batters during one stretch from the second through two outs in the seventh. Only then did the Vikings get their first hit.

He received three strikeouts while walking four and tamed the Vikings in rather easy fashion. Barnfield struck out nine and walked one.

Barnfield gave up just three hits. Two were doubles by Chris Bouchee and the other a single by Liggett.

"He's the best looking kid we've seen this year," Maine West coach Al Carstens said of Barnfield. "But we're very pleased with the way Liggett threw the ball. Just super. What else can you say?"

Niles North got its first inning run off a walk, stolen base and two sacrifices, the last a fly ball to left field.

Bouchee doubled in the fourth off Barnfield but was stranded.

The Warriors' threatened again in the seventh when Bouchee doubled again and Liggett singled. But with that pair at second and third and only one out, West couldn't score.

It was the second consecutive defeat for Maine West, now 6-4, which lost to defending state champ Niles West last Wednesday afternoon.

The Warriors' upcoming week includes games with Maine North today, Niles West on Wednesday and Maine South on Friday.

Troubled Norsemen ripped, 5-0, in tennis by Maine East Demons

You would think that two teams completely winless at mid-season could battle to a close decision.

But such was not the case on Thursday when the varsity tennis reps of Maines East and North took to the asphalt.

Each had been defeated in all six previous varsity meets. The Blue Demons owned just six team points all season. The Norsemen were in worse shape with only one.

So all that happened was East bumped North by a perfect 5-0 margin. Yet another indication of the problems at struggling Maine North.

In first singles play, East's Bob Weidner was a 6-0 and 6-2 winner over Ed Legatowicz. Blue Demon Tim Brosnan won, 6-3 and 6-1, over North's Chris Jenner at second singles. Dave Mozden handled Dave Hunter, 6-1 and 6-2.

Maine East's first doubles entry of Ed Passen and Bill Jensen was victorious, 6-1 and 6-1, over John Varnes and Mike Pearlman.

At second doubles, Blue Demons Kent Silbert and Jon Cwaygel got past Mark Hackett and Doug Sanders by 6-1 and 6-2.

East competed in the Maine South Invitational last Saturday. Results will appear in Tuesday's Herald. The Blue Demons travel to Deerfield on Tuesday.

Maine North will visit Wheeling today and host Highland Park tomorrow.

BANG-BANG PLAY. Arlington first baseman Dave Sherrow pulled in the throw just before Wheeling's Howie Brauer touched the bag during early game action at Wheeling last week. Sherrow later pitched and received the win as third baseman in the 11-7.

Hersey golfers 2nd in Conant test

Golf Editor

To a duffer, two strokes are about as meaningless as two whiffs at the tee on the first hole.

But for the five man golf team from Hersey, two shots meant the difference between winning or losing the most glamorous invitational in the area.

The Huskies came within two putts of claiming the top prize in the second-annual Conant Invitational, but Hinsdale Central (yes, they have a golf team, too) stole the title from the grasp of 27 challengers in the day-long Saturday affair.

Hersey, confined to the bridesmaid role down in Champaign one week earlier, shot a splendid 312 to lose by a nose to Hinsdale's 310. The Huskies were defending tourney champions.

Arlington also spent the day flourishing under new head coach Bud Bornmann. The Cards totalled 315 for a solid third and added to the impressive performance by area squads.

Forest View and Palatine both tied for fourth with only 318 strokes while St. Viator and Maine West deadlocked for sixth at 320. The host Cougars always save one of their best performances for the classic and did it again Saturday by notching eighth at 321.

Wheeling toured the Golden Acres 18-hole layout in 331 for 13th, Schaumburg, a surprising 334 for 16th, Fremd 335 for 16th, Fremd 335 for 17th, and Rolling Meadows 340 for 19th.

By stuffing places two-through-eight, the area can legitimately be considered a threat in state championship play later this month. To achieve their totals, each team played five boys, counting the top four scores.

If local team prosperity appeared stunning, the individual talent was even more startling. The two meet medalists both hail from the vicinity and navigated the rolling fairways and hard greens for two-over-par 74's.

Hersey's Ray Peterson accomplished the feat despite four out-of-bounds balls and St. Viator's Kevin Hanigan duplicated the dazzling trick despite double bogeying the final hole.

Joe Murken of Fremd was a near miss at 75, but took home a silver medal and Steve Loughman was in a three-way dogfight for third-place honors with 76's.

The Huskies were in fierce competition for the top pedestal from first tee to last green. The four counting members of the quintet went out in brilliant fashion, but the return trip was a bit more rugged and told the difference.

Peterson was the only exception in this case as he fired a 39 on the front nine before turning the corner and blistering with a one-under 35 on the back nine for his 74.

Jeff Kallman played his first nine at the par 36 rating but carded a 42 on the backside for a still impressive 78. John Haack likewise signed a 38 scorecard on the front while coming home in 41 for a 79.

Cal Zimmerman, Hersey's final counter, breezed out in 38 but returned in 43 for an 81. Bruce Conroy's identical 43's provided a worthy tiebreaker, but one was not needed.

Arlington, playing the brand of golf Bornmann knew his club was capable of playing, rode Loughman's 76 and two other sub 80 rounds to third. Loughman combined a par 36 front with a 40 on the back for his 76.

Steve Sluka was one over after nine with 37 and turned the corner in 41 for a 48 while Jeff Palmer parlayed a 39 and 40 for a 79. Steve Ringle was the Cards' fourth counter with 40-42-82, but the consistent Cards also had Doug Sandell's 41-43-84 for use.

Forest View and Palatine played the course on even terms but derived their totals by different means. The Falcons employed double 78's by Gary Mayer (40-38) and Greg Martindale (38-40) and a pair of 81's by Rick Keyser (38-43) and Todd McDonald (39-42) with Ron Romack's 83 (39-44) not figuring.

The Pirates, meanwhile, subbed 80 on three occasions as John Loneragan paced the team with a 77 (37-40) ahead of supporting 79's by Jim Arden (38-41) and Bob Capoun (38-41). Jim Sobczynski ran into trouble on the backside with an 83 (38-45) while John Capoun (40-45) rounded out the scoring with an 85.

Hanigan's nifty 74 derived from nines of 35-39, paced St. Viator who otherwise counted three scores in the 29's. Mick Fittom contributed 38-43-81, Tom McEnerney 41-41-82, Mike Brawley 41-42-83 and Larry Peffer 41-43-84.

Maine West earned a deadlock with the Lions off Glen Dalbke's pace-setting 39-39-77, Tom Grueter's 40-40-80, Jeff Potter's 39-42-81 and Paul Frost's 38-43-82. Mike Lopata stuttered to 46-44-90 as the Warriors' fifth man.

Conant, well accustomed to its home surroundings, counted Dave Love's 38-39-77, Dave Domek's 39-40-79, Kevin Eakins' 39-42-81, Jim Gannon's 43-41-84 and Keith Kellogg's 40-47-87 for another stellar performance by the hosts.

Wheeling had its ups-and-downs while finishing in a three-way pile for 13th. Mark Bull fired a sparkling par 36 over the front and returned in 42 for a team-leading 78. Vince Allendorf was the 'Cats' second man with 39-41-80 and Rick Groessl third with 41-43-84. John McDougal (44-45) and Bob Blomquist (43-46) offered the fourth counter at 89.

Schaumburg played its best round of the season and finished a respectable 16th off Vince Troyka's 39-42-81, Leo Hoffman's 42-40-82, Joe Castrogiovanni's 39-46-85, Scott Richards' 45-41-88 and Jim Norman's 44-46-90.

Fremd finished a step behind the Saxons with Murken's 37-38-75 easily the distinguishing feature. Ten strokes off their leader's pace was Cliff Garcia's 41-44-85, Lach Frew's 41-46-87, Mark Evans' 46-42-88 and Brian Brown's 42-48-91.

Rolling Meadows just missed its goal of finishing in the top 15 as Todd Gander fired 38-44-82, John Stahl 43-40-83, Tom Schramm 41-43-84, Tom Carlstrom 44-47-91 and Carl Schweikert 46-51-97.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Hitting the big one

Marcus' 4-hitter checks Maine East

Bob Marcus went the route with a four-hitter as Maine North scored late to whip Maine East, 5-1, in varsity baseball play last Thursday.

Marcus bested Greg Maloney as both pitchers went the full seven innings. Marcus is now 1-0 and Maloney 1-4. Marcus struck out five and walked four. Maloney whiffed nine and passed five.

Maine East went on top, 1-0, without benefit of a hit in the first inning. Walks to Ron Parker and Dan McDonnell left men at one and two. An error by North shortstop Neal Schawel let Parker cross with East's only run of the day.

The Blue Demons stayed on top until the fourth when North touched Maloney for three runs. They clinched victory with two more tallies in the sixth.

The Norsemen's initial rally began when Schawel stroked the first of his two doubles. Brian Bradfield then reached and Schawel moved to third after an error by Demon second sacker Dan Lowy.

North tied it at 1-1 when Bob Kelley grounded out second to first, Schawel carrying the run home. After Kevin Patten's single moved Bradfield to third, pitcher Maloney threw wildly to first, allowing Bradfield to score.

Patten got down to second on the play, then stole third and came home on a wild pitch after Dave Helton had walked. Helton was stranded.

Another Schawel double began North's sixth inning rally. Bradfield followed with a one-bagger that brought Schawel home with North's fourth run. Patten and Helton walked to load the bases. Then Bob DeMarco's infield ground out scored Bradfield.

Maine East's basehits were two by Lowy plus one apiece from Glenn Sedjo and Bob Lloyd. North also got a single from Graham Wiener.

The Norsemen upped their overall record to 3-5 and 2-3 in Central Suburban play. They met Glenbrook South on Friday in another CSL game. Results are elsewhere in today's Herald.

The Blue Demons stood in the throes of a five-game losing streak that has come on the heels of four straight wins. They were 4-6 overall and 0-5 in Central Suburban play before Friday's game at New Trier West.

Falcons, Saxons win; Cardinals top triangular

Track & Field Editor

There were very few changes, either on the individual area honor roll or in team standings, as a result of three Mid-Suburban League dual track meets plus a St. Viator outing Thursday.

Only one of the top five MSL teams, Schaumburg, was in action and the Saxons won to tie Hersey for third place with a 4-1 record. Idle Palatine and Fremd still are the top two with records of 4-0 and 3-0, but all this is just academic since dual records again do not count in official league standings. Everything is determined by the conference meet near season's end.

As for the lack of individual standout times, that could be blamed partly on the weather. It was quite cold for thinclads Thursday and in some cases they were also battling a stiff wind.

The most notable exception was Eric Porter of Schaumburg, who not only had the best times of the day by far in both short dashes but also moved high on the honor roll in both. He clicked for :22.6 in the 220-yard dash, second in the area outdoors only to a :22.3 earlier by Fremd's Tom Wistar and also won the 100-yard dash in :10.2, third-best in the area so far.

Two other Saxons also were double winners, Arnie Jackson and Bob Cummings, as well as St. Viator's Dave Jarzemycki and Arlington's Craig Bernhardt.

Teamwise, Schaumburg beat a respectable Glenbard North squad 77-51, Arlington won a triangular with 65 points to Fremd at Arlington, Rolling Meadows at Hersey, Schaumburg at Forest View and Forest View notched its first win, 70-55 over Prospect.

On the frosh-soph level, Arlington and Forest View won to remain undefeated and Fremd is a third unbeaten team in the MSL.

Jackson gained victories in his usual specialties with 10:01.3 and 4:39.3 in the two-mile and mile, while Cummings won the 440-yard dash in :53.0 — best for this day — and also took the long jump in 18-4½. In the same meet, Glenbard North ace Jay Maxwell posted the league's best 120-yard high hurdles time this year, :14.9.

Bernhardt led Arlington by running :53.4 in the 440 and :24.3 in the 220 to win both. Distance runners Bill Schmid and Tom Hohb traded victories in the longest runs and each placed twice.

For St. Viator, Jarzemycki won the high hurdles in :18.2 and the 180 lows in :22.3. He had done even better two days earlier in a league dual against Mariet with times of :15.8 and :21.9, although the Lions were easily beaten and did not have any other standout performances.

John McCabe of St. Viator had Thursday's best high jump for another win with six feet even.

Rolling Meadows' best effort, as usual, was courtesy of John Sloan with 51-2½ in the shot put. He was the only shot man over 50 feet Thursday.

Forest View's victory was led by Rich Nilsson and Mike Jule. Nilsson had his best 380-yard time and easily best of the day with 2:01.6, one of the top times in the area in '73, and Jule had the day's best long jump with 19-4¾.

For Prospect, Mark Turay placed in three events, including a victory in the quarter-mile with :53.1, and Mike Skelton ran the best 180 low hurdles time of the day with :21.8.

The next slate of Mid-Suburban duals will be this Thursday with four on tap — Fremd at Arlington, Rolling Meadows at Hersey, Schaumburg at Forest View and Glenbard North at Elk Grove.

Several MSL teams will compete against one another Tuesday in the annual Prospect Invitational beginning at 4:30 and continuing with finals under the lights. (A complete preview will appear in tomorrow's Herald). Hersey will host a frosh-soph invitational Wednesday beginning at 4:30.

CROWD PLEASERS. Highland Park's Stu Speyer, returning a shot, and Mike Barr put on quite a show for a fairly large group of onlookers Saturday at the Arlington Invitational. This twosome defeated Deerfield 6-3, 6-3 for the second doubles title. The Little Giants also won first doubles en route to the team title. Arlington was the area's highest finisher with fourth.

Cardinal tennis victories not normal

There was a slight break in the "normal" when Arlington hosted Rolling Meadows Thursday in tennis — the Cardinals lost a point.

After gliding through the first part of their schedule, the two Arlington teams carried perfect records. The varsity kept that record intact with a 5-0 victory, but the frosh-soph slipped to a 4-1 decision.

Maine East golfers 21-stroke losers

Maine East's varsity golfers had little luck with the Deerfield Park District course last Thursday, dropping a 179-158 match with Deerfield's Warriors. It was the fifth loss against three wins for the Blue Demons.

Low scorers for Maine East were Rick Silverman and Chuck Stone with 42 strokes apiece. Brad Kroll shot 46 and Paul Aschacher 49.

Deerfield was paced by medalist Hank Haney who shot a 38. Other Warrior scorers were Al Weiler, 39, John Brunlieb 41 and Jeb Bundock 42.

New Trier West, Maine East and Maine West will play this afternoon at the Golden Acres Country Club. East will play at Niles North on Wednesday afternoon.

first singles as he stopped Don Bohac by 6-0 scores. John Paczkowski was almost as perfect with his 5-2, 6-0 decisions over Mark Shannon. Don Rodig notched a pair of 6-2 victories over Stan Hilly.

The Cardinal doubles teams relinquished just three points between them — Rex Miller and Craig VanGorp over Curt Anderson and Charles Fischer 6-0, 6-2 and Todd Reese and Dave Mack over Larry Pressi and Paul Germano 6-0, 6-1.

Harper opens tourney play after two wins

Harper — a 9-0 victim of Oakland's earlier this season — receives its first shot at revenge this afternoon at 3:00 in the opening round of the sectional baseball tourney.

The Hawks are in a perfect position to get off to a fast start after a pair of big victories Saturday at College of DuPage, 10-8 and 8-5. This fine non-conference showing against the North Central Community College Conference league leader (the Chaparrals were 12-2 going into the games) made up for the 6-1 loss to Skyway Conference foe Triton on Friday.

"I think we'll score," chuckled Harper coach John Eliasik as he spoke of the upcoming Oakland game. "When we played them the last time it was a cold day, not too conducive for hitters. What they scored we gave them — six walks and three errors in the first inning.

"We've been looking better and better on defense. The kids are getting used to each other. But we haven't had the hits when we've needed them."

The tourney opener will be played at Southwest Park in Park Ridge.

That was the case on Friday as visiting Triton built up a 6-0 lead over the first eight innings. Harper avoided a shutout in the ninth on a single by Dean Sheridan, a wild pitch and an error off the bat of Gary Pemberton.

Sheridan paced the Hawks' five-hit attack with 2-for-3.

Terry Moriarty was the starting and losing pitcher. Steve Perry and Bob Frantell finished up.

Harper 000 000 001-1-5-3

The Hawks began a modest winning streak on Saturday by outlasting DuPage 10-8. It marked the first time in 16 contests that the defense played without committing an error.

Sheridan and Bob Chen were the hitting stars for the doubleheader. Sheridan, a husky veteran slugger, was 4-for-5 on the day and four RBIs. Chen, a speedy freshman outfielder, scored five runs after going 5-for-8 as Harper's lead-off man.

Luke Wolanski went the distance in the opener for his first complete game. Harper used three big innings to notch its sixth win against 10 losses. The scoring went like this:

First — Sheridan singled in one, one of three first-inning errors brought in another and Bob Andreas singled across the third.

Second — Mark Jesse drove in one

Dean Sheridan

with a safety, Sheridan singled in two and a double steal made it 7-0.

Fourth — Jesse tripled in one, Ray Carlson walked in another, Andreas' sacrifice bunt scored No. 10.

Jesse was 2-for-4 to round out the 11-hit attack.

Col. of DuPage 060 210 0-8-13-3

Frantell, Harper's starting pitcher was hit on the forearm and had to leave the second game. Perry went 3-2/3 innings to get the win. Wolanski finished up.

Following an error that scored the first run, Sheridan socked in another with a single.

After trailing 4-2, Harper regained the lead in the fifth on a two-run double by Fricano and a wild pitch.

Keith Steelman, who was 2-for-4 in the game, singled across one in the sixth and the other insurance run tallied on a passed ball.

DuPage let in the final run in the seventh on an error.

Honel was also 2-for-4 as Harper pulled its record within three of the .500 mark, 7-10. Three tourney wins this week would not only even things out but give Harper a sectional title.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

3 new series in NBC lineup

HOLLYWOOD — Helen Hayes and Dan Dailey are among the performers who will star in new, regularly scheduled series that have been added to the NBC-TV program lineup that arrives in the fall. Three new series announced by the network will rotate as segments of its weekly 90-minute "Wednesday Mystery Movie" series, along with a holdover from this season, "Banacek," which stars George Peppard as a private investigator.

"Banacek" was alternated in the season now ending with two other series, "Madigan" and "Cool Million," but neither of these will return. The three upcoming entries that will alternate with "Banacek" are:

• "The Snoo Sisters." In this show, Miss Hayes and Mildred Natwick portray "quaint sisters who write murder mysteries for fun and profit and become involved in solving real-life murders and mysteries in their spare time."

• "Farady and Company," with Dailey as "an American private detective who escapes from a small, isolated South American jungle prison where he has been held without trial for 25 years," and who has "one burning motive — revenge against the murderer of his former partner."

• "Tenafly." Winding up the "Wednesday Mystery Movie" package is this series in which a real comer, a highly engaging actor named James McEachin, portrays a black private eye (Harry Tenafly) whose on-the-job exploits are counterpointed by his personal life as a middle-class family man with the same problems as typical, less glamorous taxpayers.

Concerning the newly announced series, the feeling around Hollywood has been that "Tenafly" may have a pretty good shot at popularity. Let's put it another way: NBC-TV's press release about its three new series mentions McEachin's name first, and Miss Hayes second. "Tenafly," by the way, was created by the same fellows who created "Columbo."

New opportunities open

Women in the military

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Though not until the spring of 1941 was a bill introduced into Congress to establish a Women's Army Corps, the so-called gentler sex had not been immune from battle.

According to legend, "Molly Pitcher" received her nickname by carrying water to the men on the Revolutionary battlefield at Monmouth and even replaced her husband, Capt. John Hays, when he collapsed at his cannon.

Still another instance . . . Deborah Sampson Gannett is purported to have served in the Continental Army for three years under the assumed name of Robert Shurtleff.

And even though the American woman of today is not allowed to serve in a combat-oriented capacity within the military, pressures from the Equal Rights Movement and women's interest groups have in the last year forced the individual branches of the service to open up greater opportunities and careers to her.

"THE GROWTH of the Women's Army Corps is shown by the present shortage of uniforms," said Sgt. Pete Gregory, a recruiter for the U.S. Army in Palatine. He feels there are currently more and better career opportunities for women in the service than in the civilian world.

Starting salaries are good, he affirms. Enlistees in any branch of the service receive a starting monthly salary of $307.20. This is in addition to free medical attention, room and board, plus a 30-day paid vacation each year.

Women in the service do not experience wage discrimination. They receive the same pay as men of equal rank and are promoted under the same criteria which governs promotion of their male counterparts.

FEMALE COLLEGE graduates are inducted into the service as officers and women who enlist right out of high school are afforded the same opportunities and privileges given to men to further their education either during their tour of duty or after being discharged.

Though nursing is still the most popular of professions chosen by women entering into military service, there are new positions available that formerly were banned to the female sex.

"Outside of combat unit jobs women may apply for any job in the Navy and if she qualifies and meets the physical requirements, she may have it," said a Navy recruiter in Palatine.

"ONCE WOMEN in the military were stereotyped in either secretarial or administrative positions. Not any more. Women in the Air Force are currently serving in such capacities as carpenters and aircraft ground power mechanics," said Sgt. Bill Formand, an Air Force recruiter in Elgin.

"Our present problem is educating women to realize that these jobs are now open to them," he continued.

Members of the Women's Army Corps who qualify physically may become regular MPs and complete an associate degree in law enforcement during their tour of duty.

"A female MP has an excellent chance of getting a good civilian job when she is discharged from the Army," said Sgt. Gregory. "We have a referral service that tries to place persons outside in the same general field for which they were trained in the service."

WOMEN TRUCK drivers are also being effectively utilized in the Army and the Navy is experimenting with a new flight program for women. Six women are currently in flight training in Pensacola, Fla., and when they graduate, they will be eligible to fly certain airplanes including props, helicopters and transporters. Women are, however, still barred from flying combat airplanes or serving on combat ships.

Comdr. Elizabeth Barrett, the first female Navy officer to hold a command assignment in Vietnam, a combat zone, said during a press conference that she would like to see women right in combat itself, not just on the fringes. Comdr. Barrett predicts that if the Equal Rights Amendment passes, the military will have to drop the no-fighting rule.

Commander of some 450 men she added, "Having a female for a boss didn't sit too well with some of the men, but it gave them all something to talk about."

"The Air Force has no flight program for women and I don't know whether or not they will," said Sgt. Formand. "If it works out for the Navy, I suppose we'll go with one too."

"BUT WE HAVE no restrictions whatsoever outside of flying and combat positions," he continued. "Openings for women are definitely on the rise, particularly in mechanical and electronic aptitude areas."

With the elimination of the draft this year, a plan to increase the strength of the Women's Army Corps by 50 per cent has been approved contingent upon the appropriation of funds to build and improve housing and training facilities for Women's Army Corps personnel.

To enlist in any branch of the service a woman must be a high school graduate and 18 years of age. If she is under the age of 21, she must also have her parents' or guardians' written permission.

A WOMAN MUST also be unmarried (widowed, divorced and judicially separated women are considered unmarried) and pass a thorough physical examination. Waivers may be granted in special instances to women with dependents. The initial enlistment period is for either three, four, five or six years.

Attitude changes toward women in the military are showing up in many ways. Labels are becoming obsolete. A female is no longer always referred to as a WAC or WAVE but simply called an enlisted woman or woman officer.

Further information regarding careers for women in the military service is available through the individual local recruiting stations: Army, 359-7350, Palatine; Navy, 358-8210, Palatine; Air Force, 741-8837, Elgin; and Marines, 827-4261, Des Plaines.

Pfc. Karen Gawel

She's in the Army now

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Pfc. Karen Gawel is not sorry she enlisted in the U.S. Army almost a year ago. But like many military personnel she harbors few fond memories of her basic training period.

A 1970 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, the former Des Plaines resident is now stationed at Fitzsimmons Army Medical Hospital in Denver, Colo.

She's a pharmaceutical specialist. "I do almost everything a regular pharmacist does including filling prescriptions and dispensing medicine."

"There are very few women in the pharmaceutical field right now," continued the young private, who plans to take advantage of the free educational opportunities offered by the Army to become a licensed pharmacist.

AFTER COMPLETING her eight weeks of basic training at the United States Women's Army Corps Center at Ft. McClellan, Ala., Pfc. Gawel spent 17 weeks at Ft. Sam Houston in San Antonio, Tex. for special job training in pharmacology.

A profession to which she had not previously given much thought, a pharmacy career was suggested by an army counselor.

Karen decided to "join up" while a student at the College of St. Teresa of Winona, Minn.

Her roommate at school was enrolled in the Army's college nursing program and although Karen had first considered nursing, she later gave up that idea.

Undecided about her immediate future, she decided to quit school and enlist.

"If a girl doesn't have any plans after high school or isn't sure about college, I think the Army offers a beautiful position," she commented.

"THE PAY is very good," said Karen, who resides in a barracks on base but does have the privacy of her own room. "There are a lot of free benefits and of course a month's vacation each year," she added.

"I work eight hours a day five days a week. That's it. I'm on call if there should be an emergency at the hospital but the rest is my time."

Karen chose the Army rather than another branch of the service because she feels it has a faster promotion program. With almost a year of active duty behind her she will soon be eligible for the rank of corporal. After a year, she will also have the option to ask for an overseas assignment, a move she is seriously considering.

But one thing for sure . . . Pfc. Gawel is glad her basic training is all behind her.

"A LOT OF the girls couldn't take it, but my recruiting officer was very truthful. He said 'there is nothing good I can tell you about it' so I knew what to expect."

Enlistees of the Women's Army Corps undergo the same basic training as the men except for artillery practice and training.

In addition to stripping floors, daily inspections and loads of ironing, the female inductees also do a lot of marching and camping.

"We had to learn how to pitch a tent and then be able to camouflage it," she said.

"The hardest part, however, was getting used to the hours," continued Karen. "We were up at five every morning so we went to bed no later than nine each night."

"The sergeant helped to ease a lot of the pressure though. She tramped through the mud right along with us."

Democratic women make lunch date

The annual spring luncheon of the 12th Congressional District Democratic Women's Organization is Thursday at The Barn of Barrington, 1418 S. Barrington Road.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Jean Westwood, ex-chairman of the Democratic National Committee. A fashion showing of spring and summer wear will also be featured.

The cocktail hour begins at 11:30 a.m. Betty Spence, 541-1758, and Carol Bertram, 359-6144, are in charge of reservations.

Mary Sherry

Who's the dumb bunny?

When people have asked me how things have been going this week, I have automatically responded, "Fine." They should be glad. Certainly I do my share of moaning about my dirty house, my endless ironing and my children who must be taking money on the side to come down with the flu. But I rarely tell friends if anything is seriously wrong.

If I were the kind of person who did that, I would have to admit to their inquiries that I still can't find one Easter egg.

Fortunately this was our first do-it-yourself Easter. The kids colored the eggs, and my husband and I hid them. They easily accepted the fact that we had been doing the rabbit-bit all along, and they looked forward to the big search on Sunday as usual. When the hunt appeared to be over, and we counted the eggs, I realized there was one missing. With their new understanding-of egg delivery, it was easy to send them back to look some more. They were much more understanding about their mother's short memory than they would

KNOWING THAT THE ARMY Gawel, who as an enlistee was recently changed to easy-care fabrics for their basic training uniforms is a personal affront to Pfc. Karen own.

Have you noticed? Sweaters are happening in two these spring days.

After struggling the past several seasons with "mixing and matching" to achieve the right look for the layered look, women are finally having the decision made for them.

Short-sleeved sweater sets are in primary focus for the warmer months as well as anything appearing soft and feminine. The shape for spring is simple but not plain. And most important, everything moves.

Skirts are pleated, pants move in wider legs and the drawstring waist is gathering everything softly to the body. Although there are a few chemise and tent shapes around (the caftan is one good example), the waistline is mostly the natural one.

AND IF YOU don't think fashion has changed that much from last spring, compare the pants you bought last May with the ones you purchased just last week. Baggy make last year's wide flairs appear almost tapered. One thing for sure, jeans go on forever.

The shirtdress is springing up all over in soft crepes, jerseys and silks. Sleeveless dresses have their own jackets either matching in a suit effect or contrasting with bright stripes, geometrics or strong patterns.

The jacket is becoming an important clothing item in the total separates scene. It can be styled like a cardigan, a short blouson baseball jacket, a shirt jacket or a smoking jacket.

Tops are changing from the strict T-shirt look to a more feminine softer appearance. The short knit pullovers, though a step above the T-shirt, still retain their casualness. They go well with skirt and jacket, but also with jeans.

FOR EVENING the short, bare dress is back after quite an absence in halter and backless shapes. Remember spaghetti straps? They are being featured again on some of the gowns for spring and summer. Yet just as dominant on the fashionable scene is the long shirt-dress in crepe or silk.

Jewelry is keeping pace with all the new looks. Bracelets have wide cuffs and there are big chains, bangles and slim wires for neck jewelry. The big head choker and long strands of beads are the latest fad in accessories.

THE MATERIAL from the jeans you wear also may form the paper you write on. The Cotton Fiber Paper Council reports that rag content paper is made from cotton scraps left from the manufacturers of a variety of items including U.S. mail bags and blue jeans.

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Mention home remedies and my mind goes immediately to balsam liniment, probably because of the numbers of avid believers in its usefulness.

Right now, for instance, I am the recipient of several packets of balsam plant seeds sent by ardent users. One even included Alan Trout's famous liniment recipe in which a cut-up ripe balsam apple is placed in a quart jar, to which are added four ounces of witch hazel, two ounces of wintergreen, two cakes of camphor and the bottle is then filled with rubbing alcohol. This is left to stand from 24 to 48 hours and it's ready. Almost needless to say, this is for external use.

Nurseries do not carry seedlings or the seeds. Several seeds (as long as the supply lasts) will be sent to anyone requesting them and including a regular-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope. I gather that the best time to plant them is about June 10.

Dear Dorothy: My children went along with me to pick out a plastic shower curtain for their bathroom. However, when it was unpacked the odor was so strong they refused to take showers. Remembering what you said once about such plastic items, I filled the laundry tub with a baking soda solution (you've got all of us doing it), let it soak for a few minutes, rinsed and hung it up. No more odor and peace reigned again in our household. —Agnes G.

Dear Dorothy: Some time ago someone asked how to prevent soggy crusts with pies such as pumpkin. Thought you might like to know the method I use — it is guaranteed to work. Roll out the pie crust and fit into the pan. Put it into the refrigerator and chill for 30 minutes to an hour. Overnight is okay, too. Then bake as usual. The crust never gets soggy even if the pie is around for several days. —Mrs. Claire Reindl

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

TAKE A TIP FROM YOUR MANICURIST.

Manicurists use and recommend Ceramic Glaze by Fabergé. Used as a basecoat, Ceramic Glaze bonds to the nail for sealed-in protection against splitting and breaking.

Used as a topcoat, it acts as a clear, resilient shield, to prevent polish from chipping and cracking. Used alone, it creates a tough, shimmering "ceramic glaze" that lasts and lasts.

Ceramic Glaze by Fabergé. Recommended as the best way to care for your nails hands down. Clear or frosted, only 2.00.

SUMMER OF SEVENTY-THREE

CHILDREN'S THEATER WORKSHOP

at VENTURE HOBBY & CRAFT

747 West Dundee, Wheeling, Illinois

Drama workshops are not always intended to make movie stars. Some, as ours is, are to help develop creative thinking, communication and bring out a child's character by teaching self-confidence.

By using the small group method each child receives a proper share of the instructor's attention and yet as a part of a group each child gains confidence in their ability to contribute.

Classes are instructed by Nancy Navitt, experienced in all aspects of theatre. Class begins June 1, 1973. Call for enrollment.

Public Notice

The Village of Elk Grove Village proposes to sell the personal property legally described as follows:
One (1) 1962 International 6-cylinder, 500 GPM Fire Truck, Serial Number 614-A.
This vehicle has been declared of no use to the Village and, as such, surplus property. It will be sold to the highest bidder for cash — without guarantee, as-is condition and the award of bid will be final. The Village of Elk Grove Village reserves the right to reject any or all bids.
Each bidder shall submit his bid in a sealed envelope marked plainly on the front "Bids for 1962 Fire Truck." Each bid must include a certified or cashier's check made payable to the Village of Elk Grove Village in the full amount of the bid. Such deposits will be returned to the unsuccessful bidders immediately following award of sale.
Bids will be received at the Village Treasurer's Office, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois, until 10:00 a.m., Friday, May 25, 1973, at which time they will be publicly opened and read.
The vehicle may be inspected at the Fire Station at 666 Landmeier Road, Oak Creek, Illinois, (312) 439-2300, for further information.

It's more than meat...

'Scrutinize all prices'

Once again, I feel a need to voice my opinion. This time it is on food prices. Everyone is talking about the high cost of buying meat these days. And now, President Nixon has put a price freeze on beef, pork and lamb.

I wonder, am I the only one who feels the high price of meat is not all we should be watching? What about other items?

Do you know you can't even afford an Excedrin number 99 headache you've gotten over meat prices? A small 36 tablet bottle costs around 63 cents, which allows an adult taking two, exactly 18 headaches at 4 cents each. Provided it goes away in the first four hours.

How about for a bigger family such as mine? At our house it costs 11 cents a day, just for the privilege of using a soft, serviceable tissue.

If my children get a cut, it costs near 2 cents each for 87 cents pays for a can of 30 hand aids.

No! I get a stomach ache over prices it will cost $1.62 for a pint of Pepsi. The very same bottle I used to pay 24 cents less for in 1972.

When my teeth rinse out my mouth to use a deodorant so I don't offend my hair, or for my husband to shave will cost me well over $1.

When I go shopping, as I reached the counter, all I could do was look at my head. Almost every item going for 98 cents or more starting with milk.

Milk is extremely high. I remember paying only 85 cents per gallon at one time not too long ago. Buying milk for a family of eight you may suggest changing to dry milk. But, our doctor visits are few, knock on wood, and I will not jeopardize my family's health for saving a few pennies.

Like most shoppers, I find the store brand items cheaper. We now use margarine instead of butter, but the brand I buy has gone up 8 cents.

Peanut butter is not the answer, these days. It has gone up over a $1 for the large (economy?) size.

Breakfast cereal is my biggest beef. A small box goes for one breakfast at our house. I buy four to five large boxes each shopping day. Two boxes cost approximately $1.13. Buying oatmeal or farina gives a child more bulk and is a few cents cheaper. I recently read an article on nutrition, it said some of our dry cereals are even more nutritious, containing more vitamins than oatmeal.

Today's prices on flour, sugar, vanilla and the rest of the baking items make it even expensive to bake. Add chips or nuts to cookies and you find it cheaper to wait and buy them on sale.

Puddings are cheap, yet using two to four cups of my precious milk supply makes me think twice before I make it.

Here is a word to the wise. These new come-on macaroni and noodle dishes are not economical in my point of view. My choice is to buy a 2 pound box of macaroni at 41 cents, 2 pounds of spaghetti at 48 cents and a one pound bag of noodles at 39 cents. Some of those all in one boxes contain only 7 ounces total content. Think about it. Not enough to fill you even with the pour of ground meat you add, unless you happen to be a very small family.

Coffee is a favorite American drink, another item you hardly touch for less than a $1. We could switch to tea, but I'd like to think our people will rather examine all food prices and household and drug items, not just our meat prices.

In checking my grocery slips, I noticed it was not my dinner meats that constituted the bulk of my bill. It was the milk, eggs, bacon, coffee, cereals, rice, (went up 10 cents in one week), garbage bags, detergents, paper goods, household items, juices, cheese, luncheon meats, hot dogs, peanut butter, jellies, flour, sugar, cake mixes, lunch bag stuffings, produce, and my husband's luxury, cigarettes, that added up to an ungodly sum.

Men's wages have increased over the last few years, but what benefit is it, if food bills take such a lump out of it? These days a common working man cannot afford to eat, pay high utility bills, mortgage payments with high interest, car payment, insurances, household items, and not to forget clothing himself and his family and even hope to have anything left at the end of the month.

This doesn't even allow him money in case he gets sick and has to pay a doctor or for medicines. Why even a bottle of a well known cough syrup costs $1.25 for a 6 ounce supply. It contains exactly six adult doses or 12 child doses for children over 10. You have to purchase another $1.35 bottle of a children's syrup if any of your other youngsters catch your cold.

Again, I must strongly urge, it is time, for our people to examine well ALL PRICES and not just look at our meats.

'Abortion should be legal,' she tells Crane

Dear Rep. Philip Crane,

The issue which I am bringing up is abortion. Although abortion is now legal in Illinois there are groups of people trying to get a constitutional amendment against it. I feel that abortion should be legal. If abortion were legal anyone could have one within the first three months of pregnancy, and those who do not want the abortion still will have that choice. I feel that if the abortion issue was illegal it would cause more women to have unwanted children. These children would in turn be treated as though they did not exist. There would be more arrest on parents beating unwanted children. Although the abortion issue still is legally unacceptable to some people, I feel it is up to the woman as to whether she wants the embryo or fetus (which ever stage she is at). After all it is the woman who has to go through nine months of carrying the fetus. If a woman is raped she should have an abortion, after all she was forced into the pregnancy she did not want. God created us to live on this earth and progress. If he did not want us to have abortions it would not be brought up today. I feel, (I'm not sure about others) that these people who want the present abortion court ruling changed, are not ready yet to meet the changes in the world today.

I am 16 and some of my friends are between a year younger and older than I. The majority of us feel that the abortion issue should be and remain legalized. Those in the area of abortion may be too old to have children, so they feel it should not be legal. I know I would not use it but there maybe others who will need it and if abortion is there they would not feel guilty about having it done. With abortions illegal it would cause young and older women to go and have it done illegally knowing that they could get caught. Those who have had it done before it was legalized, have had doctors whose instruments were unsterilized and caused them to get infections which led them to sterilization. Just like sex, I feel abortion should be brought out in the open for people to realize just how much good it could have on the effect of the society. As I have said before the unwanted fetus could lead to child neglect and the over crowding of orphan-nages. With the making of abortion legal it could help in the one problem some parents face today — unwanted children.

'Continue the highway trust fund'

There's a folklore story about a man who bought a raffle ticket on a horse and carriage. When he told the family about the ticket, the kids began to argue and fight over who was going to sit in the front seat of the carriage their father was about to win. And soon the father had to shout out, "Wait a minute... get down out of the carriage!!!"

The story is to point out that often in the heat of arguing, we lose track of the element of reality.

That may seem to have happened with highway legislation now before the Congress. The thrust of all the ruckus is directed at "to bust or not to bust the trust fund." In reality we, as Americans, should ask how do we finance transportation. The "busting, no busting" argument is irrelevant to the needs.

We must have mass transit in large urban areas. It makes sense for every reason from public service to non-drivers to energy crisis considerations. The reasons are so well known they need not be repeated here.

At the same time, we must have a good highway system. The motor vehicle is too important to commerce and personal needs to seriously think of neglecting highway expenditures. By conservative estimate we must spend $600 billion on highway improvements between now and the year 2000 to stay even with the projected needs. Highways, too, make good sense from every standpoint from personal necessity right on through to energy crisis.

So then, we must look to Congress, not for ways to bust the trust fund, but for ways to give us all the transportation facilities that we must have. No one wants to call for more money on transportation. But when you look back, it's obvious that despite rising demands, despite inflationary factors and increased costs, we are spending the same on transportation today as we were when the Highway Bill of 1956 was enacted. Therefore, it is sensible to ask the American public to increase their expenditures for this important segment just as our own personal incomes have increased. Boiling this all down, here are some things we feel make sense.

—We should continue the highway trust fund as it exists now, dedicating existing highway use taxes to the construction of maintenance of highways.

—A transit trust fund should be established to provide for transit needs in urban areas. That trust fund should be separate from the highway trust fund. It should be separately funded from the highway trust fund. We would accept an additional 1 cent per gallon gasoline tax for mass transit, or a federal excise tax on automobiles, or disbursements from the general fund.

In suggesting this we recognize an obligation of all American citizens to acknowledge the role played in commerce and industry by city people. We should give support to those urban areas by helping solve their people moving problems.

We further suggest that any disbursements from the mass transit fund be made on a cost sharing, matching fund basis. This to discipline the use of dollars to actual needs rather than hope dreams and idle hopes. We would further restrict the funds to capital investments rather than operational subsidies. This because operational subsidy is a bottomless pit.

In all these two key points emerge. —We, as citizens, do not want to see highway trust fund monies diverted to other than highway use.

—We are willing to spend additional money for additional mass transit and we feel that mass transit is needed.

We appreciate any consideration that you can give to these ideas and would enjoy hearing from you if you feel that they are way out.

George Guderley Illinois Transportation Council Inverness.

Township editorial lauded

I am visiting friends in Cook County and am a long way from our home on the west coast. I was happy to come across the Herald which I consider an interesting and forward-looking newspaper. An editorial in it ("Township pays its patchwork," April 6) was especially rewarding.

Its concluding words read: "If salary levels are any indication, township government has shown itself to be a patchwork of unhindered governments providing widely erratic levels of service, with elected officials setting their own standards for their hours, pay and privileges." This situation is also true of government in general from top to bottom in our nation.

When governments are set up in a country, by dictatorial means or, in lands boasting of liberty, by democratic processes such as our own, those in authority see to it that laws are so devised as to give them — in most instances — the power to set their own salaries and expense allowances. Wouldn't it be just utopian if all citizens had the same privilege to say what their incomes should be? But ordinary folks are merely around to provide the taxes for the officials to manipulate — sometimes wisely, more often not well except to insure a very comfortable living for themselves.

Many centuries ago Plato, the great philosopher, dreamt that the ones to be entrusted with high public office should be philosophers trained to unselfishness, to true nobility and concern for all. His vision has remained to this day mostly a pipe-dream. In our practical, far from perfect, merely in an early-era-of-civilization world, society is liable to allow those who desire power overwhelmingly, who push, shove, knock themselves out, manipulate every string, bend and twist every which way, spend a lot of money, are often part of a political machine — to allow such people to climb and scramble to power. What can people expect then? That such individuals will not look after themselves, families, friends quite well, thank you? Of course, Mr. Me is ever in their consideration! There are exceptions, true enough, but far more run true to what is said above — would it were not so!

If humanity continues to exist for a long time in the future, it is to be hoped that man will become ever more civilized, intelligent, and above all unselfish and socially concerned. Eventually, society will select its most able and dedicated personalities to govern — not its most aggressive and selfish types. At such an era, those in power will happily serve their fellowmen at moderate incomes. They will feel honored to devote their minds, education, ability for the betterment of mankind, to be modest, thankful that society has confidence in them, considers them faithful, trustworthy, among its finest servants.

Meanwhile we must not hold our breaths waiting for such a future. We must do what we can to exercise some control over eager-beavers who strive for power for their own benefit primarily, who often serve us poorly. At the same time we must applaud anyone in authority who, surprisingly, is not of the common herd, who serves us well. God bless such, may their tribe increase!

He sees need for navy housing

I wish to take exception to your article of Wednesday, April 18, bemoaning the loss of the area to be used for naval housing. I am a resident of Arlington Heights and am strongly in favor of parks and recreation. However, I feel your article expressed a very narrow attitude. I am a veteran of the Vietnam War, having spent five years in the Navy. Although I was an officer, I know that enlisted personnel cannot possibly live "on the economy" in an area as affluent as the Northwest suburbs of Chicago without experiencing severe financial hardship. They must have naval housing. I personally feel that the land will be fulfilling a need that is equally as important as this community's recreation and will certainly make the future residents of that area feel welcome in our community.

Nolan criticizes Mayor Meyer

I'm a Republican and I'm proud of it. I'm a citizen of Rolling Meadows and I'm proud of it. There are lots of Republicans in Rolling Meadows and they don't apologize for it either.

When I decided to run for alderman of the third ward, it was because I thought I could make an important contribution to my community. It was a spirited campaign and I lost. That's the American way, I have a right to try and that's the American way, too.

So, it's unfair and untrue for Roland Meyer to insinuate sinister motives to my campaign. Of course, Bernie Pedersen knew I wanted to run because I asked him and the Republican Organization to stay out of it. He did not encourage me to run. If anything, he was negative and agreed with me that I should be strictly on my own.

Most of Rolling Meadows is in Palatine Township. Political parties are built around townships in suburban Cook County. We have a right to a voice in party councils in both parties. We're too important to be left out. It's getting so one can't even vote to elect the President for fear that in the process we might make the acquaintance of a so-called "township Republican" and be damned for it later if we want to run for local office. What's wrong with parties? Most of us belong to one or the other.

The Mayor has built his career on damning Palatine Township Republicans (outsiders, that is) for trying to take over Rolling Meadows. Of course, Meyer is an outsider himself since he lives in Elk Grove Township. It's convenient to run for office that way since it diverts our attention from close inspection of his record and the issues.

Come on Mayor, admit it. You're a Republican some of the time, too, when it suits your purpose — like wanting to be a Republican State Representative.

I enjoyed the campaign and am happy to report that I had support from people of all political persuasions.

'Devon Avenue needs widening'

Dear George Dunne, Cook County board president:

I am writing you in the hopes that something may be done about the condition of that portion of Devon Avenue located between Arlington Heights and Tomme Roads, Elk Grove Village. This particular road is one of the major roads used in the village and thus receives a large amount of its traffic. Parts of this road are in really bad condition. In the first place, the road is not well lighted. There are only four street lights between Arlington Heights Road and Ridge Avenue, a stretch of road two miles long. These lights are set back far from the road so they are hard to see at night. This makes it extremely difficult and dangerous for both the automobile drivers and the people living along this road, especially if they have children as many do.

Devon is also a very narrow road considering all of the traffic it receives. It is just wide enough for two cars. I feel that it should be widened so that it will be safer not only for those who drive on it, but also for those who walk or ride a bicycle on the shoulder.

In addition, I would like to point out that the road is in a deplorable condition. There are numerous bumps and rough spots all along this part of Devon. The lines in the center and at the sides are very difficult to see and in some spots they are totally faded away.

As a person who uses the road daily, I have observed the hazardous conditions. I feel there is need for many improvements on Devon and would appreciate your doing something to improve the general condition of Devon soon.

Forest City offers trained sales staff

There will be 104 "Fellows in Yellow" at the new Forest City store opening April 26 at 201 W. Rand Rd. in Mount Prospect. Fellows in Yellow are Forest City's special kind of sales person, brightly dressed and full of bright answers to every question a customer could have. They will be easy to find and easy to talk to.

They are salesmen highly trained in every area of Forest City sales - remodeling experts, painters, electricians, kitchen engineers. They know building and budgeting. They are familiar with the local building codes.

To wear the yellow a Forest City salesman must go through extensive training in Forest City's "College of Knowledge." It is here that each man learns the Forest City creed so that he may work with customers to build long lasting relationships.

Forest City looks for its salesmen to develop a following, customers who will continually ask for their particular salesman.

Product knowledge training classes are held on an almost 52 week basis and in many cases Forest City's Fellow in Yellow is taken to visit manufacturing plants to view the research and development departments to be prepared for future innovations. He visits assembly lines to better his knowledge of the technology of today's home improvement materials and implements.

A Forest City Fellow in Yellow is a specialized type of salesman who has been specially trained to help customers get the right product to do the job right the first time.

Retailers schedule Junior Art Fair

The Golf Mill Shopping Center, Golf and Milwaukee Ave., Niles will present its 5th annual Junior Art Fair on Saturday, June 2. All area high school and junior high school students are invited to exhibit their work in oils or sculpture.

Award ribbons will be presented for second and third place in each category for outstanding work. A special ribbon for the "Best of the Show" will be awarded for the finest over all entry. The judging will be performed by leading art authorities.

The young artists will be on the malls from 10:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. to discuss and to sell their work if they desire. Any junior high or high school students wishing to enter should apply to the Merchants Association, 308 Golf Mill Professional Bldg., 60648 before May 18.

The student should give his name, address, phone number, school, year and type of art to be exhibited. There is no entry fee.

Mrs. Georgia Collett of Glenview will be chairman of the fair.

DRAWING THE WINNER for the Bank of Elk Grove's 10th Anniversary Drawing were Lee Turner, Manager of the New Accounts Department of the Bank of Elk Grove and Charles Zettek, Village President of Elk Grove Village.

Mazda dealership opening in Des Plaines in August

Mazda, the only rotary-engine car currently available in the United States, will go on sale in Des Plaines on August 1.

Des Plaines Mazda, to be located at 900 E. Rand Road, is one of eleven Mazda dealers appointed in the metropolitan Chicago area. Continuing its national expansion program, Mazda plans to have approximately 400 dealers across the country by the end of this year.

The owner of the new dealership, veteran auto dealer Robert L. Journell, was selected from more than 2,300 applicants for the first Mazda dealerships in the Midwest and East.

Located on 196,000 square feet of land and costing more than $850,000, Des Plaines Mazda will be entirely devoted to providing sales and service for the nine-model Mazda line. This includes the first rotary powered station wagon, three sport coupes, three four-door sedans and a compact pickup, the Mazda Sport Truck. Prices range from about $2,200 to $3,200.

By opening day, Des Plaines Mazda will have a fully staffed service department with factory-trained mechanics and a complete stock of parts. To back up its dealers in the Midwest, Mazda Motors of America has more than $1.5 million worth of parts at its Midwestern Branch Headquarters just outside Chicago.

To date, Mazda rotary-engine cars have been sold in only 29 states.

The revolutionary rotary engine has only one-third as many parts and is one-half the size and one-half the weight of a conventional piston engine of comparable horsepower. This simplicity, combined with the rotary engine's greater suitability for use with sophisticated emission control equipment, accounts for the millions of dollars now being spent by General Motors, Ford, American Motors, Volkswagen, Mercedes Benz, Rolls Royce, and 20 other leading manufacturers to develop their own rotary power plants.

Mazda's leadership in the mass production of more than 350,000 rotary engine cars, sold in 80 countries, is credited with triggering the auto industry's interest in this design.

Mazda sold more than 57,000 vehicles in the United States during 1972 (nearly triple the 1971 total), with 120,000 sales projected this year.

Des Plaines Mazda, to be located at 900 E. Rand Road, is scheduled to open August 1. Explaining to Journell how the rotary engine works is Midwestern Branch Director Sid Fogel. The car is a rotary powered RX-2 sport coupe, one of nine Mazda models to go on sale at the new dealership next August.

Cornhusk dolls: popular 'old' craft

The craft of making cornhusk people has been spreading like wild fire. The popular 'old' craft is now being taught by craft teachers at Van's Arts and Crafts in Des Plaines.

Van's expanded into crafts during the height of the decoupage rage. The teachers soon learned the creative urge in the community was tremendous but stifled by the lack of qualified teachers and a good source of supplies. Since the opening of its craft section a year ago Van's has expanded to nine times the original space intended for crafts.

The staff at Van's is constantly seeking new and old crafts for the public by attending trade seminars, going to craft schools and hobby shows as well as listening to the needs of the customers.

tening to the needs of the customers.

Cornhusk people is an original American craft, probably discovered by pioneer women who sat around at 'husking bees' husking corn. The outer shell or husk was discarded, then some clever person started making little dolls out of them. The husks are bent, shaped and curved to look like dolls in various positions, sitting, standing, kneeling, or doing some chore. The actual skill of making the dolls is quite simple and one that anyone can learn in a short period of time.

The classes are laid out so the individual will understand and make the cornhusk people from the very beginning to the last finishing touches. The dolls are constructed of many layers of husks and tied in various places, then molded by the craftsman's hands. While many people save, clean, bleach and dry their own husks, Van's has them already prepared and ready to use.

The basic steps of putting the dolls together has been learned, they can be made into different figures doing various chores. A woman sweeping, a mother holding a baby and grandma knitting are some popular themes.

Outdoor scenes are created in wooden crate boxes, using moss, dried weeds and flowers and a miniature bird bath, hand made out of sculpture. Another way to place the doll could be in the popular ecology box, which is divided into several compartments. Here the craftsman could use corn, peas, beans, lentils, shell noodles and dried flowers to fill the different spaces and in the larger opening place the cornhusk doll.

Other construction projects include modification of existing Crossbar equipment to provide Dial Tone First and to accommodate TSPS to cost about $761,000; addition of a diesel power plant for standby power to cost almost $75,000; plus other equipment modifications, addition of more cable and duct work and replacement of vehicles.

Phone company plans for modernization

Central Telephone Company of Illinois will spend a record $18.6 million for construction and modernization of its facilities during 1973. Almost $16 million of this budget is earmarked for Des Plaines - Park Ridge and surrounding service area.

Included in this budget is approximately $2.6 million for new electronic long distance switching gear known as TSPS or Traffic Service Position System. TSPS is a cordless, all-electronic long distance switchboard which will provide faster service for operator assisted calls. The first 62 units of TSPS have arrived and are being installed.

The second major expenditure is $1 million for the balance of the cost of the fourth Crossbar installation, this one at Park Ridge. This new Crossbar will be cut into service at 2 a.m. on Sunday, June 17th and will make available Touch Calling service for all subscribers in the Park Ridge Exchange.

During the summer of 1973 bids are expected to be let on a $1.6 million three-story addition to the Des Plaines switching facility at 767 Pearson Street.

Elderly ladies given discount

Senior Citizens can now take advantage of discount prices for all services offered by Cameo Hair Designs in Des Plaines. On Tuesdays and Wednesdays the beauty salon will give a 1/2 discount to any woman 65 years or older.

The shop has four stylists and is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the discount days. Cameo Hair Designs is located one block north of Algonquin Rd. at 1173 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

A RESIDENT of Hoffman Estates, Mrs. Whiteford, was the first customer at the recent grand opening of Jewel at the corner of Roselle and Golf Roads. Joe Rafferty, store manager, was on hand to greet the customers.

Park districts' bond sales delays continuing

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling park officials still are scheduling bond sales for this summer, although a delay in receiving Cook County assessed valuation figures is hindering their plans.

In both park districts, residents have authorized the sale of more bonds than the current assessed valuations can cover.

By state law, a park district can issue bonds only for an amount equal to 2½ per cent of the assessed valuation of all property in the district.

Both Stan Crosland, director of Buffalo Grove parks and Wheeling Park Supt. Dave Phillips expected the 1972 assessed valuation figures to be released last week. Friday, however, they still had not heard from the Cook County Clerk's office.

"WE'RE STILL holding our breath," Phillips said. "It's really frustrating because we were told we'd know by now."

Wheeling residents approved the sale of $700,000 in bonds in last December's referendum. However, so far the park district has been able to sell only $800,000 worth of the bonds because the assessed valuation has not been high enough to cover the entire sale.

Phillips said as soon as the new assessed valuation figures become official, the Wheeling park board will sell the remaining $100,000 in bonds.

A 1971 referendum gave the Buffalo Grove Park District the authority to issue $1,250,000 in bonds. However, again because the assessed valuation of the district was too low to cover all the bonds, park officials have been forced to wait to sell the remaining $250,000 worth.

Crosland said he was told by officials in the county clerk's office that they plan to begin releasing figures on Cook County assessed valuations this week, beginning with information on townships in the southwest corner of the county. He said he was told it could be another two or three weeks before Wheeling Twp. numbers are known.

CROSLAND HAS said that it is crucial for the Buffalo Grove park district to sell its remaining bonds before the general obligation bond interest rate drops from 7 per cent to 5 per cent June 30. He feels it would be difficult for the district to sell the bonds at the lower interest rate.

Besides delaying their bond sales, the lack of information on assessed valuations is also holding up the completion of both park district budgets.

"Actually, this delay is holding up work on all our projects because we can't finish the budget," Phillips said. "There are several major purchases we need to make this summer and we're anxious to get going on them," he added.

Insight out

OUCH: Wheeling Village Pres. Ted Scanlon showed village residents the strength of his gavel at Monday night's board meeting. When the meeting began to get noisy, he banged his gavel so hard that he knocked a painting out of its frame on the council chamber's wall.

WTA? Wheeling government seems to be falling prey to the abbreviation syndrome. Trustee Michael Valenza caused some confusion during employee negotiations by continually referring to the WTA. When asked what the WTA was, Valenza said, "That's the Wheeling Transit Authority."

Wheeling operates one village bus and maintains its own vehicles through the public works department.

JOHN Q. SPEAKS. Retired Buffalo Grove village trustee Edward Fabish, stuck around after his successor was sworn in Monday night to watch the rest of the board meeting. Following a discussion by the board, Fabish raised his hand and was recognized by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong. "As an interested citizen, I would like to make this comment," Fabish said.

THE EXPERT. Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg, considered by many to be Buffalo Grove's authority on everything of a technical nature, surprised everyone Monday night. Following a question by a trustee concerning the operation of a generator, Seaberg paused for a second and replied, "Don't ask me, all I can do is wire a wall socket."

JUMP IN! During a discussion about flooding before the village board, trustee Jerry Driscoll, whose home is plagued by flooding, aptly commented, "As long as we're talking about water, can I just jump in for a second?"

No village board tonight

There will be no Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting tonight.

The trustees do not normally meet on the fifth Monday of a month.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, May 7 at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Summer school for handicapped slated

by JILL BETTNER

Handicapped children in School Dist. 21 who attend Kirk Center in Palatine or Dwyer School in Arlington Heights have the opportunity this year to participate in new special education summer school classes at the schools.

Each of the 10 member school districts in the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) has the option of paying the tuition for children in their area to take the classes, which are offered for the first time this summer. The program was developed by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO).

The Dist. 21 school board has agreed to pay the tuition fees for the 45 children in the district who are eligible for the NSSEO summer program, plus their transportation costs. Lois King, spokeswoman for NEC, said the other nine NEC members also will participate in the program.

"There are some kids who need stimulation and educational effort for prolonged periods," said Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 research coordinator. "When summer break comes, there is often a regression. The purpose of this program is to maintain the skills that have been developed during the year using different approaches in the summer."

THE PROGRAM at Kirk is designed for mentally-retarded and multiple-handicapped children. Daily sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. are scheduled from June 18 through July 16 for elementary children and June 18 to July 30 for older children.

The cost per pupil to Dist. 21 for the Kirk program is estimated by NEC officials at $68 per pupil for elementary children and $158 for older children.

The program at Dwyer School, which provides for emotionally disturbed children, is planned for June 18 to July 6 at a cost of $142 per pupil. A second session also will be conducted from July 9 to July 27, but it will not be financed by the school districts. Parents of children who attend the second session will bear the cost.

Wynn said currently some special education students in Dist. 21 are able to attend regular summer school classes of-

"That's always half the battle."

Winter said that keeping patients calm often is difficult. "The tapes should be a good thing for settling them down," he said. "Sometimes we just run out of things to say. Now, if that happens we can just put in a tape."

Lt. James Hansen said the department will have to keep a large selection of tapes on hand. "We're going to have to Country and western, light opera or whatever," Hansen said.

THE AMBULANCE, which arrived about three weeks ago, was lettered and put into service last week. Half of the $17,000 cost was paid for with funds from the State Highway Safety Act. The funds actually come from the federal government, but are administered by the state. The fire department paid the remaining 50 per cent of the cost of the vehicle.

The new vehicle is the latest in ambulance design, Winter said. It is a modular truck, which means the cab and chassis can be separated from the patient compartment. This will save the department money in future years, he said.

Instead of having to replace the ambulance in three years, Winter said, the department will only have to replace the cab and chassis. "The cab and chassis will wear out much faster than the patient compartment," he said. "This way we can just lift that box (patient compartment) off and put it on a new chassis and we've got a new ambulance."

The total cost for replacing the cab and chassis will be about $3,500 as opposed to $12,000 or more if the entire ambulance was replaced, Winter said.

The patient compartment on the new ambulance is much bigger than those on other ambulances. "A paramedic can stand straight up in this truck and move around without being cramped for space," Winter said. If there is a disaster, the ambulance is equipped to carry as many as five persons comfortably. More could be carried if necessary, he added.

THE NEW RESCUE truck has broken a tradition of the Buffalo Grove Fire Department. It is the first vehicle they have had that is not painted red. The ambulance is white with an orange stripe around it.

Winter said the color code is set by the federal government. Because the ambulance was bought partially with federal funds, the government requires it to be painted orange and white. Winter said the color makes it easier for people to see it coming down the street.

Just in case the color is not enough for drivers to see, the ambulance is equipped with 20 flashing lights. "It lights up like a Christmas tree," Hansen said. "It's just about impossible for someone not to see us coming."

The rescue truck also has "ambulance" spelled backward across the front of its hood. "This is so a driver can read it through his rearview mirror when the ambulance is behind him," Winter said. "He can then move over to the side of the road and let us pass."

THE BUFFALO GROVE Fire Department's new ambulance, one of the most modern ever built, began service last week. In the event of a disaster, the ambulance can carry as many as five persons comfortably. Lt. James Hansen demonstrates some of the equipment on the ambulance. The $17,000 cost of the vehicle was shared equally by the department and the federal government.

Democratic governors gathered in Huron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Rose-

The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

Seeks review of scattered precinct totals

Wolf asks city to look again at election count

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

David Wolf filed a last-minute petition Friday for examination of mayoral election ballots in 10 Des Plaines precincts.

Wolf lost the mayoral race to Mayor Herbert Behrel on April 17 by 166 votes.

The one-page petition, filed by Dan Morava, a Wolf adviser, names scattered precincts, including Ward 7, precinct 1 that was questioned by the city council's canvass committee last week. The result at Church of the Master showed Behrel with 162 votes, Wolf with 110 and Burton Kosmen with 1 — a total of 273 votes. But, the judges report listed only 230 votes cast in the precinct.

Wolf carried only two of the 10 precincts challenged — both by small margins. He lost four by more than 60 votes — including Ward 3, precinct 1 where Behrel's margin was 298 to 179.

Wolf was unavailable for comment and was reportedly on a post-election, week-end vacation at his farm near Peoria.

Morava refused to explain how Wolf selected the challenged precincts from 41 open for the election. State statute limits the ballot check to 25 per cent of election precincts.

The filing prompted City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach to seek a written opinion from City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi that explains discovery procedure.

First check of state law indicated that Morava filed only half of required discovery cost. Although the statute lists discovery cost at $5 per precinct for county elections, a separate section states that municipal cost is $10.

Morava included a $50 cashier's check with two copies of the petition.

State law requires Mrs. Rohrbach to give written notice of the petition to the election winner, Behrel, and, within three days of the notice, to reconvene the canvass committee for ballot examination.

The recheck will be public.

Results of the discovery do not affect Behrel's 5,830 to 5,664 victory, but the finding can provide basis of a recount petition to examine the 12,323 ballots cast throughout the city. The recount, which can be filed within 30 days of the election, can lead to a new, official vote result in the mayoral race.

"I couldn't see him (Behrel) throwing any stumbling block in the way of this," Mrs. Rohrbach, who backed the mayor for reelection, said. Behrel was unavailable for comment.

At the canvass last week Wolf criticized city election procedure. "The judges definitely didn't know what they were doing. There definitely was a lack of instruction — voter education," Wolf suggested, without success, that the council order a recount "to assure the public that the election machinery was proper."

The canvass showed that 114 ballots were "spoiled" and not counted.

"Were the ballots counted properly? Was the total ballot thrown out, incorrectly, if only one race was marked bad?" Wolf said last week.

Wolf backers last week hinted that precinct watchers and voter reports pinpointed irregularities and recount precincts.

A similar recount was requested in 1969 when Dr. Gerald Meyer lost an aldermanic election by less than 40 votes to Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi in the 7th Ward. Bonaguidi did not seek reelection this year and Meyer ran, unopposed, for the council seat.

The election ballots have been sealed in a Des Plaines bank vault since last Wednesday.

The precincts that are being challenged include: 1st Ward, precinct 4, Knights of Columbus Hall, 760 Pearson St.; 2nd Ward, precinct 2, Regular Baptist Press, 1800 Oakton St.; 3rd Ward, precinct 1, St. Martin's Church, 1069 Thacker St.; 3rd Ward, precinct 2, Algonquin School, 767 Algonquin Rd.; 4th Ward, precinct 1, West Park, 651 Wolf Rd.; 4th Ward, precinct 3, Terrace School, 735 Westgate Rd.; 5th Ward, precinct 1,

Environmental commission launches four projects

The wheels of Des Plaines environmental control commission are finally moving.

Delayed for more than a year by lack of member appointments, the commission pushed through an organization session last week and launched four research projects to provide background for environmental investigations here.

The projects include:

- Examination of city ordinances that affect the environment. Des Plaines has noise, air pollution and detergent ordinances.

- Surveying neighboring municipalities to seek copies of environment ordinances and problem approaches. The questionnaire will aim at a "coordinated" suburban drive against pollution.

- Definition of commission powers. The council, in creating the environmental panel, abolished the air pollution appeals board and defined duties as "investigating complaints . . . initiate investigations . . . disseminate information." Members asked if the commission can require environmental improvements "and make them stick."

- Investigation of handbill distribution here. The door-to-door flyers often litter lawns and alleyways, members said.

The nine-member commission, approved by the city council April 2, named Richard Tabatt chairman. Tabatt, a Jaycee and member of the Citizens Environmental Commission, was not included in Mayor Herbert Behrel's list of commission nominees, but won appointment in council balloting.

The commission, which has scheduled meetings at 8 p.m. the fourth Wednesday of every month, asked Philip Lindahl, city environmental controls officer, to report May 23 on his work since hiring in 1972 and list environmental goals and problems.

United annexation battle dropped

A four-year-old annexation battle among Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and United Air Lines ended last week.

Mount Prospect voluntarily dismissed its suit Thursday to annex some 150 to 200 acres of land south of Algonquin Road, west of Elmhurst Road and north of the Northwest Tollway. Both Des Plaines and United Air Lines in 1969 asked that the suit be dismissed and the case had been under advisement by Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy since that time.

Des Plaines had charged the annexation was in part a strip annexation and United objected because part of its property was being annexed against its wishes. A strip annexation provides access to larger parcels a municipality wants to annex.

Mount Prospect had its suit dismissed because a few hours later it was going to, and did, annex properties along Elmhurst Road south to Oakton Street. These were industrial parcels along Nordic Road and the Colony development.

The Colony development will be made up of 704 apartment units, a 256-room hotel, a retail center and an office-financial center at the northwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Roads. A 450-seat movie theater also proposed for the 31-acre site was removed Thursday because it presented parking problems.

The lawsuit was dismissed "with prejudice," meaning that it cannot be reinstated by the village.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he was surprised that both Des Plaines and United objected to the village's dismissal motion. Teichert said that voluntary annexations, such as the two made Thursday night, are still possible in the disputed area. He said he did not know if involuntary annexations of smaller parcels would be permitted because of the dismissal with prejudice.

"It put us on the alert," Teichert said of Des Plaines' objection last week, "that Des Plaines is not content in seeing the area stabilized."

Charles Hug, assistant Des Plaines city attorney, said Friday that Des Plaines wanted the suit dismissed with prejudice so that it could not be brought (Continued on page 3)

As a seven-day truce called by the Republican Army in Londonderry moved into its final hours, the British Army said it was the worst week of IRA violence in Belfast this year. In the final 48 hours preceding the truce's end, IRA snipers killed two British soldiers in unprovoked attacks, the army said. The death toll is now 780 in four years of violence.

Israeli authorities are girded for an Arab guerrilla attack during 25th anniversary celebrations on May 7, a spokesman for the Israeli national police said. The spokesman said a military parade in Jerusalem is the most likely target.

DES PLAINES

Rain doesn't stymie hunt

Despite inclement weather, large crowds of youngsters showed up Saturday morning, as the Des Plaines Park District conducted its annual Easter Egg Hunt at Rand, South and West parks. Easter baskets were awarded as prizes at each park for finding "special" eggs and ribbons were awarded to the winners of the Easter Egg decorating contest.

The results: Rand Park — Egg Decorating Contest: most unusual, Pam Mesath; most colorful, Julie DeGrenier; funniest, Mary Carol Boemmel; most creative, Michelle Heyden. Basket award winners: Dawn Gardner, Tami Wilberscheid, Bobby Rash, Paul Cajda.

South Park — Egg decorating contest: most unusual, Jo Ann Jacoby; most colorful, Gus Spillone; most creative, Brenda McAvoy. Basket award winners: Joyce Tremblay, Doreen Augustynowicz, Alice Dahm, Nancy Naegele.

West Park — Egg decorating contest: most unusual, Karen Rieck and Erica Brubaker; most colorful, Barbara Rieck, Jeff Fitzgerald, and Linda Rieck; funniest, Susan Rieck; most creative, Mrs. Stoner, Tara Lynn and Karen Stoner. Basket award winners: Steve Smuk, John Kiraly, Julie Schick, Jenny Field.

'Fiddler' to be performed

The musical "Fiddler On The Roof" will be performed by a cast and crew of 85 students of Adlai E. Stevenson School, 9000 Capitol Drive, Des Plaines. There will be four performances — two at 9 a.m. and two at 7:30 p.m. on May 3 and 4 in the school gym. Parents and friends are invited.

Sixty 4th to 6th grade students will have stage roles:

Jeffrey Bersh will play Tevye; Andrea Lubelfeld and Dana Diugatch will play Golde. Others in the cast include Maria Gamze as Tzeitel, Melissa Luburich and Nancy Heller as Hodel, Marci Manaster and Andrea Strauss as Chava, Mark Malter and Brett Livengood as Motel, Kenny Rice as Perchik, and Eric Coker as Fyedka. Yente will be played by Caroline Donatelli and Sheryl Schatz; Chuck Edelberg and Stephen Levy are Lazar Wolf.

The cast also includes Denise Stoll and Kim Murdock as Shprintz, Abby Helfand and Robin Rosansky as Bielke, Pam Lubelfeld and Marci Heichman as Rivke, Marcy Wise and Beth Harris as Khane, Tony Zirlin as Mendel, Brian Cohen as the Rabbi, Clay Taylor and Bruce Glickman as Mordechai, Paul Moravio as Avram, Pat McGinn as Yussel, Diane Hull as Frumeh-Sarah, Joy Goroshnik as Grandmother Tzeitel, Phillip Exel as the Corstabelle, Mark Treisman as Nahum, the Beggar, Barry Epstein as Sasha, and Scott Kessler as the Fiddler.

THE VILLAGERS include Annabelle Honza, Patty Shively, Debbie Freeman, Linda Milgrom, Nancy Leifer, Laurie Mikell, Susan Borkan, Dana Applebaum, Sandy Westman, Lori Gruen, Michelle Rader, Mari Abern, Dee Francis, Laura Skirpan, Mary McManamin, Olympia Nava, Corina Carbajal, Barbara Kiser, Arlene Bailey, Debbie Benjamin, and Oramay Brzoska. The Russians will be played by Craig Saxner and Murray Weiniger.

Chuck Gordon and Chip Obuchowski are the stage managers. Members of the crew include Michael Hahn, Mark Pastorski, Joe Crigler, Tom Bruzan, and Lon Harelson on lights; other crew members are Anna Sulac, Scott Kessler, Jim Vitson, Martin Berman, Chris Cuchy, Mike Mermel, Tom Wolf, Jim Gaul, Scott Roney, Andy Shum, Bob Knutson, Lionel Cohen, Mike Hoffman, Todd Richard, Mark Brushert, Dan Heyman, Steven Levin, and Steven Rosenberg.

Mrs. Eileen Carlisle is director of the show. Mrs. Lorraine Paul is in charge of costumes and the dance rehearsals; J. Burke Quinn is in charge of scenery construction and crew; Mrs. Vivian Channon is the dramatic coach; Mrs. Elene Heichman has done the choreography for the show. Miss Jeannette Betel assisted Quinn in set construction, and Mrs. Madeline Hobik is choral director.

Resident in 'Fiddler' cast

Steve Mirro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Mirro, 844 Greenview, Des Plaines, has been cast in "Fiddler on the Roof," the joint spring quarter production of the School of Music and The University Theatre, Eastern Illinois University, Charleston.

Steve will portray the role of a villager in the play, which depicts peasant life in turn-of-the-century Russia.

"Fiddler on the Roof" will be presented May 3, 4, 5, 7, and 8 at 8 p.m. and May 6 at 2 p.m. in the Fine Arts Concert Hall. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children, and 75 cents for EIU students. Tickets will go on sale April 30 at the college and by calling 581-3110 between noon and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Doctors divided on abortion issue

About 38 doctors at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights have voted in favor of performing abortions at the hospital and 34 voted against, a hospital source told the Herald.

The vote came at a full staff meeting April 18, he said. There are 170 doctors on the staff at the hospital and the Herald Thursday reported that all those doctors were present and voted on the abortion resolution.

"There are lots of doctors who don't live in the area and don't attend staff meetings, according to a doctor who was at the meeting and voted on the resolution.

There are 16 doctors in the hospital's department of obstetrics and gynecology who would perform the abortions. According to the source, eight voted in favor and eight opposed the resolution.

THE BOARD OF trustees at Northwest Community Hospital has the final decision on the abortion question and may consider the matter at a meeting Monday night.

The federal Supreme Court ruled in January that women have the right to abortions during the first three months of pregnancy. In March the law officially was changed to allow abortions in Illinois.

The board of trustees wanted a consensus of opinion by staff doctors and some doctors apparently wanted the hospital to make some decision on abortions.

"I suspect the board will approve it (abortion)," a doctor at the hospital said yesterday. A hospital spokesman Thursday said he felt abortions will be approved because the hospital is private and nondenominational.

However, Burton Chotiner, vice president of administration at Northwest, would make no prediction on the board vote because he said the issue is emotional.

HOSPITAL PRES. Malcolm MacCoun and chief of the doctor's staff Louis Leone could not be reached for comment last week.

Chotiner said he has no details of the abortion by the doctors vote and did not know how many doctors were present at the meeting.

If the board of trustees approve the performance of abortions, Northwest Community Hospital would be the first in the area to take such action.

Lutheran General Hospital presently is studying the abortion question and a special committee has been formed.

Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Resurrection Hospital in Park Ridge are following the directive of the Catholic Church and John Cardinal Cody against abortion.

Robert Fink, the attorney representing United, said his firm has a policy of not commenting on cases.

Teichert said the importance of the case was lost when the voluntary annexation of the Colony was set up. Mount Prospect wants to stabilize the area under contention by annexing it all. Teichert has said that annexation of all the properties to the south will eventually double the village's tax base.

Mount Prospect has had a policy of expansion to the south and keeping Des Plaines from advancing west across Elmhurst Road into the area going back more than eight years.

Part of revenue-sharing monies finally arrive

Elk Grove Township gets U.S. funds

Elk Grove Township finally has received a portion of its federal revenue sharing funds after untangling a bureaucratic snarl that lasted several months.

The initial check for $7,000 was received by the township this month. Another check for about $49,000 in overdue revenue sharing is expected soon to cover the rest of the money coming to the township.

Township officials have been told that from now on the township will receive its revenue sharing checks every three months. However the officials said that because of the confusion, they are unsure exactly how large the checks will be.

Although other government agencies have been receiving revenue sharing funds since December, the township has incurred a few problems getting its money.

A good start for youth job agency

The Elk Grove Township youth employment agency has been in operation less than two weeks and has already placed five young people with jobs.

The agency was created as a service of the township's committee on youth to find jobs for people age 16 to 21. The committee mailed about 1,500 letters to businesses within the township, asking what jobs they might have for young people. From the replies, the agency has built up a file of jobs.

Nita Stamm, township worker operating the program, said about 80 employers who are seeking young people for jobs are now on file. Most of the employers have jobs for more than one person.

SOME OF THE JOBS are seasonal, but most are for regular year-long employment. Both full- and part-time jobs are available.

About 45 young people have applied for jobs. The township is acting only as a referral service and is not actually hiring any people. There is no charge for the referral service.

Mrs. Stamm said that when a young person comes into the township office, they fill out an employment application. The application asks the type of work being sought and when the person can begin work.

Mrs. Stamm checks her job file to see what is available for the young person. If there is a job opening, the youth is given a "referral card" and sent to the employer.

Prospect over the weekend. The show included oil paintings, acrylics and water colors of 14 student artists enrolled in the class of Leonard Presley.

Scouting news

Wednesday, May 2, Girl Scout Troop 733, sponsored by First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, is holding their second annual fun fair. More than 250 children are expected to attend.

The fun fair will be held in the basement of First Congregational Church, Grace and Marion, between 4 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.

All games will be one to ten cents and include darts, sponge toss, floating boats, pocket lady, and many more.

Over 3,000 prizes have been collected for this event, with some of the special prizes including gerbils, hamsters and guppies.

A special gift court will be open with craftwork contributed from both the girls and their parents. Decoupage plaques, panda wall hangings, bulletin boards, and pillows, along with crocheted work and stitchery will be exhibited.

A white elephant table will be available with many treasures from games to jewelry to knick-knacks. A bake sale is also included with over 50 homemade items.

Admission is 5 cents.

Tape theft reported

Thieves stole a tape player, $45 in tapes and caused $50 worth of damage when they broke into the locked car of Rose V. Blando, 1727 43rd Ave., Stone Park, according to Des Plaines police.

The car was parked on the street at 1068 Arnold Ct. when the theft took place last week, police said.

School window broken

A sixth-grade classroom window was broken by vandals at Forest Elementary School, Forest Street and Fifth Avenue, last Thursday, according to Des Plaines police, causing $200 damage.

taxing agency. A non-taxing agency is not eligible to participate in the federal revenue sharing program.

The township has spent the past few months trying to clear up the mistake. Bernard Lee, township auditor, said information to correct the error was sent to Washington several times.

Various forms were filled out by the township in an effort to get revenue sharing. On one of the forms, the township officials had to certify that all American Indians and Eskimos living in villages within the township would be properly taken care of.

U.S. REP. Philip Crane, R-12th, was asked to intercede for the township in its efforts to get the money.

The delay in getting the money will force the township to hold a special set of budget meetings. The 1973-74 budget for the township's tax monies was approved last month. Before the township can spend the revenue sharing funds, the budget must be modified and new allocations approved.

Lee said among the areas which may be considered for the allocation of revenue sharing are elderly assistance, additional youth activities, mental health care and environmental problems.

Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center has already asked the township for $28,600 to pay for a portion of the cost of supplying township residents with mental health care. The request was made in February when the township was considering the 1973-74 budget.

Long, dry fall looms as village faces budding gasoline shortage

by CAROL L. RHYNE

Elk Grove Village is facing the possibility of losing its supply of gasoline for municipal vehicles at the end of the summer when an agreement with Cities Service Oil Co. expires.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said last week that Cities Service had attempted to cut off its supply of gasoline to the village, but last week the company reversed its decision and agreed to deliver fuel until the middle of September.

The village owns pumps and a 17,500-gallon gasoline storage tank, which is used to fill municipal and park district vehicles and the Elk Grove High School driver education cars.

Elk Grove Village first felt the crunch of the gasoline shortage at the end of March when the village's storage tanks were running low and more gasoline was ordered. "Usually a couple of days after we order gas, we get it," Willis said. "However, this time we called and waited, and then called again and waited some more, and nothing happened."

WILLIS SAID finally he telephoned company officials to ask if the village was going to get delivery of the gasoline order. He said he was told that "fuel was short and the company would no longer make deliveries to the village."

"We have been reading about the nationwide gasoline shortage in the newspapers, but it had a strange effect when the problem hit home and I found it on my desk," the manager said. "Here we were in a time of prosperity, located 20 miles from Chicago, and we couldn't get delivery of gasoline."

The company finally agreed to make one more delivery on April 4, and on April 5 it sent a letter saying there would be no more deliveries in the future.

Cities Service has been supplying gasoline to the village for more than 11 years. Originally the village leased pumps and storage tanks from the company, but in 1968 it purchased its own equipment and signed a new contract with Cities Service.

Willis contends this contract signed in September 1968 is still binding, and Cities Service is obligated to supply gasoline.

WILLIS NEXT telephoned Warren Toburen, Cities Service regional manager, who said the company was cutting back on direct delivery to customers because of the fuel crisis. At that time Toburen said if there was a contract with Elk Grove Village, it would be honored for the period of the contract but not afterwards, Willis said.

"By that time I was confident there was a gasoline crisis," Willis said. "Village departments were notified to use gasoline sparingly and to eliminate all non-emergency trips, double up on necessary trips and turn off the ignition when the car is parked."

Willis said he notified the park and school districts which also use the village pumps that if the village could not secure a gasoline supply, the park and school districts would have to find another source of gasoline.

However, Willis said at the time he contacted the park and school district he still felt everything would be all right and Toburen and his company would honor the contract with the village.

ON APRIL 20 when the village asked Cities Service to refill its tanks, the village was turned down. Willis said the village was informed later that Cities Service did not recognize its contract with the village and was discontinuing its service.

Then for some reason the company reversed its position last Tuesday and promised to make deliveries through the middle of September, Willis said. "I don't know what happened to make Cities Service change its mind, but a company official said gasoline would be delivered by Citgo (brand name) without any obligation or commitment."

Cities Service still denies the validity of Elk Grove Village's contract, Willis said. However, the company will deliver premium gasoline at 25.6 cents per gallon and regular at 21.5 cents per gallon.

Willis said the village received another gasoline delivery last week, and the park and school districts were told they could continue to use village gasoline.

THE PROBLEM now is finding a new gasoline supplier for the village, and Willis said the first attempt is being made to contact Standard Oil Co., which supplies some nearby municipalities. Elk Grove Village also is a member of the DuPage Mayors and Managers Association, which has a joint purchasing agreement with Standard.

Homeowners gripe 'on the house'

by CAROL L. RHYNE

Centex Homes Corp. made a mistake. And Friday night the company admitted this to some 100 homebuyers in its Winston Grove subdivision in Elk Grove Village.

It was "kick the builder" night for the future residents who have been waiting up to nine months to move into their new homes west of Ill. Rte. 53. The couples were wine and dined at the Navarone Restaurant on Higgins Road with a cocktail hour, dinner and dancing in an attempt to soothe hard feelings nurtured by weeks and months of delays.

A construction worker dummy, with "Winston Grove" lettered on its shirt, was hung in effigy for those irate buyers wishing to vent their feelings in a physical way. However, the dummy escaped the wrath of the customers with only a few ruffled feathers, and the homeowners chose to boot the builder with a verbal attack.

Centex had promised the people more homes than it was able to deliver because of rainy weather, construction problems and for whatever other reasons. The precise reasons were not significant. What was important to the people was they were not in their homes now and they did not know when they would be.

SOME PEOPLE in the audience had been evicted from their homes, a number had moved twice, others were living with relatives and at least one man was moving out of his home that same night.

"Everyone in this room is a displaced person; we're all people without homes," one woman said. She said she felt Centex was not sympathetic enough with the people's problems.

Another said, "The wine, scotch and prime rib are nice, but it still doesn't tell you when you could move in."

Money was a major concern to most of the families, and several said the delays were exhausting their savings with extra moving and furniture storage expenses. The couples were seated for dinner according to addresses, and a certain camaraderie developed as they exchanged hardship stories with their future neighbors.

Some people were mad, and others said they understood. One woman said she knew there had been a lot of rain, and although she wanted to move into her home as soon as possible, she was not upset. She also said she liked the chance to meet her new neighbors.

"Centex has lost a lot of money on this deal because of all the delays, and I don't think I have to punish them any more than that," said a young man standing next to his wife.

SOME COUPLES discussed forming a homeowners' association as a social organization and to talk to the builder and the village as a group. A few threatened to file a lawsuit to recover money for rent, furniture storage and security deposits on their temporary houses and apartments.

James Blaesser, regional vice president of Centex, was on the firing line. After dinner he faced the hornet's nest of buyers and said, "I'm the number one problem you've had. I've made the decisions that caused you not to be in your homes."

Blaesser kidded the Centex employees and introduced the boss of the "salesmen who have misled you constantly" and other "troublemakers." The introductions were met with clapping, booing and heckling, both friendly and hostile.

"Here's the person responsible for building your homes and not building your homes... Bob Dombrosky (project construction superintendent)," Blaesser said. "And here's the person responsible for the closing department... Bob Winkle."

"What's a closing department?" someone in the audience asked.

IN SERIOUSNESS, Blaesser said Centex did all it could to get the people in their homes, and he was sorry it didn't work out. He said 90 per cent of the time the streets and sewers are put in first. However, last year the company sold so many homes it tried to put in sewers, curbs, streets and gutters at the same time as the homes.

Blaesser said nine times out of 10 this method works well, but this time rain caused construction problems and some streets couldn't be built. He said the company worked in the places it could reach, which meant some homes with later delivery dates were finished sooner.

At that point one person in the audience stood up and said Centex had tied up his money and he wanted to know what was being done on his home. Blaesser asked the man to sit down and said he wouldn't answer the question because he really didn't have an answer.

Blaesser said the residents should receive a letter with delivery dates of their houses by the end of the week. Later in the evening he said most of the people at the dinner would be in their homes in June. Many of the people have homes on Van Braun Trail, Worden Way and Chaffee Court.

Centex officials said they expected no miracles from the evening and knew not everyone would be satisfied. They said they regretted the delays and just wanted a chance to tell the homebuyers, "I'm sorry."

AMID STUFFED animals galore, a girl hugs her prize from the Elk Grove Village Veterans of Foreign Wars carnival at Grove Shopping Center in the village. The carnival was a fund-raising event for the chapter.

Krasnow contests vote count

Alvin Krasnow filed Friday to contest the recent Elk Grove Village election in which he lost a two-year trustee term to Michael Tosto by five votes.

The petition asks for a recount of all nine precincts with the candidates present. Until a recount shows Krasnow the winner, Tosto will be seated with the other newly-elected village board members.

The village board made its official canvass of the vote last Tuesday which elected Tosto with 1,054 votes over Krasnow's 1,049. A third candidate, James Gibson, tallied 587 votes for the two-year trustee post.

Immediately after the canvass was completed, Krasnow submitted a "petition of discovery" asking for a recount of three precincts. A recount of the ballots showed Tosto had gained one vote and Krasnow added two votes, narrowing the margin from five to four votes.

Krasnow said he requested the recount of the three precincts because he felt they had too many defective ballots. Later he said he would be asking for a complete recount of all precincts.

The new board of trustees to be sworn in Tuesday will serve as a canvassing body for the recount.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Huron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake... the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 58,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

American tactical jet fighters resumed raids on the east bank of the Mekong River across from Phnom Penh, Cambodia after a one-day bombing halt. Thailand-based jets, guided by an Air Force reconnaissance plane, dropped napalm, cluster and 500-pound bombs within two miles of the capital.

As a seven-day truce called by the Republican Army in Londonderry moved into its final hours, the British Army said it was the worst week of IRA violence in Belfast this year. In the final 48 hours preceding the truce's end, IRA snipers killed two British soldiers in unprovoked attacks, the army said. The death toll is now 780 in four years of violence.

Supporters seek funds to help village band

A "Friends of the Band" fund is being set up to raise money for the financially ailing Palatine Village Band.

Band supporters hope to raise enough money to see the band through next winter's concert series. The band has only enough money to present its usual summer concert series, which is to begin in June.

Glenn B. Stephenson, band treasurer, has indicated that unless a new source of revenue is found "we'll be down to nickels and dimes" by fall.

Leaders of the 55-member band have indicated that without financial support, the band, a long-time Palatine tradition, may fold or become associated with another community.

About half of the band members live in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows-Arlington Heights area, and the remainder live in other parts of the Northwest suburbs.

The Friends of the Band fund is being arranged at the Palatine National Bank. Donors will be recognized in band programs.

THE BAND also is counting on another source of revenue—the sale of a recording, "In Concert: The Palatine Village Band."

The album, consisting of popular and classical music selections, was produced under the direction of Arthur D. Katterjohn, band director at Wheaton College.

The album is available for $4.95 at the Palatine National Bank, First Bank and Trust Co. and Suburban National Bank of Palatine. It also is available at the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry Inc. office.

Jones to address Chamber meeting

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones will speak Wednesday at a meeting of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry Inc.

Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 and the program at 8:30, at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in unincorporated Palatine Township.

Reservations for the dinner must be received by the chamber office, 358-3327, by 5 p.m. today.

Car skids into pole; two injured slightly

Two Palatine men suffered slight injuries Thursday night when the car in which they were riding skidded into a lightpole on Northwest Highway near Ill. Rte. 53.

Palatine police said the car driven by Philip Anaston, 74, of 953 E. Glencoe Rd., was northwest bound on Northwest Highway when he applied the brakes and the car skidded.

Anaston and a passenger, Gust Manolis, 52, of the same address, were treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. No tickets were issued.

The band's budget is $3,000. It has received $1,000 from the Palatine Park District. The usual $2,000 village contribution was cut off last year and there has been no indication it will be resumed this year.

The band also is pursuing the possibility of obtaining funds from the musicians' union and from Palatine Township.

Pupils to set graduation dress codes

Senior classes at the four High School Dist. 211 schools will be able to set dress codes for this year's graduation ceremonies with the support of the district's board.

The board agreed Thursday to allow the students to set their own mandatory standards for dress at graduation after hearing from seniors at all four schools.

All the students agreed they wanted to see boys wear shirts and ties or turtle-neck T-shirts under graduation gowns and girls wear dresses. All but one of the students also agreed they wanted dress standards mandatory.

"There are certain times in your life when you have to follow rules," Jon Kalkwarf senior class speaker for Schaumburg High School, said. "You should be dressed at the prom, you should be dressed right at your wedding and you should be dressed for graduation."

A Palatine High School student said he did not believe the guidelines for dress should be mandatory, but added, "The parents will make sure most of their kids will dress nicely and the others won't want to stand out so they will conform."

Kalkwarf said he believed that some kind of rules were also needed for the parents who attend graduation. "If you're going to put guidelines on the students," he said, "I think you should do something about the parents. Last year at graduation the parents were very unruly."

Following the discussion, the board adopted a resolution saying it wanted to see good taste at graduation ceremonies this year and supporting rules to be made by the senior class and school administrators.

CUB SCOUTS OF DEN 4, Pack 189 pitch in during Saturday's citywide cleanup in Rolling Meadows. Volunteers and city employees covered the city picking up litter and debris as part of the city-

sponsored event. More than 35 groups, including the city's public works, police and fire departments, took part in the cleanup. The program was planned by the city's Recycling, Ecological and

Dist. 211 board takes no action

School board lets 'open lunch' die

The possibility that students in High School Dist. 211 will be able to leave school during their lunch hour died a quiet death Thursday at the High School Dist. 211 board meeting.

Board members agreed to take no further action on the question of "open lunch," a subject that has come up intermittently at board meetings since September.

About 350 students at Schaumburg High School staged a protest walk-out at the school in September. One of their demands was for "open lunch."

Under an "open lunch" plan, students would be allowed to leave school during their lunch periods. At one point several months ago, Supt. Richard Kolze told the board that if it wanted to allow open lunch it would also have to tighten up on regulations regarding truancy and tardiness at the schools.

THE BOARD at that time said it would want to survey the attitude of parents to the proposed change before adopting an open lunch plan. Thursday, Kolze showed the board a sample card which could be sent to parents asking for their opinions on the change.

Board Pres. Robert Creek said he opposed sending the survey form at a cost of $500 because it would be hard to check the reliability of the response and because it was unlikely to get more than a 25 per cent response from those it was sent to.

"A 25 per cent opinion isn't enough for Bob Creek to be content with," Creek said. He added that it also would not be enough for him to change his mind about the desirability of open lunch.

Creek said the board's attorney has said he believes the rule prohibiting students from leaving school during lunch would be overturned if challenged in court. Creek added, "I'm willing to take my chances that someone might sue. I don't feel any great pressure to do anything different now."

Other board members agreed there was no outside pressure for a change in board policy.

"The pressure has come from within us," board member Robert Seger said. "I've never seen any pressure from outside."

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a request from the Hoffman Estates Fourth of July Committee for use of the fields at Conant High School for the annual drum and bugle corps competition and for the fireworks display. The committee will hold other July 4 activities at Chino Park.

The board also approved a total of $7,000 to be used to finance curriculum studies in five areas this summer. Teachers will work during the summer to study possible curriculum changes in English, home economics, industrial education, science and math.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Hiron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plan now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake... the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

Fingerprint experts to testify in murder case

Carbona trial enters fourth day

Testimony in the fourth day of the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Carbona is expected to focus on crime laboratory findings that fingerprints on the gun which killed Cook County Sheriff Lt. Joseph Carbona are not suitable to clearly say whether Mrs. Carbona ever held the gun.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1206 Euclid, Mount Prospect, is on trial for allegedly killing her husband by shooting him in the back with his police revolver during a family dispute in 1971.

Today will be the fourth day of testimony in the trial before Criminal Courts Judge Arthur L. Dunne and a jury of seven women and five men.

Testimony today is expected to reveal that while there were fingerprints found on the revolver that killed Lt. Carbona, the prints were not suitable for crime technicians to be able to match them with fingerprints of either Lt. Carbona or Mrs. Carbona.

In court Friday Sheriff's Police Sgt. Ernest Marinelli testified Mrs. Carbona told him her husband tripped and fell on the stairs of their home as she reached to try to stop him from leaving. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said the loaded revolver the lieutenant was carrying fired when he fell, accidentally shooting Carbona.

He testified Mrs. Carbona told him she and her husband had argued earlier in the evening and that her husband tried to run her over with his car and succeeded in hitting her on the leg with the car. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said her husband argued and fought with her inside the house for awhile, awakening her children, then left the house around 3 a.m. He then returned at 6 a.m., took his clothing and said he had decided to leave her. Marinelli quoted Mrs. Carbona as saying:

He said the policeman's wife told him her husband hit her with his revolver and said, "Don't try to stop me or I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Carbona said she then reached and grabbed for Carbona as he turned to go down the stairs with the revolver in his hand, he tripped or fell, and the gun went off, Marinelli testified.

He said Mrs. Carbona said she ran down the stairs after her husband fell, then ran upstairs to call police. He said the defendant told him she was not sure whether she had touched the revolver or whether it was she or her husband who had actually fired the gun.

Judge Dunne ruled, outside the presence of the jury that Marinelli could not testify about other statements Mrs. Carbona had made to him earlier the day of the shooting because she had not been informed of her rights by police before she talked to Marinelli.

Marinelli also testified he removed both the revolver and another gun, a .38 caliber snub-nosed pistol found in the pocket of the coat Carbona was wearing.

Marinelli said he saw a bruise on the side of Mrs. Carbona's face the morning of the lieutenant's death. He admitted under cross examination, however, that at a preliminary hearing he had testified there was no mark on her face. He said none of the police at the scene called a doctor because they believed Carbona was dead.

Other testimony of Friday came from Gary E. Nelson, one of the ambulance drivers who removed the body from the home and transported it to the hospital and from Sheriff's Police Sgt. Singer.

Singer said he looked at both the wounds Carbona had received from the bullet, the one in his back and the one in his chest. He said there were no powder burns on either wound. He said he found the bullet in the front lining of the lieutenant's car coat. He also testified police brought no laboratory technicians to the Carbona home and police did not test a stain on the wall which appeared to be blood to see if it actually was blood. He said he believed the stain was "relatively insignificant" to the case.

Judge Dunne said Friday he expects the prosecution to complete its case against Mrs. Carbona on Tuesday morning with the defense then beginning to call its witnesses.

Before the testimony began on Friday the judge admonished attorneys not to discuss the case with reporters. The judge sharply criticized Defense Atty. Bernard Brody for a statement he made to the Herald on Wednesday about alleged bias on the part of a prosecution witness.

Women's voter league in finance drive

The Palatine League of Women Voters will hold its annual finance drive this week.

Letters have been sent to residents and businesses to solicit contributions to help the league meet the $850 goal.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which works to inform residents of the workings of government. The league takes stands on particular issues but does not endorse political candidates.

Among the activities of the local league are: candidate forums, voter's guide and a hotline to give last minute election information. The Palatine League of Women Voters last year also worked for a referendum to abolish township government.

Membership in the Palatine league is open to women in Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness. Persons wanting more information should call Linda Foley at 358-5469.

'It's important to have a warm feeling'

by BETTY LEE

The good feeling is contagious around the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, and Margaret Dorre, formerly of Norwood Park, caught it years ago when she came to live at the home.

"I was pretty sour when I first came here," she said while sitting with a friend in the Home's card shop. "But I'm not that way anymore."

"When a new person comes here to live, he must first make a few adjustments," said Rev. G. F. Barthel, chaplain, known as "Father B" to the residents.

"He has to give up a certain amount of his independence. He may have owned a car to come and go as he pleased. He might have moved from a six-room house to one room here. Another problem is what possessions does he take with him to the home. And when he comes here, among strangers."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have a warm feeling toward new residents," said Paul A. Bauer, executive secretary. "This is a socially oriented facility, and we have a wide, active range of programs to fit most of their needs."

For the residents at the Lutheran Home, the place is just that... home. It's a place where they make friendships and laugh and talk with each other. The residents become a "family" and their individual rooms become "home."

"They choose to come here," said Hauer. "They move in with the idea they'll spend the rest of their lives here."

Residents each have their own rooms, which they have decorated to their own tastes, but more than likely, you won't find them there. They're much too busy.

Rather, you'll see a lot of them milling throughout the building, visiting friends, taking walks on the grounds, tending their gardens, or taking part in one of the many planned activities.

"We rather have them doing something they like instead of them sitting in their rooms watching television all day," said Barthel.

Many like to go to the arts and crafts shop which is filled with long work tables, laden with a large variety of crafts material.

RESIDENTS WHIP up projects like stuffed pillows, knitted slippers, and crocheted bookmarks. One woman has been working on a special project appropriate for dieters: a felt pig to put on the refrigerator. "Don't open this or you'll look like me."

There's also a ceramics shop, complete with kiln. Many of the handmade items are sold throughout the home or put in display cases. Some of these projects resulted in profits. For example, those who have been cutting stamps from envelopes sold their collection for $8,000, over a period of years, according to Barthel.

The 214-member "family" has been growing the last two weeks since the new wing opened. The $2.6 million project, funded by the Lutheran churches of the northern third of Illinois, will take 125 new members, increasing the total number of residents to 339.

The wing has been designated for nursing care residents, those needing attention of medical personnel.

The corridors of the new addition are bright with painted white walls accented with blue, green and yellow doors. The doors split horizontally to enable the resident to close the bottom half for privacy and leave the top half open to let personnel check on them.

Inside each room is a set of colonial-style furniture including a bed, a chest of drawers and a desk. Tinted glass windows enabled residents to look out on the home's 80 acres.

THERE'S A NURSES' station on each of the three floors of the new wing. One of the nurses, Mary Dowling, is a physical therapist who conducts exercise classes.

"They say, 'Who me? I'm 85,'" said Mrs. Dowling. But the important reason for exercise classes, which are held in groups, is to make them aware they can still move. "The exercises are not callisthenics... just simple things like moving their fingers or moving their heads," said Mrs. Dowling.

Dinner at noon is the biggest meal of the day, when residents sit together to dine and talk with friends. Dinner is served family style. Residents serve themselves and pass the food to others.

After the meal, some help the kitchen workers by clearing the table, and getting the dishes together to be brought to dishwashers.

Residents in the nursing care wing may eat in their own rooms, said Barthel, but "29 out of 31 residents came out to eat in the dining rooms."

Arlington Heights has about a six per cent population of citizens 65 years or older, according to Barthel, who thinks the community has accepted its senior citizens.

"JUST BY THE civic interest shown to our residents by volunteers and various groups coming to the homes, indicate a spontaneous and cordial acceptance of all the home stands for," said Barthel. "And residents never complain. They accept the home as part of Arlington Heights."

The home first started in 1892 near Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights, and was known as "the Altheim Gesellschaft." The 80-acre stretch of land on which the present home is located at 800 W. Oakton St. was purchased as farm land to raise cows, chickens and produce for the home.

In 1953 the present building was opened and an addition was built in 1965. The ages of residents range from 60 to 96, with the average age at 86.

The only requirements to live at the home is that a person must be 60 years old, a resident of the northern third of Illinois, and a Lutheran.

The waiting list had 318 names, even with the recent opening of the new wing.

The home has been able to accept some residents without payment because its operation is supported by contributions made by members of the Lutheran

Churches, Missouri Synod. The home, which serves Illinois Lutherans living in the northern third of the state, has been a primary concern of these churches.

The operating costs for each resident is $450 per month. Approximately 70 per cent are public aid recipients, and the home makes up for shortages, said Hauer.

THERE ARE MANY who have lived in the home for years, like Albert Wehrs, who has been there 12 years. Wehrs, 96, also is the oldest resident at the home.

But during the last two weeks, the home has been making way for the new residents, all who must adjust to the new environment. But most have visited the home previously and have been on these two-year waiting lists.

Residents are independent to a large degree, as there are no strict schedules, according to Barthel.

"They are free to come and go from the home, just so they sign out to let us know where they are going," said Barthel. "They're free to participate in any of the activities at the home."

"The most important philosophy in the Home is that each resident has dignity about himself," said Hauer. "They must feel they are worth something. We must instill the reason for them wanting to be alive, to make them want to wake up in the morning."

Barthel said the administration encourages residents to "dress to reflect their personalities." "That's why you don't see people walking down the hall with their bathrobes on or looking disarrayed."

Lillian Eggers is looking forward to the blooming of her flower garden which she planted on the home's grounds months ago. Margaret Elbert, who was a professional florist before moving to the home, creates floral arrangements for lounges and offices at the home. Olga Bohnsack likes to do a lot of sewing, not only for herself, but for other residents as well.

Most residents keep busy with their own pursuits, retaining a certain amount of their independence, but remaining dependent on the atmosphere the home provides.

PTA notes

A SPRING OPEN house and PTA-sponsored ice cream social will be held Wednesday between 7:30 and 9 p.m. at Jane Addams School, 1020 Sayles.

All classroom teachers will be in their classrooms during the evening to meet with parents and special area teachers will be at their regular teaching station or in the lobby. The resource center will also be open for parents to visit.

The classroom visitation will end with a visit to the gym, which is being transformed into a "candy factory" with ice cream, pop and penny candy, for the evening.

THE ANNUAL Sanborn-Woods PTA Fun Fair will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak St.

The fair will feature a penny candy store, carnival games, prizes, novelties and a bake sale. Everyone is invited to attend and there will be no admission charge.

Keep ice arena open, residents ask park board

Petitions requesting that the ice arena be kept open for seven additional weeks this spring were presented to the Rolling Meadows park commissioners last week.

The petitions, signed by 619 residents, asked the park board to keep the arena open from April 30 to June 16 when the swimming pool opens, excluding a reasonable amount of time for repairs.

The petitions also asked the park board to provide a summer figure skating program similar to that of the 1972 summer season.

The board referred the petitions to its recreation committee for consideration and a recommendation.

CURRENT PLANS call for the ice arena to be closed from April 29 to July 22.

Park district rec program going mobile

The Rolling Meadows Park District is putting its recreation program on wheels this summer to meet the needs of residents of the Creekside and Dawgate subdivisions.

A mobile recreation unit will go into the area four mornings a week to provide organized recreation in the arts and crafts area for children in first through sixth grades.

Steve Person, superintendent of parks and recreation, said the park district's maintenance department is currently renovating a park district trailer into the mobile unit and equipping it with materials and games.

The mobile recreation program will be held on a six-acre wooded site on Dawgate Lane that the park district is leasing from School Dist. 15. On Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. the mobile unit will provide recreation programs for students in first through third grades. Programs for the older children will be provided at the same time on Mondays and Wednesdays. There will be no charge for the programs.

Person said this is a pilot program that could be expanded to other areas in the city in the future if the response is good this year.

The mobile recreation program is the outcome of an interest survey of Creekside and Dawgate residents taken at the beginning of the year. The residents indicated they felt segregated from the park programs and facilities because they are divided from the rest of the park district by Rte. 53.

The recreation department recommended the board provide a summer recreational program for children in the area after receiving the survey results. Since the park district does not own property in the area, the concept of a mobile recreation program was devised.

There will be ice at the arena for two and a half weeks after it is closed to the public for rehearsals for the annual spring ice show on May 18. Last year the ice arena was also closed to the public during the ice show rehearsals but reopened five weeks earlier on June 19.

Pres. William Billings said the board had decided to close the ice arena for the extended period because in the past attendance has been poor during May and June.

Residents argued the park district would lose skaters to other ice arenas in the area if it closed down for the proposed 12 weeks and the skaters would not return to the Rolling Meadows ice arena when it reopened. The result would be a loss in revenue not only for the 12 weeks the rink is closed but also when it opens because of lower attendance.

SEVERAL RESIDENTS reported attractive and highly competitive offers were being made by private ice arenas in the area but they would like to continue at the Rolling Meadows ice arena because of its proximity to their homes.

"The rink is geared to run year-round. That is the way it was built and that is the way it should run. It is not going to cost as much to run it now as it is in July and August," said Linda Sawicki of 2108 Quail Ln.

The residents were also upset because the summer figure skating program is being cut from 10 weeks in the past to five weeks this year. Another change in the summer figure skating program residents objected to was reduction in time of the individual freestyle classes from 2 hours to 45 minutes. They argued this was not enough time for the serious skater.

Park district plans youth corps program

The Rolling Meadows Park District has initiated a youth corps program for the summer to give seventh and eighth grade students a chance to earn extra money working in park sites.

The park district will be hiring eight students to work outdoors in park maintenance projects. The projects will include painting and general cleanup of park sites.

"The program is designed to teach kids responsibility and how to establish an employer-employee relationship," said Steve Person, superintendent of parks and recreation.

The students will work in the parks a couple of hours a day and receive $20 a week and a free pass to the park district pool. Special outings are also planned for the youth corps.

Applications for the youth corps may be obtained by calling 392-4380. Person said students will be chosen on dress, attitude, achievement in school and teacher's recommendations.

CUB SCOUTS OF DEN 4, Pack 189 pitch in during Saturday's citywide cleanup in Rolling Meadows. Volunteers and city employees covered the city picking up litter and debris as part of the city-

sponsored event. More than 35 groups, including the city's public works, police and fire departments, took part in the cleanup. The program was planned by the city's Recycling, Ecological and Beautification committee. Following the cleanup, a picnic was held for the volunteers in Kimball Hill Park.

For recreation programs, ice arena

Park district sets registration fees

Registration fees for summer recreation and ice arena programs have been set by the Rolling Meadows park commissioners.

The fees for children's programs will be: dramatics, marching baton and tennis, $3; junior high bowl, $2 a night; canoeing, $5; tot lot, $8. The fee for horseback riding will be determined by the stable.

Young adult program fees for high school students are: bowling, $2 a night; tennis, $4; self-defense, $5; and boys' body building, $3.

Fees for adult programs are: men's fitness and women's slim and trim, $3; golf and tennis, $5; co-recreational volleyball, $2; and the fee for the men's golf league will be determined by the golf course.

Family program fees are: cycling, $2 for an individual or $5 for a family; and dog obedience, $12.

MORE INFORMATION about the summer recreation programs will be coming out in May in the park district's summer brochure.

General admission fees to the ice arena for public skating are being reduced for residents. Resident fees will be 75 cents for children and $1 for adults. This compares to $1 for children and $2 for adults last year. Non-resident fees will be $1 for children and $1.50 for adults. The skate rental fee will remain at 50 cents.

Summer public skating at the ice arena will be held between July 22 and Sept. 3. The public skating hours set by the board are: Sundays, 2 to 4 p.m., 7 to 9 p.m. and 9 to 10:30 p.m. for adults only; Tuesday and Thursday, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; Friday, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.; and Saturday, 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10:30 p.m. There will be a total of 17 public skating hours each week.

The learn to skate, patch and freestyle classes at the ice arena will run from July 23 to August 31. In patch classes students work on one of 22 equal patches of ice practicing figures. Students in freestyle classes work on spins, jumps and figure skating moves.

PATCH CLASSES will be held from 8 to 8:45 a.m. and freestyle classes from 8:45 to 9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. The fee for individual patch and freestyle is $2.25 per session, $10 per week or $19 per week for a combination patch and freestyle. A combination program pass including patch and freestyle is $100 for the summer.

In the learn to skate program, freestyle classes will be held from 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. Monday through Friday; learn to skate classes for children will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; and learn to skate classes for adults will be held from 9 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The resident fee for the learn to skate classes is $10 for six weeks, $9 for five weeks, $8 for four weeks, and $1 for adult open figure and dance. The non-resident fees are $20 for six weeks, $18 for five weeks, $16 for four weeks and $2 for adult open figure and dance.

Rotary Club elects officers

The officers are: president, Joseph V. Palella, Western Electric Co., Inc.; vice president, Raymond H. Blakeman, Spotnails, Inc.; secretary, David I. Ross, Boy Scouts of America; treasurer, Andrew C. Karkow, Illinois Bell Telephone.

Elected to the board of directors were: Billy K. McMinn, McMinn & Troutman; Evan D. Shull, Rolling Meadows High of Rolling Meadows; Rollo Kuebler, Penn Precision Products.

School; Richard C. Coscia, Holiday Inn Rotary International pres. (1973-74) W. Carter will visit the area on July 2, 1973 to install the newly elected officers of the Rolling Meadows Club, the Mount Prospect Club and C. H. Shaner, district governor. The installation ceremony will take place at the Holiday Inn of Rolling Meadows.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Huron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake... the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

Carbona trial enters fourth day

Testimony in the fourth day of the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Carbona is expected to focus on crime laboratory findings that fingerprints on the gun which killed Cook County Sheriff Lt. Joseph Carbona are not suitable to clearly say whether Mrs. Carbona ever held the gun.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1206 Euclid, Mount Prospect, is on trial for allegedly killing her husband by shooting him in the back with his police revolver during a family dispute in 1971.

Today will be the fourth day of testimony in the trial before Criminal Courts Judge Arthur L. Dunne and a jury of seven women and five men.

Testimony today is expected to reveal that while there were fingerprints found on the revolver that killed Lt. Carbona, the prints were not suitable for crime technicians to be able to match them with fingerprints of either Lt. Carbona or Mrs. Carbona.

In court Friday Sheriff's Police Sgt. Ernest Marinelli testified Mrs. Carbona told him her husband tripped and fell on the stairs of their home as she reached to try to stop him from leaving. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said the loaded revolver the lieutenant was carrying fired when he fell, accidentally shooting Carbona.

He testified Mrs. Carbona told him she and her husband had argued earlier in the evening and that her husband tried to run her over with his car and succeeded in hitting her on the leg with the car. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said her husband argued and fought with her inside the house for awhile, awakening her children, then left the house around 3 a.m. He then returned at 6 a.m., took his clothing and said he had decided to leave her, Marinelli quoted Mrs. Carbona as saying.

He said the policeman's wife told him her husband hit her with his revolver and said, "Don't try to stop me or I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Carbona said she then reached and grabbed for Carbona as he turned to go down the stairs with the revolver in his hand, he tripped or fell, and the gun went off, Marinelli testified.

He said Mrs. Carbona said she ran down the stairs after her husband fell, then ran upstairs to call police. He said the defendant told him she was not sure whether she had touched the revolver or whether it was she or her husband who had actually fired the gun.

Judge Dunne ruled outside the presence of the jury that Marinelli could not testify about other statements Mrs. Carbona had made to him earlier the day of the shooting because she had not been informed of her rights by police before she talked to Marinelli.

Marinelli also testified he removed both the revolver and another gun, a 38 caliber snub-nosed pistol found in the pocket of the coat Carbona was wearing.

Marinelli said he saw a bruise on the side of Mrs. Carbona's face the morning of the lieutenant's death. He admitted under cross examination, however, that at a preliminary hearing he had testified there was no mark on her face. He said none of the police at the scene called a doctor because they believed Carbona was dead.

Other testimony of Friday came from Gary E. Nelson, one of the ambulance drivers who removed the body from the home and transported it to the hospital and from Sheriff's Police Sgt. Singer.

Singer said he looked at both the wounds Carbona had received from the bullet, the one in his back and the one in his chest. He said there were no powder burns on either wound. He said he found the bullet in the front lining of the lieutenant's car coat. He also testified police brought no laboratory technicians to the Carbona home and police did not test a stain on the wall which appeared to be blood to see if it actually was blood. He said he believed the stain was "relatively insignificant" to the case.

Judge Dunne said Friday he expects the prosecution to complete its case against Mrs. Carbona on Tuesday morning with the defense then beginning to call its witnesses.

Before the testimony began on Friday the judge admonished attorneys not to discuss the case with reporters. The judge sharply criticized Defense Atty. Bernard Brody for a statement he made to the Herald on Wednesday about alleged bias on the part of a prosecution witness.

SINGING ALONG during a program at the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, Arlington Heights, is resident Minnie Loewenau, 94. Church services and planned activities, such as arts and crafts and shopping trips, play an important part in the lives of the elderly.

'It's important to have a warm feeling'

by BETTY LEE

The good feeling is contagious around the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, and Margaret Dorre, formerly of Norwood Park, caught it years ago when she came to live at the home.

"I was pretty sour when I first came here," she said while sitting with a friend in the Home's card shop. "But I'm not that way anymore."

"When a new person comes here to live, he must first make a few adjustments," said Rev. G. F. Barthel, chaplain, known as "Father B" to the residents.

"He has to give up a certain amount of his independence. He may have owned a car to come and go as he pleased. He might have moved from a six-room house to one room here. Another problem is what possessions does he take with him to the home. And when he comes here, among strangers."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have a warm feeling toward new residents," said Paul A. Hauer, executive secretary. "This is a socially oriented facility and we have a wide, active range of programs to fit most of their needs."

For the residents at the Lutheran Home, the place is just that... home. It's a place where they make friendships and laugh and talk with each other. The residents become a "family" and their individual rooms become "home."

"They choose to come here," said Hauer. "They move in with the idea they'll spend the rest of their lives here."

Residents each have their own rooms, which they have decorated to their own tastes, but more than likely, you won't find them there. They're much too busy.

Rather, you'll see a lot of them milling throughout the building, visiting friends, taking walks on the grounds, tending their gardens, or taking part in one of the many planned activities.

"We rather have them doing something they like instead of them sitting in their rooms watching television all day," said Barthel.

Many like to go to the arts and crafts

shop which is filled with long work tables, laden with a large variety of crafts material.

RESIDENTS WHIP up projects like stuffed pillows, knitted slippers, and crocheted bookmarks. One woman has been working on a special project appropriate for dieters: a felt pig to put on the refrigerator. "Don't open this or you'll look like me."

There's also a ceramics shop, complete with kiln. Many of the handmade items are sold throughout the home or put in display cases. Some of these projects resulted in profits. For example, those who have been cutting stamps from envelopes sold their collection for $8,000, over a period of years, according to Barthel.

The 214-member "family" has been growing the last two weeks since the new wing opened. The $2.6 million project, funded by the Lutheran churches of the northern third of Illinois, will take 125 new members, increasing the total number of residents to 339.

The wing has been designated for nursing care residents, those needing attention of medical personnel.

The corridors of the new addition are bright with painted white walls accented with blue, green and yellow doors. The doors split horizontally to enable the resident to close the bottom half for privacy and leave the top half open to let personnel check on them.

Inside each room is a set of colonial-style furniture including a bed, a chest of drawers and a desk. Tinted glass windows enabled residents to look out on the home's 80 acres.

THERE'S A NURSES' station on each of the three floors of the new wing. One of the nurses, Mary Dowling, is a physical therapist who conducts exercise classes.

"They say, 'Who me? I'm 85,'" said Mrs. Dowling. But the important reason for exercise classes, which are held in groups, is to make them aware they can still move. "The exercises are not calisthenics... just simple things like moving their fingers or moving their heads," said Mrs. Dowling.

Dinner at noon is the biggest meal of the day, when residents sit together to dine and talk with friends. Dinner is served family style. Residents serve themselves and pass the food to others.

After the meal, some help the kitchen workers by clearing the table, and getting the dishes together to be brought to dishwashers.

Residents in the nursing care wing may eat in their own rooms, said Barthel, but "29 out of 31 residents came out to eat in the dining rooms."

Arlington Heights has about a six per cent population of citizens 65 years or older, according to Barthel, who thinks the community has accepted its senior citizens.

"JUST BY THE civic interest shown to our residents by volunteers and various groups coming to the homes, indicate a spontaneous and cordial acceptance of all the home stands for," said Barthel. "And residents never complain. They accept the home as part of Arlington Heights."

The home first started in 1892 near Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights, and was known as "the Altheim Gesellschaft." The 80-acre stretch of land on which the present home is located at 800 W. Oakton St. was purchased as farm land to raise cows, chickens and produce for the home.

The ages of residents range from 60 to 96, with the average age at 86.

The only requirements to live at the home is that a person must be 60 years old, a resident of the northern third of Illinois, and a Lutheran.

The waiting list had 318 names, even with the recent opening of the new wing.

The home has been able to accept some residents without payment because its operation is supported by contributions made by members of the Lutheran

Churches, Missouri Synod. The home, which serves Illinois Lutherans living in the northern third of the state, has been a primary concern of these churches.

The operating costs for each resident is $450 per month. Approximately 70 per cent are public aid recipients, and the home makes up for shortages, said Hauer.

THERE ARE MANY who have lived in the Home for years, like Albert Wehrs, who has been there 12 years. Wehrs, 96, also is the oldest resident at the home.

But during the last two weeks, the home has been making way for the new residents, all who must adjust to the new environment. But most have visited the home previously and have been on those two-year waiting lists.

Residents are independent to a large degree, as there are no strict schedules, according to Barthel.

"They are free to come and go from the home, just so they sign out to let us know where they are going," said Barthel. "They're free to participate in any of the activities at the home."

"The most important philosophy in the Home is that each resident has dignity about himself," said Hauer. "They must feel they are worth something. We must instill the reason for them wanting to be alive, to make them want to wake up in the morning."

Barthel said the administration encourages residents to "dress to reflect their personalities." "That's why you don't see people walking down the hall with their bathrobes on or looking disarrayed."

Lillian Eggers is looking forward to the blooming of her flower garden which she planted on the home's grounds months ago. Margaret Elbert, who was a professional florist before moving to the home, creates floral arrangements for lounges and offices at the home. Olga Bohnsack likes to do a lot of sewing, not only for herself, but for other residents as well.

Most residents keep busy with their own pursuits, retaining a certain amount of their independence, but remaining dependent on the atmosphere the home provides.

Women's voter league in finance drive

The Palatine League of Women Voters will hold its annual finance drive this week.

Letters have been sent to residents and businesses to solicit contributions to help the league meet the $850 goal.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which works to inform residents of the workings of government. The league takes stands on particular issues but does not endorse political candidates.

Among the activities of the local league are: candidate forums, voter's guide and a hotline to give last minute election information. The Palatine League of Women Voters last year also worked for a referendum to abolish township government.

Membership in the Palatine league is open to women in Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness. Persons wanting more information should call Linda Foley at 358-5469.

Parks establish new refund policy

A new policy restricting refunds for park programs has been established by the Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners.

Under the new policy, no refunds for park district programs will be made after the program has started unless a written request is made and accepted by the board.

Cmsr. Raymond Neuckranz said the policy was necessary because residents have abused the refund policy in the past dropping out of programs in mid-season and requesting refunds for no apparent reason. It has been costing the district too much money, said Neuckranz.

Survey of parents 'too costly, unreliable'

'Open lunch hour' shelved by high school board

The possibility that students in High School Dist. 211 will be able to leave school during their lunch hour died a quiet death Thursday at the High School Dist. 211 board meeting.

Board members agreed to take no further action on the question of "open lunch," a subject that has come up intermittently at board meetings since September.

Under an "open lunch" plan, students would be allowed to leave school during their lunch periods. At one point several months ago, Supt. Richard Kolze told the board that if it wanted to allow open lunch it would also have to tighten up on regulations regarding truancy and tardiness at the schools.

THE BOARD at that time said it would want to survey the attitude of parents to the proposed change before adopting an open lunch plan. Thursday, Kolze showed the board a sample card which could be sent to parents asking for their opinions on the change.

Board Pres. Robert Creek said he opposed sending the survey form at a cost of $500 because it would be hard to check the reliability of the response and because it was unlikely to get more than a 25 per cent response from those it was sent to.

"A 25 per cent opinion isn't enough for Bob Creek to be content with," Creek said. He added that it also would not be enough for him to change his mind about the desirability of open lunch.

Creek said the board's attorney has said he believes the rule prohibiting students from leaving school during lunch would be overturned if challenged in court. Creek added, "I'm willing to take my chances that someone might sue. I don't feel any great pressure to do anything different now."

Other board members agreed there was no outside pressure for a change in board policy.

"The pressure has come from within us," board member Robert Seger said. "I've never seen any pressure from outside."

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a request from the Hoffman Estates Fourth of July Committee for use of the fields at Conant High School for the annual drum and bugle corps competition and for the fireworks display. The committee will hold other July 4 activities at China Park.

The board also approved a total of $7,000 to be used to finance curriculum studies in five areas this summer. Teachers will work during the summer to study possible curriculum changes in English, home economics, industrial education, science and math.

What should parks have? Survey to seek answers

A survey will be distributed to every home by the Schaumburg Park District in an effort to determine what recreation programs and park improvements residents favor. Paul Derda, park district director said Friday.

Within two weeks, Derda said the two-page survey would be hand delivered to all the homes in the community. Residents will be asked to fill out the surveys, which Derda said would only take about 15 minutes. Park district personnel and volunteers will pick up the surveys.

"We're asking the residents to give us direction in future planning, to get input from the community," Derda said.

Questions ask how often the family uses the parks, the times family members are available for recreation programs, and if present programs are adequate.

Reactions to building such facilities as tennis courts, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, biking and hiking trails, lighted ball fields, and skating rinks are also sought. Additionally, residents will be asked if they would tax themselves to pay for improvements or approve of federal funding if it were available.

FEELINGS ON the adequacy of open space in the community and whether more land should be purchased for open space are also requested.

Derda said the district is re-evaluating its master plan, recreation programming and future park development, and community response would be valuable.

Because the flyers will be hand distributed, Derda said the district hoped few residents would treat the survey as more junk mail to be discarded.

"We hope residents will be willing to merely check off the appropriate answers they favor. Minimal writing, maybe on six or eight questions is required," he said.

There are approximately 6,000 homes in the Schaumburg Park District, and Derda said about 12 to 20 people would be needed for the hand distribution. Apartments would also be included in the delivery, he said, as much as possible.

New mall plans to be told

Plans for a mall shopping center on 35 acres at the northwest corner of Higgins and Meacham roads will be heard at tomorrow's Schaumburg Plan Commission meeting.

A Woolco department store and a supermarket will be included in the first phase of the plans, said Clavert Gordon of the Chicago law firm Righeimer, Righeimer and Martin. The firm is representing the Kern family, owners of the property.

Although both Gordon and Mayor Robert O. Atcher at a recent village board meeting said the Woolco store would be a tenant of the center, officials of the F. W. Woolworth Co. would not confirm or deny the report.

The land is zoned B-3, which is business zoning requiring the use of each building be approved by the village board before construction. According to the real estate department at Woolworth, "nothing is tied down in Schaumburg. Plans are all preliminary, and we're working on a lot of locations."

Woolco department stores are "on the order of a K-Mart, usually two levels, and carry hard and soft goods," the Woolworth spokesman said.

"This will be the usual small shopping center," Gordon said. The land is already zoned for business, he said, and called village approval a "formality." Clavert said negotiations also are progressing with other tenants, but he didn't know if any other tenants were definitely lined up.

Atcher said the village "just determines if the use is keeping with B-3 zoning."

A GENTLE MAN, John Tsao speaks softly of his homeland, mainland, China, expressing as much with his eyes and hands as he does with his speech. An expert on use of the abacus, the village finance director overlays the grace of the past on the business of today.

John Tsao's works better

by NANCY COWGER

Who needs the electronic brain? Not Hoffman Estates.

John Tsao, village finance director, is doing his bit to help solve the energy crisis, cutting his use of his adding machine to the bare minimum.

Tsao is more comfortable with ancient equipment anyway, and does all his adding and subtracting on what he calls the first computer in history — the abacus.

Tsao and Village Mgr. George Longmeyer are now developing the 1973-74 village budget. As they work, they check each other's figures — Longmeyer on the adding machine, Tsao on the abacus.

"HE BEATS me every time, and our figures match," said Longmeyer.

Tsao learned to use the abacus in elementary school in his home town Shanghai, China, where he lived until he married his wife, Barbara.

The Tsaos and their three children have lived in the United States since 1960. Before coming here, they lived in Taiwan 11 years.

When the Communists took control of mainland China, Tsao Koh-Tsong (Tsao's Chinese name) worked for Central Airline Transport Co., a firm owned by the Nationalist Chinese government. The Communist takeover was a gradual one, and as they pushed more and more onto the mainland, the Nationalists retreated to Taiwan. Tsao sent his wife and children to Taiwan first, and then in 1949 he joined them. His father, brother and sisters still live in Shanghai.

In Taiwan, Tsao used his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Shanghai to win a teaching job. He was an instructor in business management and accounting principles at Cheng Kung University. His wife taught in a nursing school there, where she became friendly with an American woman who substituted her Chinese name, Yu, with Barbara, and encouraged her to come to Boston University for advanced study.

BARBARA TSAO came to the U.S. in 1958, and spent a year here before returning to Taiwan. A year later, the entire family moved to America, going first to the University of Missouri, where Tsao earned a master's degree in industrial management in 1961. None of the children spoke English, and the first year was difficult, he recalls.

With his degree in hand, Tsao was inited back to Cheng Kung University to be a visiting professor. He didn't go, and neither did he stay in Missouri to teach, as friends encouraged him to do.

Tsao felt his English was insufficient to convey his thoughts to American pupils, and he looked to industry for his living, instead.

He landed his first U.S. job in Chicago, and has stayed in this area ever since. His home is in Evanston, and while he wants to move to Hoffman Estates, he has succumbed to the wishes of his youngest daughter, and is letting her finish high school with her friends.

Tsao was introduced to Hoffman Estates last September, when his employment was approved by the village board.

BUT HE HAS remained in the background since then, working in his office, seldom dealing with the public, and speaking only when addressed at village board meetings.

The residents of Hoffman Estates do not know their finance director is also national vice president of the Chinese American Educational Foundation, and chairman of its committee to provide free interest loans for Chinese graduate students in the U.S. They have never seen the Chinese artifacts and art objects in his home.

And they have missed his expertise in finding restaurants serving authentic Chinese foods. Most Oriental restaurants serve Cantonese cuisine, but Tsao finds the best delicacies in the Northern Chinese style of cookery at Tien Ching Restaurant on Clark Street in Chicago. Chinatown in Chicago is almost more American than Chinese, he observes.

Tsao is an opera buff, and appreciates the educational foundation's cultural exchange program between the U.S. and China. It worked with the Midwest Chinese Opera Foundation to bring the Peking Opera to Chicago two years ago.

Tsao enjoys working in Hoffman Estates. Though his contacts have been limited, the villagers he has met have been most kind to him, he said. His office in the municipal building overlooks a housing development to the west, and he appreciates the view of attractive homes and well-groomed yards.

He has found much to challenge him in his work. He has initiated measures to better organize village finance systems, modernizing work practices while he slides the beads of the ancient abacus.

Village gets tough with builders

by NANCY COWGER

Consumerism has taken a new twist in the Village of Schaumburg. Village board action has now put two developers on notice they must show some concern for purchasers of their homes if the builders ever want to do business in the village again.

The builders of the Knightsbridge subdivision were told early this month they would have to complete installation of a retention pond, correct inappropriate grading and put up street lights in existing sections of the development. Plans were approved for the next section of Knightsbridge, but not one building can be erected there until the old problems are solved, the board vowed.

Just last week Levitt and Sons got the same message. Finish sidewalks, correct any and all building code violations and get those streets in proper condition, or forget about building, Jerry Harker, company representative, was told. Harker agreed, after standing his firm was striving to accomplish those very tasks. Mother Nature has not cooperated, he said.

OF THE MANY residents present from Sheffield, the Levitt development, not one questioned Harker's sincerity. But his message isn't getting through to underlings, they complained. Even when Mother Sun is smiling, Levitt's service people are not, they said.

Developers have their problems. It can't be denied. But all too often their buyers suffer more for the difficulties than the builders do themselves. And, as the homeowners pointed out, a house is the most costly investment a couple is likely to make.

They might not gripe loud or long if a 50-cent wind-up toy sprung with the first twist, but when the siding falls off a $25,000 to $50,000 home it's more than disappointing. Years of working overtime and saving each odd penny are ridiculed every time you totter across a plank because the sidewalk isn't there.

While Schaumburg has no right under its current laws to judge "shoddy construction," as Mayor Robert Atcher said, "it can and is showing its heart in an area most important to its people."

BUT WHERE was that solicitude when an ordinance requiring sprinklers for fire protection was discussed?

Mayor Atcher appeared more interested in the potential cost increase to builders than the potential for saving life when that subject was broached. He strongly questioned the dollars and cents of the proposal, suggesting the village should take care not to hike the price of a building, for fear of retarding development. Not once did he ask "Does this significantly increase the chance of saving life and property?"

Persons who supported and voted for them, and to individuals who have served with them as volunteers on board committees or commissions.

McArthur vowed to continue to "do what I can for the town we are so proud of." LeBeau commented "this is a fine board, a very fine community, and I plan to be a voice for the people."

Aigner predicted the next four years will be "very exciting for the village, and I am pleased I can be a part of it." Ledgerwood told residents "I consider it a great honor to be your elected representative and speak for you here."

PETER JUSTEN, one of two retiring members of the board, said he hopes to work further, particularly with the village's youth committee. The other retiring member, Mathew Helsper, is on vacation and did not attend.

Atcher thanked both Justen and Helsper for their service.

LeBeau formerly was the village's public relations officer, as well as holding other volunteer positions. Atcher appointed Al Larson to take over the public relations post. Larson is a member of the village Clean Environment Committee.

McArthur has been chairman of the village plan commission. Atcher elevated Dick Nomellini, who has been vice chairman, to that position.

However, total cost before the village can actually occupy the site is expected to be in the range of $1.1 million. Known costs to date total $987,235, including items other than the general contract, which are $72,256 for underground improvements, $52,000 for excavation of a lake and $54,600 for construction of an access road. Other known costs before occupancy are $34,598 for purchase of internal equipment for telephone service and $62,891.91 for furnishings. Legal and architectural fees also will be added, but have not yet been listed.

The village originally had expected to be able to construct the building and move in for about $550,000, or half the amount now anticipated. Last June Mayor Robert O. Atcher said the cost would go up to about $1.1 million. The difference was attributed to failure to include costs for site preparation, fees and interior furnishings. The village also added to the basement of the original design.

mer, was for $704,370. Al Eichsteadt of Eichsteadt Architects, Ltd., the firm that designed the building, said all change orders approved for the contract to date have increased that figure to $710,880.

Apparently Aigner's predictions were on the mark. He has reported the village received notice from Pritscher and Erbach, contractor, that the completion date will be met. Village Mgr. John Coste predicted yesterday staff will move into the new facility about two weeks after completion.

THE BOARD this week approved two change orders in the contract, for a total increase of $5,457. The original contract price, when it was signed late last summer, was for $704,370.

Schools, builder near accord on a new site

The "missing" school site problem holding up a 333-unit development by Tower Construction Co. on Bode Road has now been solved, according to Donnie Rudd, School Dist. 54 board president.

Tower officials have said they will reach an agreement on a school site donation with Dist. 54 before their engineering plans are given final approval by Hoffman Estates village officials, said Rudd, who predicted an accord within a week.

Plan approval of a Hoffman Estates condominium and townhouse development has been withheld partially because the school site donation was unresolved. The Tower development involves 333 units on 33 acres, west of the firm's Interlude Apartments.

A school site is necessary because the development will eventually house an estimated 290 children, Rudd said. The nearest school, Lakeview School, is already above capacity and children in the area are being bused now, he said.

THE CONFUSION about the school site resulted from Tower purchasing the already residentially zoned land from Irving Rootberg of Admiral Builders. According to village records, at the time zoning was granted in 1968, Rootberg agreed to donate nine acres for public use.

Rootberg has said the land was intended for recreational purposes and was not suitable for a school site. The donation was to be made, he said, when he came into the village for zoning on a final parcel of land along Bode Road that he still owns.

However, Tower said Rootberg was still under obligation to donate the land, and have called it a school site. Rudd said an agreement would be worked out solving the conflict.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission reviewed a North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation study of the Tower Construction land. The study said a small portion of the 33 acres was completely unsuitable for building, and another portion also contained relatively poor soil.

In total, about 15 to 20 per cent of the land according to the study was generally not suited for building use. A soil expert, Louis Walter, president of the Louis Walter and Associates, soil engineering firm, disagreed with the report. Walter was retained by Tower Construction to study the soil.

The poorest land the study refers to is commonly found on building sites and would be used for a retention pond or a park, Walter said. If a structure were to be built on the soil, it would be removed and replaced with suitable soil.

The remaining soil called into question is "generally acceptable for construction," Walter said. It is good supporting soil, he said, and can be graded for proper drainage.

The commission will decide whether to grant preliminary site plan approval for the development at its May 9 meeting.

Following the discussion, the board adopted a resolution saying it wanted to see good taste at graduation ceremonies this year and supporting rules to be made by the senior class and school administrators.

Village to get flood control plan this week

by TOM VON MALDER

A flood prevention program, complete with priority scheduling, will be presented this week to Mount Prospect village officials. The program, drawn up by the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission, would cost less than $5 million.

Commission chairman George March on Friday was drawing up the priority section of the long-awaited report. The commission's recommendations are based on its members' work and a flood prevention report by the engineering firm of Consoer, Townsend and Associates.

The Consoer Townsend report, submitted in February, recommended a comprehensive $7,688,000 program of relief storm sewers, seven new permanent retention basins and one temporary detention basin.

"We have tried to find relief for the greatest hardships," March said. "We have not modified the $3,091,000 supplemental relief sewer system at all." The Consoer Townsend report called for such sewers throughout the village, except in the northeast section.

MARCH SAID the sewers should not be installed, however, until the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) is installing their deep tunnel system, which is to run under Weller Creek in the area.

Of the most immediate priority, March said, is completion of the Weller Creek widening project and installation of the 850-acre-foot retention basin north of Central Road near Busse Road by the MSD. State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced a bill in the Illinois General Assembly that would appropriate $805,000 for the Weller Creek work. The MSD has said they will build the retention basin soon.

March said much of the costs of the recommended program have been pared by the relocation of proposed retention basins. He pointed out that Crumley Basin in the western part of the village could be deepened with pumps used to empty it rather than by buying land to enlarge its surface, as recommended by Consoer Townsend.

He said the two retention basins proposed for south of Lawrence Lane could be combined into one and basins proposed for Magnus Farm land south of Central Road and the Elk Ridge Villa area south of Golf Road, may prove unnecessary if other flood prevention actions prove more effective.

A SATURDAY meeting has been planned for the commission, the village board and other village officials. March said he hopes the commission will be

Central School property will be appraised soon

An appraisal of the Central School property will be made for the Village of Mount Prospect. Village officials have indicated a desire to use the two-plus acre site for municipal or library expansion.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said yesterday he expects the village board to receive the appraisal within three weeks. The property, at the southeast corner of Central Road and Main Street, has a school building on it that has been vacant since 1970.

The village board voted unanimously Thursday to have the appraisal made. Teichert said he assumes the next step will be for the board to authorize him to begin negotiations for the purchase of the property. The site was bought in 1970 by a land trust for which Alexander Magnus has acted as spokesman.

Magnus was out of town and unavailable Friday for comment on the board's action.

TRUSTEE DONALD B. Furst last month urged the board to buy the Central School property for a new village hall. He estimated the property would cost about $500,000 and it would take another $200,000 to make the current building usable by the village.

Furst said he felt the existing building was "a sound building of good construction." Primarily through Furst's efforts, the village board has included a capital improvement fund of $110,000 in the budget document for the fiscal year beginning tomorrow.

This capital improvement fund has been set aside for use in municipal or library expansion. Teichert said the board really has not made up its mind on specific uses for the site.

In addition to the library and municipal pleas for more room, requests for space have been received by the historical society and senior citizen groups.

"For my own part, I think we ought to have the property," Teichert said. He said he felt it was too early to speculate on whether the village might eventually have to condemn the property in order to obtain it. He said the village would have to show need for the property and the precise need has not yet been decided.

"THERE IS NO plan on how the building will be laid out or utilized," he said. "It could, though, solve some of our many needs."

In October, Kenroy Inc. of Skokie, real estate developers, revealed plans for high-rise senior citizen housing for the Central School site. While this plan is not dead, it has been delayed by the freeze on federal funds for housing programs. The village's Community Services and Mental Health Commission currently is studying the proposal.

Other plans for the site, none of which were realized, included a Jewel Food Store.

Carbona trial enters fourth day

Testimony in the fourth day of the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Carbona is expected to focus on crime laboratory findings that fingerprints on the gun which killed Cook County Sheriff Lt. Joseph Carbona are not suitable to clearly say whether Mrs. Carbona ever held the gun.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1206 Euclid, Mount Prospect, is on trial for allegedly killing her husband by shooting him in the back with his police revolver during a family dispute in 1971.

Today will be the fourth day of testimony in the trial before Criminal Courts Judge Arthur L. Dunne and a jury of seven women and five men.

Testimony today is expected to reveal that while there were fingerprints found on the revolver that killed Lt. Carbona, the prints were not suitable for crime technicians to be able to match them with fingerprints of either Lt. Carbona or Mrs. Carbona.

In court Friday Sheriff's Police Sgt. Ernest Marinelli testified Mrs. Carbona told him her husband tripped and fell on the stairs of their home as she reached to try to stop him from leaving. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said the loaded revolver the lieutenant was carrying fired when he fell, accidentally shooting Carbona.

He testified Mrs. Carbona told him she and her husband had argued earlier in the evening and that her husband tried to run her over with his car and succeeded in hitting her on the leg with the car. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said her husband argued and fought with her inside the house for awhile, awakening her children, then left the house around 3 a.m. He then returned at 6 a.m., took his clothing and said he had decided to leave her, Marinelli quoted Mrs. Carbona as saying.

He said the policeman's wife told him her husband hit her with his revolver and said, "Don't try to stop me or I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Carbona said she then reached and grabbed for Carbona as he turned to go down the stairs with the revolver in his hand, he tripped or fell, and the gun went off, Marinelli testified.

He said Mrs. Carbona said she ran down the stairs after her husband fell, then ran upstairs to call police. He said the defendant told him she was not sure whether she had touched the revolver or whether it was she or her husband who had actually fired the gun.

Judge Dunne ruled outside the presence of the jury that Marinelli could not testify about other statements Mrs. Carbona had made to him earlier the day of the shooting because she had not been informed of her rights by police before she talked to Marinelli.

Marinelli also testified he removed both the revolver and another gun, a 38 caliber snub-nosed pistol found in the pocket of the coat Carbona was wearing.

Marinelli said he saw a bruise on the side of Mrs. Carbona's face the morning of the lieutenant's death. He admitted under cross examination, however, that at a preliminary hearing he had testified there was no mark on her face. He said none of the police at the scene called a doctor because they believed Carbona was dead.

Other testimony of Friday came from Gary E. Nelson, one of the ambulance drivers who removed the body from the home and transported it to the hospital and from Sheriff's Police Sgt. Singer.

Singer said he looked at both the wounds Carbona had received from the bullet, the one in his back and the one in his chest. He said there were no powder burns on either wound. He said he found the bullet in the front lining of the lieutenant's car coat. He also testified police brought no laboratory technicians to the Carbona home and police did not test a stain on the wall which appeared to be blood to see if it actually was blood. He said he believed the stain was "relatively insignificant" to the case.

Judge Dunne said Friday he expects the prosecution to complete its case against Mrs. Carbona on Tuesday morning with the defense then beginning to call its witnesses.

Before the testimony began on Friday the judge admonished attorneys not to discuss the case with reporters. The judge sharply criticized Defense Atty. Bernard Brody for a statement he made to the Herald on Wednesday about alleged bias on the part of a prosecution witness.

15-year-old youth helps nab neighborhood burglar

A 15-year-old Mount Prospect youth helped recover $110 in stolen cash Thursday when he caught a burglar emerging from a neighbor's home.

Police said Mike Doherty, 612 S. Louis St., was in his home when he thought he heard the sounds of someone playing basketball in the yard between his house and Robert E. Brenke's, 613 S. William St. Instead of finding a friendly basketball game, Doherty saw a youth running from the Brenke's rear door with two shoeboxes.

Doherty gave chase and saw the youth place the boxes under some bushes in a yard several lots away, police said. At that time, the burglar struck Doherty in the face.

Recovered in the two boxes was $110 in change, although another $80 in four envelopes was apparently taken by the burglar. He was described as either 17 or 18-years-old, 165 pounds, about 5-10 with shoulder-length brown hair. He wore a light blue windbreaker.

Police said the burglar apparently attempted to force open the garage door before successfully breaking the rear door in (presumably creating the basketball noises). The boxes were taken from the master bedroom.

The boxes, police said, were at the bottom of a pile. They believe the burglar knew what he was looking for and where he could find it as nothing else was taken and the other boxes in the pile had been neatly set aside.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Hiron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake... the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

American tactical jet fighters resumed raids on the east bank of the Mekong River across from Phnom Penh, Cambodia after a one-day bombing halt. Thailand-based jets, guided by an Air Force reconnaissance plane, dropped napalm, cluster and 500-pound bombs within two miles of the capital.

As a seven-day truce called by the Republican Army in Londonderry moved into its final hours, the British Army said it was the worst week of IRA violence in Belfast this year. In the final 48 hours preceding the truce's end, IRA snipers killed two British soldiers in unprovoked attacks, the army said. The death toll is now 780 in four years of violence.

Israeli authorities are girded for an Arab guerrilla attack during 25th anniversary celebrations on May 7, a spokesman for the Israeli national police said. The spokesman said a military parade in Jerusalem is the most likely target.

You'll read 'rented' bestsellers

That current bestseller you can't put down may be a rented book if it came from the Mount Prospect Public Library.

Up to 40 new books a month and 480 at any one time at the library are leased from the Anco Lease Collection in Atlanta, Ga. Librarian Mary Jo Hutchings said the books are primarily bestsellers, mysteries and popular biographies.

"We try to anticipate what will be on the best seller list," Mrs. Hutchings said. The library circulated 18 copies of Arthur Hailey's "Airport" when everyone was reading it, but they only owned two of the copies.

"By leasing we can use the majority of our money for building our basic book collection," Mrs. Hutchings said. She pointed out many of the books that are popular for a few months are seldom read after the demand ends. She said they bought two copies of "Airport" because it is "one that will last, will survive."

A LARGE NUMBER of books leased are mysteries. "Mystery people always take three or four books," Mrs. Hutchings said. Thus, the library has to keep several copies of each available.

Each month Anco sends out a list of available books with a synopsis of each included. The list for April included Hammond Innes's "The Golden Snak," Dorothy Uhnak's "Law and Order," and books by Muriel Spark, Damon Knight and Helen MacInnes.

Mrs. Hutchings said the library began using the service when she first became librarian, about eight years ago. "They have been very good to us," she said of Anco.

The service costs $160 per month but she said the cost is well worth it. With the average price for a popular fiction book at $5 these days, it would cost the library $2,880 to purchase the same 480 books that can be leased for $1,920. Plus use of the service prevents the library from stocking 18 copies of a book that may be taken out once a year five years from now.

After a book has been rented the library also has an option to purchase it for 25 per cent of the original cost. Mrs. Hutchings said that has happened only on occasions where one of the library's own copies have been lost.

Library users can easily tell whether a book is a leased one or one owned by the library. The rented books have pink cards in the date due jacket, rather than the library's own white or blue cards.

Tax talk topic of PHIA town meeting May 17

Representatives of all taxing districts in Prospect Heights will speak May 17 when the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) holds its annual town meeting.

Plans currently are being made for the meeting which will begin at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria at John Hersey High School, 1800 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. All Prospect Heights residents are invited to the meeting to find out what's been happening in the unincorporated area for the last year and what is planned for the future, according to Bob Polzer, past PHIA president.

Representatives of School Dist. 23, the Prospect Heights Park District, the Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD), the Prospect Heights Fire Protection and Library districts have agreed to attend, Polzer said. Also on the agenda are progress reports on the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights and the legal battle for elimination of the Cook County Wheel tax.

Polzer said residents also will be informed on how to apply for federal flood insurance now being offered through Cook County. He added a report would be made on state legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

'Our Little Miss' pageant slated

The "Our Little Miss Pageant," a contest for girls 7 to 12 years old, will be presented at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St., May 16.

The girls will model party outfits and sportswear. Each girl must also present a talent number of from one to three minutes.

For girls aged three through six, the pageant has a "Miss La Petite" division. These girls will also model for the title.

All interested girls may obtain entry blanks for the pageant by writing Illinois Our Little Miss Headquarters, Box 1842, Rockford, Illinois, 61110. Entries must be mailed by May 7. Girls winning the top seven trophy positions will be eligible to go on to the state finals.

Postal People Day today

Free souvenir envelopes will be given to customers attending Postal People Day today at the Mount Prospect Post Office.

The envelopes, part of the recognition of Postal Week, will be given out on a first-come, first-served basis. They will be imprinted or "cacheted." Some of the envelopes will be prepared in advance with all 10 "postal people" commemorative 8-cent stamps honoring postal workers across the nation.

These "first day" covers will be postmarked by hand with the local postmark, and will be sold for the cost of the stamps alone.

Youth job agency busy—already

The Elk Grove Township youth employment agency has been in operation less than two weeks and has already placed five young people with jobs.

The agency was created as a service of the township's committee on youth to find jobs for people age 16 to 21. The committee mailed about 1,500 letters to businesses within the township, asking what jobs they might have for young people. From the replies, the agency has built up a file of jobs.

Nita Stamm, township worker operating the program, said about 80 employers who are seeking young people for jobs are now on file. Most of the employers have jobs for more than one person.

SOME OF THE jobs are seasonal, but most are for regular year-long employment. Both full-and part-time jobs are available.

About 45 young people have applied for jobs. The township is acting only as a referral service and is not hiring any people. There is no charge for the referral service.

Mrs. Stamm said that when a young person comes into the township office, they fill out an employment application. The application asks the type of work being sought and when the person can begin work.

Mrs. Stamm checks her job file to see what is available for the young person. If there is a job opening, the youth is given a "referral card" and sent to the employer.

Using the referral card is an advantage to the job seeker, according to Mrs. Stamm. She said the employer knows that the youth has already been screened for the job and is qualified.

Hints on what to expect during an interview by employers also may be given to the young job seeker.

THE EMPLOYMENT agency will accept job applications from 2 to 4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and between 10 a.m. and noon on Wednesday and Saturday at the town office, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Young people also may call the township at 437-0300.

Employers who have either part-time or full-time jobs for youths are asked to call the township.

United annexation battle dropped

A four-year-old annexation battle among Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and United Air Lines ended last week.

Mount Prospect voluntarily dismissed its suit Thursday to annex some 150 to 200 acres of land south of Algonquin Road, west of Elmhurst Road and north of the Northwest Tollway. Both Des Plaines and United Air Lines in 1969 asked that the suit be dismissed and the case had been under advisement by Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy since that time.

Des Plaines had charged the annexation was in part a strip annexation and United objected because part of its property was being annexed against its wishes. A strip annexation provides access to larger parcels a municipality wants to annex.

Mount Prospect had its suit dismissed because a few hours later it was going to, and did, annex properties along Elmhurst Road south to Oakton Street. These were industrial parcels along Nordic Road and the Colony development.

The Colony development will be made up of 704 apartment units, a 256-room hotel, a retail center and an office-finance center at the northwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Roads. A 450-seat movie theater also proposed for the 31-acre site was removed Thursday because it presented parking problems.

The lawsuit was dismissed "with prejudice," meaning that it cannot be reinstated by the village.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he was surprised that both Des Plaines and United objected to the village's dismissal motion. Teichert said that voluntary annexations, such as the two made Thursday night, are still possible in the disputed area. He said he did not know if involuntary annexations of smaller parcels would be permitted because of the dismissal with prejudice.

"It put us on the alert," Teichert said of Des Plaines' objection last week, "that Des Plaines is not content in seeing the area stabilized."

Charles Hug, assistant Des Plaines city attorney, said Friday that Des Plaines wanted the suit dismissed with prejudice so that it could not be brought up again. "Des Plaines got all that Des Plaines could ask for," he said.

Robert Fink, the attorney representing United, said his firm has a policy of not commenting on cases.

Teichert said the importance of the case was lost when the voluntary annexation of the Colony was set up. Mount Prospect wants to stabilize the area under contention by annexing it all. Teichert has said that annexation of all the properties to the south will eventually double the village's tax base.

Mount Prospect has had a policy of expansion to the south and keeping Des Plaines from advancing west across Elmhurst Road into the area going back more than eight years.

In other flood prevention related matters, Mount Prospect's moratorium on the issuance of new building permits ends today. Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Friday the moratorium, which was put into effect last fall, will not be extended.

The purpose of the moratorium was to keep the building situation in the village stable while the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission studied flooding and worked on their report.

Motorcycle stolen

A $1,500 Honda motorcycle was stolen Thursday from the Maple Street commuter parking lot in Mount Prospect.

Police said the 1972 vehicle, owned by Douglas Jamieson, 26, of 580 Ida Ct., Mount Prospect, had not been chained but did have a steering lock on it. Jamieson said the cycle was taken between 7:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Village to pay $300,000 for street repaving

The Village of Arlington Heights will spend nearly $300,000 on street repaving this summer.

Road work is scheduled in the Scarsdale, Stonegate, Sherwood, Ivy Hill, Greenbrier, Arlington Knolls and Pinegate subdivisions, as well as in the central business district, according to Village Engineer Allen Sander.

The asphalt resurfacing in Scarsdale and Stonegate will complete the repaving of all the streets in those two subdivisions, Sander said. Scarsdale and Stonegate are two of the village's older residential areas.

In addition to the normal asphalt repaving, the village this year will be using an experimental road surface treatment called Slurry Seal. The new process is designed to fill pavement cracks and keep them from deepening and widening, Sander said.

THE NEW Slurry Seal will be used in the central business district, in parts of Greenbrier, Ivy Hill, Sherwood and Westgate subdivisions.

Use of the Slurry Seal must await approval by the state highway department, but such approval is expected soon, Sander said.

The Slurry Seal is squeezed on the road to fill cracks and preserve the condition of the pavement.

The giant Cutler repaver, used in the village last year, will be used this summer in parts of Ivy Hill subdivision.

Sander described the Cutler repaving operation as a "rejuvenating" of asphalt streets. The repaving machine strips away the top layer of asphalt and then puts down a fresh surface.

THE OPERATION differs from the resurfacing in Scarsdale and Stonegate where a thicker asphalt surface is being laid over old concrete streets.

"We lose part of the curb when we raise the street level, but at least it brings back a new driving surface," Sander said.

All of the money for street repaving comes from the village's motor fuel tax funds, which is Arlington Heights' share of the state tax collected on gasoline sales.

Besides the local repaving projects, motor fuel taxes have also been budgeted for a number of other intersection improvements and street projects.

In total, the village has budgeted $1.5 million for street work during the coming fiscal year which begins May 1.

INCLUDED IS $350,000 for the extension of Davis Street from Sigwalt to Dryden, and $40,000 as the village's share of the cost of repaving Davis Street from Dryden to Arthur.

Arlington Heights still owes $250,000 for its portion of the one-million dollar improvement project at Arlington Heights and Central roads. This project, begun last spring, is now scheduled for completion in June.

Another project still in the planning stages is the redesign and resignaling of Arlington Heights Road and Evergreen, Dunton and Vail avenues at Northwest Highway under a federal highway improvement project. Sander said he doubted, however, that actual construction would begin this year.

Here's street repairs list

The following Arlington Heights streets have been tentatively approved for repaving this summer and fall.

According to Village Engineer Allen Sander, the list is subject to change depending on the actual condition of the streets, weather and funds.

Streets scheduled for slurry seal treatment are listed subject to the village receiving state approval to use the experimental resurfacing method.

Approval is expected soon, Sander said.

FIREMEN FROM FIVE departments battled a blaze yesterday afternoon in the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights. The fire began in the southwest basement of the building at 27 N. Dryden Ave. and spread through the plumbing pipes to the roof, according to John Hayden, Arlington Heights fire chief. No injuries were reported in the fire and Red Cross volunteers were making arrangements for housing the residents of the 24 apartments in the building. Chief Hayden said he had no official damage estimate but said damage was "severe." Fire marshals were investigating the cause.

Yankee Doodle won't be coming to town

A controversial fast-food restaurant approved for Dundee Road across from the new Buffalo Grove High School apparently will not be built.

Last September, the village board approved rezoning for a Yankee Doodle restaurant on the south side of Dundee Road, 450 feet west of Arlington Heights Road.

Now the restaurant's attorney says the Yankee Doodle project has been abandoned.

"It isn't going to happen, but I think something else will probably go in there," said attorney Richard Weinberg, adding that the "something else" will probably be another restaurant.

The village board voted 4-3 on the rezoning question, reversing an earlier decision of the plan commission to turn down the request.

Objectors to the restaurant protested its proximity to the new high school and what they feared was the start of a commercial strip along Dundee Road.

Several other commercial buildings, including two gas stations, another restaurant and a convenience grocery store are already situated along Dundee Road near Arlington Heights Road.

Summer school slated for handicapped

by JILL BETTNER

Handicapped children in School Dist. 21 who attend Kirk Center in Palatine or Dwyer School in Arlington Heights have the opportunity this year to participate in new special education summer school classes at the schools.

Each of the 10 member school districts in the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) has the option of paying the tuition for children in their area to take the classes, which are offered for the first time this summer. The program was developed by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO).

The Dist. 21 school board has agreed to pay the tuition fees for the 45 children in the district who are eligible for the NSSEO summer program, plus their transportation costs. Lois King, spokeswoman for NEC, said the other nine NEC members also will participate in the program.

"There are some kids who need stimulation and educational effort for prolonged periods," said Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 research coordinator. "When summer break comes, there is often a regression. The purpose of this program is to maintain the skills that have been developed during the year using different approaches in the summer."

THE PROGRAM at Kirk is designed for mentally-retarded and multiple-handicapped children. Daily sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. are scheduled from June 18 through July 16 for elementary children and June 18 to July 30 for older children.

The cost per pupil to Dist. 21 for the Kirk program is estimated by NEC officials at $66 per pupil for elementary children and $158 for older children.

The program at Dwyer School, which provides for emotionally disturbed children, is planned for June 18 to July 6 at a cost of $142 per pupil. A second session also will be conducted from July 9 to July 27, but it will not be financed by the school districts. Parents of children who attend the second session will bear the cost.

Wynn said currently some special education students in Dist. 21 are able to attend regular summer school classes offered by the district, but others have special needs the regular courses cannot meet.

Language development, practice in physical coordination, self-help activities and just learning skills needed for life are all part of the NSSEO program," Wynn said. "Students in the program also will have access to specialists including language therapists, psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and the kinds of other special resources that are so important."

AT DWYER, Wynn said emotionally disturbed students will participate in many activities designed to help them learn how to get along better with others.

"There will be a great deal of opportunity for students to interact and develop social skills," he said. "The goal here is to help these kids operate more efficiently in social relationships."

Both programs will focus on developing what Wynn called "the most central skills in terms of cognitive growth." Instruction in math, language arts and reading will be included.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Democratic governors gathered in Huron, Ohio to publicly develop a strategy to combat President Nixon's domestic policies and privately assess the potential political impact of the Watergate affair. Some of the governors who originally gave backing to Nixon's revenue sharing plank now claim it has developed into a trap for them and they are short-changed on federal funds for social programs.

Government and Indian negotiators met in a new round of talks aimed at ending the two-month occupation of Wounded Knee as tension mounted on the sprawling Pine Ridge, S.D. reservation.

Government tests show that about one out of every 20 broiler-fryer chickens

sold to consumers in the first three months of this year apparently had illegal residues of organic arsenic in their livers.

As President Nixon remained in seclusion, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy called on him to "state flatly and clearly" anything he might know about the Watergate scandal and efforts to cover it up. "He has no obligation to shield anyone," Percy said in one of the strongest statements yet from a member of Nixon's own party. "Now too much is at stake... the Presidency is now the crisis that you face."

Although warning there "still is danger" from exploding bombs, authorities allowed thousands of residents of Roseville, Calif. to return to their homes near where a munitions train and railroad cars loaded with gas erupted in a chain of blasts for two days. The immediate danger was declared over for the population of about 50,000 living in communities near the freight yards where explosions ripped through boxcars containing almost two million pounds of bombs. At least 31 persons were injured.

Carbona trial enters fourth day

Testimony in the fourth day of the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Carbona is expected to focus on crime laboratory findings that fingerprints on the gun which killed Cook County Sheriff Lt. Joseph Carbona are not suitable to clearly say whether Mrs. Carbona ever held the gun.

Mrs. Carbona, 20, of 1206 Euclid, Mount Prospect, is on trial for allegedly killing her husband by shooting him in the back with his police revolver during a family dispute in 1971.

Today will be the fourth day of testimony in the trial before Criminal Courts Judge Arthur L. Dunne and a jury of seven women and five men.

Testimony today is expected to reveal that while there were fingerprints found on the revolver that killed Lt. Carbona, the prints were not suitable for crime technicians to be able to match them with fingerprints of either Lt. Carbona or Mrs. Carbona.

In court Friday Sheriff's Police Sgt. Ernest Marinelli testified Mrs. Carbona told him her husband tripped and fell on the stairs of their home as she reached to try to stop him from leaving. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said the loaded revolver the lieutenant was carrying fired when he fell, accidentally shooting Carbona.

He testified Mrs. Carbona told him she and her husband had argued earlier in the evening and that her husband tried to run her over with his car and succeeded in hitting her on the leg with the car. Marinelli said Mrs. Carbona said her husband argued and fought with her inside the house for awhile, awakening her children, then left the house around 3 a.m. He then returned at 6 a.m., took his clothing and said he had decided to leave her, Marinelli quoted Mrs. Carbona as saying.

He said the policeman's wife told him her husband hit her with his revolver and said, "Don't try to stop me or I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Carbona said she then reached and grabbed for Carbona as he turned to go down the stairs with the revolver in his hand, he tripped or fell, and the gun went off, Marinelli testified.

He said Mrs. Carbona said she ran down the stairs after her husband fell, then ran upstairs to call police. He said the defendant told him she was not sure whether she had touched the revolver or whether it was she or her husband who had actually fired the gun.

Judge Dunne ruled outside the presence of the jury that Marinelli could not testify about other statements Mrs. Carbona had made to him earlier the day of the shooting because she had not been informed of her rights by police before she talked to Marinelli.

Marinelli also testified he removed both the revolver and another gun, a 38 caliber snub-nosed pistol found in the pocket of the coat Carbona was wearing.

Marinelli said he saw a bruise on the side of Mrs. Carbona's face the morning of the lieutenant's death. He admitted under cross examination, however, that at a preliminary hearing he had testified there was no mark on her face. He said none of the police at the scene called a doctor because they believed Carbona was dead.

Other testimony of Friday came from Gary E. Nelson, one of the ambulance drivers who removed the body from the home and transported it to the hospital and from Sheriff's Police Sgt. Singer.

Singer said he looked at both the wounds Carbona had received from the bullet, the one in his back and the one in his chest. He said there were no powder burns on either wound. He said he found the bullet in the front lining of the lieutenant's car coat. He also testified police brought no laboratory technicians to the Carbona home and police did not test a stain on the wall which appeared to be blood to see if it actually was blood. He said he believed the stain was "relatively insignificant" to the case.

Judge Dunne said Friday he expects the prosecution to complete its case against Mrs. Carbona on Tuesday morning with the defense then beginning to call its witnesses.

Before the testimony began on Friday the judge admonished attorneys not to discuss the case with reporters. The judge sharply criticized Defense Atty. Bernard Brody for a statement he made to the Herald on Wednesday about alleged bias on the part of a prosecution witness.

SINGING ALONG during a program at the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, Arlington Heights, is resident Minnie Loewenau, 94. Church services and planned activities, such as arts and crafts and shopping trips, play an important part in the lives of the elderly.

'It's important to have a warm feeling'

by BETTY LEE

The good feeling is contagious around the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, and Margaret Dorre, formerly of Norwood Park, caught it years ago when she came to live at the home.

"I was pretty sour when I first came here," she said while sitting with a friend in the Home's card shop. "But I'm not that way anymore."

"When a new person comes here to live, he must first make a few adjustments," said Rev. G. F. Barthel, chaplain, known as "Father B" to the residents.

"He has to give up a certain amount of his independence. He may have owned a car to come and go as he pleased. He might have moved from a six-room house to one room here. Another problem is what possessions does he take with him to the home. And when he comes here, among strangers."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have a warm feeling toward new residents," said Paul A. Hauer, executive secretary. "This is a socially oriented facility and we have a wide, active range of programs to fit most of their needs."

For the residents at the Lutheran Home, the place is just that... home. It's a place where they make friendships and laugh and talk with each other. The residents become a "family" and their individual rooms become "home."

"They choose to come here," said Hauer. "They move in with the idea they'll spend the rest of their lives here."

Residents each have their own rooms, which they have decorated to their own tastes, but more than likely, you won't find them there. They're much too busy.

Rather, you'll see a lot of them milling throughout the building, visiting friends, taking walks on the grounds, tending their gardens, or taking part in one of the many planned activities.

"We rather have them doing something they like instead of them sitting in their rooms watching television all day," said Barthel.

Many like to go to the arts and crafts

shop which is filled with long work tables, laden with a large variety of crafts material.

RESIDENTS WHIP up projects like stuffed pillows, knitted slippers, and crocheted bookmarks. One woman has been working on a special project appropriate for dieters: a felt pig to put on the refrigerator. "Don't open this or you'll look like me."

There's also a ceramics shop, complete with kiln. Many of the handmade items are sold throughout the home or put in display cases. Some of these projects resulted in profits. For example, those who have been cutting stamps from envelopes sold their collection for $8,000, over a period of years, according to Barthel.

The 214-member "family" has been growing the last two weeks since the new wing opened. The $2.6 million project, funded by the Lutheran churches of the northern third of Illinois, will take 125 new members, increasing the total number of residents to 339.

The wing has been designated for nursing care residents, those needing attention of medical personnel.

The corridors of the new addition are bright with painted white walls accented with blue, green and yellow doors. The doors split horizontally to enable the resident to close the bottom half for privacy and leave the top half open to let personnel check on them.

Inside each room is a set of colonial-style furniture including a bed, a chest of drawers and a desk. Tinted glass windows enabled residents to look out on the home's 80 acres.

THERE'S A NURSES' station on each of the three floors of the new wing. One of the nurses, Mary Dowling, is a physical therapist who conducts exercise classes.

"They say, 'Who me? I'm 85,'" said Mrs. Dowling. But the important reason for exercise classes, which are held in groups, is to make them aware they can still move. "The exercises are not calisthenics... just simple things like moving their fingers or moving their heads," said Mrs. Dowling.

Dinner at noon is the biggest meal of the day, when residents sit together to dine and talk with friends. Dinner is served family style. Residents serve themselves and pass the food to others.

After the meal, some help the kitchen workers by clearing the table, and getting the dishes together to be brought to dishwashers.

Residents in the nursing care wing may eat in their own rooms, said Barthel, but "29 out of 31 residents came out to eat in the dining rooms."

Arlington Heights has about a six per cent population of citizens 65 years or older, according to Barthel, who thinks the community has accepted its senior citizens.

"JUST BY THE civic interest shown to our residents by volunteers and various groups coming to the homes, indicate a spontaneous and cordial acceptance of all the home stands for," said Barthel. "And residents never complain. They accept the home as part of Arlington Heights."

The home first started in 1892 near Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights, and was known as "The Altheim Gesellschaft." The 80-acre stretch of land on which the present home is located at 800 W. Oakton St. was purchased as farm land to raise cows, chickens and produce for the home.

In 1953 the present building was opened and an addition was built in 1965.

The ages of residents range from 60 to 96, with the average age at 86.

The only requirements to live at the home is that a person must be 60 years old, a resident of the northern third of Illinois, and a Lutheran.

The waiting list had 318 names, even with the recent opening of the new wing.

The home has been able to accept some residents without payment because its operation is supported by contributions made by members of the Lutheran

Churches, Missouri Synod. The home, which serves Illinois Lutherans living in the northern third of the state, has been a primary concern of these churches.

The operating costs for each resident is $450 per month. Approximately 70 per cent are public aid recipients, and the home makes up for shortages, said Hauer.

THERE ARE MANY who have lived in the Home for years, like Albert Wehrs, who has been there 12 years. Wehrs, 96, also is the oldest resident at the home.

But during the last two weeks, the home has been making way for the new residents, all who must adjust to the new environment. But most have visited the home previously and have been on those two-year waiting lists.

Residents are independent to a large degree, as there are no strict schedules, according to Barthel.

"They are free to come and go from the home, just so they sign out to let us know where they are going," said Barthel. "They're free to participate in any of the activities at the home."

"The most important philosophy in the Home is that each resident has dignity about himself," said Hauer. "They must feel they are worth something. We must instill the reason for them wanting to be alive, to make them want to wake up in the morning."

Barthel said the administration encourages residents to "dress to reflect their personalities." "That's why you don't see people walking down the hall with their bathrobes on or looking disarrayed."

Lillian Eggers is looking forward to the blooming of her flower garden which she planted on the home's grounds months ago. Margaret Elbert, who was a professional florist before moving to the home, creates floral arrangements for lounges and offices at the home. Olga Boknsack likes to do a lot of sewing, not only for herself, but for other residents as well.

The annual "Spring Cleanup" begins today in Arlington Heights.

Residents who live north of the railroad tracks, and west of Arlington Heights Road, are asked to have the large household items they want hauled away placed at the curb by 7 a.m. today.

Laseke Disposal Co. crews will pick up the items as soon as possible during the week, with most pickups being made today and Tuesday.

Residents who live north of the railroad tracks but east of Arlington Heights Road are asked to follow the same procedure on Monday, May 7. Pickup for residents south of the tracks and east of Arlington Heights Road begins on May 14; and south of the tracks and west of Arlington Heights Road on May 21.

There is no additional charge for hauling large items during Spring Cleanup, however, dirt, concrete and building materials will not be picked up unless special arrangements are made with Laseke at additional cost.

Regular garbage pickup will continue as usual during the Spring Cleanup.

"Spring Clean-Up" for Northwest Area

Today, and all week, after finishing their normal garbage collection, our men will be picking up "Spring Clean-Up" trash (old furniture and appliances placed at the curb) from all customers within village limits who live in the Northwest section of town — that is, in the area west of Arlington Heights Road and north of Northwest Highway.

They'll be working all week, after normal hours, to clear up the heavy volume we usually have to handle. They may or may not happen to get your particular "Clean-Up" trash on your regular service day. But if not, they'll undoubtedly get it some time during the week.

Because it's a rough extra chore, our men hustle to get it over with as fast as possible. But they can't possibly cover this entire area in a single day — so we'll appreciate your patience. Thank you,

Laseke Disposal Company
